But every picture has two sides, and the darker side of this one comes upon you in all its fullness the moment you begin to watch the sad faces of the mothers and sisters and betrothed brides of these poor boys who are going to their doom with such gleeful, unthinking gayety. Little can it comfort these sorrowing hearts to know that their darlings are being offered up to that Moloch of "glory" in whose honor France has made her children pass through the fire generation after generation. And when the news comes a few years hence that Pierre's bones are bleaching amid the rocks of Madagascar, and that the vultures have feasted upon Louis' corpse in the voiceless solitudes of the Sahara, and that Henri has found an unknown grave among the hideous swamps of Tonquin, where the chill white fever mist, deadlier than all the weapons of the "Black Flags," streams up from the gloomy thickets against the red sunset—what then?

Sauntering away down a quiet lane, as if to escape from the general hurly-burly, a tall, olive cheeked lad and young girl, whose bright eyes look unwontedly dim beneath the jaunty scarlet hood that overshadows them. The man talks hopefully of victory and renown, and a speedy return to her with the honors and rewards that he has won. But the woman's keener instinct feels the hollowness of these bright visions, and the voice, which would make every pulse of her heart leap at any other time, can give her no comfort now. Let us pity, even if we cannot approve, this poor ignorant creature, who fails to appreciate the blessings of war, and is actually benighted enough to regard it not as a civilized and Christian institution, but as a bloody and barbarous folly. Perhaps, after all, she is not quite alone in this delusion. "Would to God that every standing army in Europe could be disbanded to-morrow," said not long ago an old man whose name was Count Hellmuth von Moltke, speaking to another old man whose name was Prince Otto von Bismarck. But the latter had only too good reason for the sinister smile that flitted over his iron face as he answered: "That, my dear count, will not happen in your time, or mine either."—Pyrenees Cor. New York Times.

France's Two Oyster Beds.

The two principal centers of oyster culture in France are at Arcachon and Auray. The bay of Arcachon has since 1854 held a foremost place in oyster breeding. In 1857 there were 20 parts, or district oyster beds; in 1865 the number had increased to 297, with an output of over 10,000,000 oysters. At the present time the little bay, which has a total area of 37,500 acres, has oyster beds covering an area of 15,000 acres, which provide annually about 300,000,000 oysters for consumption. With regard to the oyster beds at Auray, on the coast of Brittany, these, though not so important as those of Arcachon, have still a considerable output, and, from being exhaustive and unproductive when their rehabilitation was first undertaken, have become full to overflowing.—New York Tribune.

Seemingly Eradicated

With repeated and powerful doses of quinine, chills and fever, in some one of its various forms, springs into active existence again, often without the slightest apparent provocation. To extinguish the smoldering embers of this obstinate and recondite malady, no less than to subdue it when it rages fiercely in the system, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is all sufficient. When every resource of the pharmacopœia has been exhausted against it in vain, the Bitters conquer it—will remove every lingering vestige of it. Nay, more, the Bitters will protect those brought within the influence of the atmospheric poison that begets malarial disease, from its attacks. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, are among the complaints to be apprehended from the use of miasma-tainted water. These are both cured and prevented by the Bitters. Rheumatism, constipation and renal complaints, yield to its action.

The simplest and best regulator of the disordered liver in the world, are Carter's Little Liver Pills. They give prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, etc.; prevent and cure constipation and piles; remove sallowness and pimples from the complexion, and are mild and gentle in their operation on the bowels. Carter's Little Liver Pills are small and as easy to take as sugar. One pill a dose. Price 25 cents.

Paper Pulp from Weeds.

Barrels are now made from paper pulp, and an inventor of the process says that the weeds and rank grasses that grow on the meadows lying between Jersey City and Newark, in New Jersey, will produce an excellent pulp for this purpose, and that thus these practically waste lands may be made productive and profitable. The cost of manufacturing the paper barrels is no greater than that of making the wooden article, and, with the patented machine, it is said that two men can produce 600 barrels in a day.—Philadelphia Call.

Horseflesh and Beef.

An English food inspector, Mr. James Bell, finds that horseflesh and beef can not be positively distinguished by external appearance, but that the fat is a reliable test. The horse fat is fluid at a temperature of 70 degs., and has a specific gravity at 100 degs. of about 908.7; while the fat of beef melts at 110 to 120 degs., and is considerably lighter. The low melting point of the fat will show when sausages are made from horse meat.—Chicago Times.

A Bad Quality About Them.

A correspondent of The Pall Mall Gazette remarks that all words beginning with sl have in some degree a second rate or bad quality about them. "Look through the dictionary," he says, "and you won't find one that is quite first rate, for 'sleep,' which is about the best of them, is, after all, half way to death, and the great majority of these words are more or less disgusting as well as degraded."—The Argonaut.

Husband—Why not employ young Dr. Smith? He is just beginning to practice and ought to be encouraged. I believe in giving young men a show.—New York Sun.

"Howling" Schools in Kentucky.

"Howling" schools are common in the mountainous regions of Kentucky. The name is an appropriate one, as it is the custom for the pupils to study their lessons aloud. The idea prevails that children can only study aloud. The same custom prevails in China. There, whenever a pupil stops "howling" his teacher flogs him because he has ceased to study.—Chicago Times.

Poison in the Teapot.

A New York physician has informed 5 o'clock tea parties that their brass teapots generate a very poisonous substance, and society has concluded to limit their use of brass to door knockers and other things.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "perfection."

Calvin Hale, for many years a prominent citizen and bank official of Dover, died May 16th at the age of sixty-eight years.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

Voices of Praise (40 cts., $4.20 per doz.) Rev. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, bright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) by Mrs. Jewett, ably assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. Title, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Vestry Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.

Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. H. Tenney and Rev. E. A. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.

STERLING, ILL., August 22, 1885.

We feel we must write something of the success of Hop Bitters. Their sale is thribble that of any other article of medicine. So we feel it but justice to you and your Bitters to say that it is a medicine of real merit and virtue, and doing much good and effecting great cures. Yours, J. F. & H. B. UTLEY.

HAYESVILLE, OHIO, Feb. 11, 1884.

I am very glad to say I have tried Hop Bitters, and never took anything that did me as much good. I only took two bottles and I would not take $100 for the good they did me. I recommend them to my patients, and get the best of results from their use.

C. B. MERCER, M. D.

I know Hop Bitters will bear recommendation honestly. All who use them confer upon them the highest encomiums and give them credit for making cures—all the proprietors claim for them. I have kept them since they were first offered to the public. They took high rank from the first, and maintained it, and are more called for than all others combined. So long as they keep up their high reputation for purity and usefulness I shall continue to recommend them—something I have never done before with any patent medicine.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

WM. T. McCLURE.

The above is from a very reliable farmer, whose daughter was in poor health for seven or eight years, and could obtain no relief until she used Hop Bitters. She is now in as good health as any person in this country. We have large sales, and they are making remarkable cures.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

PREPARATION OF A SERMON.

Hints of Value to All Public Speakers. An Essential Quality.

For twelve years now—though my sermons have all been published—very few of them have been written. They are published from shorthand reports. And generally no part of them is ever written. I am often asked if I write and commit my sermons to memory. This is something I never did in my life. It seems to me that one who does this is in danger of appearing as if he were "speaking a piece." And, besides, unless one has a better verbal memory than I have, it would be an intolerable drudgery. In most cases I write nothing, not even a plan or sketch. It bothers me to have my attention diverted by an effort to remember something that has been written down. I prefer everything on paper or nothing.

When I do write it is done with great rapidity. And, undoubtedly, writing is the easier method. For when once it is on paper all the mental strain and nervous worry about it are over. Let no man, then, take up the method of speaking under the impression that it is easier than writing. For me, at any rate, it is the method that requires much the greater amount of hard work. There are only two classes of persons who can afford to speak to an audience without the most careful and laborious preparation—inspired people and fools. I do not claim to belong to the first class, and I try to keep out of the last. So I work very hard in preparation for public speech. And I am urged to this by another consideration. I regard it as a species of dishonesty, savoring of fraud, to claim the attention of an audience unless one has done his best to have something that is worthy of their listening. One may not always succeed, but at least he can try.

My method, then, is first to be sure in my own mind that I have something to say that it is important that people should hear. This conviction is the basis of all earnestness. I cannot look an audience in the face without it. Here, of course, I may be mistaken, but I must do my best. (This point is equally pertinent in the case of any one who offers anything to the public.) I am more anxious about a topic than I am a text. I am aware that many think nothing is a sermon that has no text. But remembering that Jesus and the Apostles got along without texts, and that texts are really a modern invention, I do not let this fact disturb me. I am always glad of a text, but I will not twist Scripture for the sake of having one, as is often done.

I decide on my subject as early in the week as possible. Then, without much worry over the matter, I let my mind play about it at odd moments—in intervals of reading, study, parish work or on the street. It acts like a magnet, and draws all sorts of things to itself. The mind seems to work sub-consciously, and sometimes the whole scheme will emerge into consciousness complete and ready. But I give some definite time to earnest and hard thought on the subject each day—by preference in the morning, when I am freshest.

In thinking it out I pay no attention to words. But I think out my line of thought until I have it completely in hand. I want it so that if an earthquake should come in the middle of the sermon I could climb up on the ruins after it was over and continue the sermon at the point where I left off. I said I have a very poor verbal memory; but if a line of thought is logical, if one point naturally follows another, I can remember this and keep to it through an hour or two of speaking.

In my opinion, the most essential quality about either writing or speaking is what I will call movement. If one is in dead earnest after some definite end, and is seen to be in motion for that end, it is human nature to be interested in seeing whether he gets there. But you get tired of watching even a gorgeously uniformed soldier, if he is only "marking time."

My last word, then, to both speaker and writer, is this: Have some important end in view; take the straightest (i. e., the most logical) road that leads to it; and then go.—M. S. Savage in The Writer.

Good Advice to Contributors.

You gain nothing and lose much by calling on the editor personally with your articles. If he be an editor who amounts to anything, he is always busy in office hours. He has no time to talk with you or to listen to your explanations. He wishes you hadn't called, and he is prejudiced against you and whatever you may have written. He may—probably will—read your article, and if it be of great merit he may accept it, but he is no more likely to than if it had reached him through the mail. In fact, he is not so apt to look favorably upon it, because he reasons that if he does you will call on him again, waste his time and leave another article, and if this should be declined he naturally supposes that you would call for personal explanation. He would rather treat with you by means of the mail. It saves time and annoyance, and you are sure of being used as well.

Remember, also, that the only introduction to an editor that you need is an article which you have written and which he thinks good enough to print. All the friends you may have on earth, never mind how powerful they may be, can never put you on such a footing with an editor as will this.—C. M. Hammond in The Writer.

M. Floran de Villepigne, of Paris, has devised an instrument called the autographometer, which records automatically the topography and difference of level of all places over which it passes. It is carried about on a light vehicle, and those who wish to use it have nothing to do but to haul it, or have it hauled, over the ground of which they desire to obtain a plan.—New York Tribune.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and will at all times cheerfully afflicted to know that statement is true and without exaggeration. CHARLES MCKAY,

Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you are as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. MCCARTHY,
33 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination." Sanford's RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

The brewers' strike in Boston continues. On Monday twenty-five men left work at A. J. Houghton's brewery, but fifty remained at work. About a dozen men quit work at G. F. Burkhardt's brewery. The workmen in the Continental brewery gave notice Monday evening that they should strike on Tuesday morning; a strike was also threatened in the Suffolk brewery at South Boston. The demands made at these breweries are the same as were made at Roessle's and Pfaff's, namely, that all non-union men be discharged, that only union men be employed hereafter, and that no union man be discharged without the consent of the union. In other words, the strikes were not against the oppressions of the employers, but against the rights of free labor.

IT IS WONDERFUL

how easily rheumatism begins, and how insidiously it grows in the system, until one is startled to find himself its victim in either the acute or chronic form. He then learns the fearful tenacity of its grip and the utter powerlessness of the ordinary remedies to give relief.

Probably to no disease have physicians given more study, and none has more completely baffled their efforts to provide a specific; and until Athlophoros was discovered there was no medicine which would surely cure rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous or sick headache. Thousands of testimonials like the following prove beyond question that Athlophoros is the only reliable remedy, and that it will do all that is claimed for it.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

One year ago while suffering with a rheumatic difficulty I was induced by friends of mine to try a bottle of Athlophoros, although I had little belief in anything of the kind, but, contrary to my expectations, it gave me immediate relief, and it is with pleasure that I can now recommend it to my acquaintances, feeling sure that they will find it the remedy of the age for such difficulties, as I had tried everything else with little or no relief.

PARK H. KELLY.

Northampton, Mass., May 21, 1886.

For relief from rheumatic pains and trouble, I believe your Athlophoros is infallible. For many years I have been subject to rheumatism in its worst forms. During my last siege of sickness I was induced to try Athlophoros and found it to be all it claimed to be, a cure for rheumatism.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERLE, Salem, Mass.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

This evening, at Music hall, Uncle Tom's Cabin will be presented by Abbey's Double Mammoth company, which includes two brass bands, the South Carolina Jubilee Singers (colored,) two Topsys, two Lawyers Marks, and Gracie Peck, said to be one of the prettiest and brightest children ever seen on the stage, as Eva. From the eulogistic notices of the press we have no doubt the play will have the best representation ever given it here. Tickets can be procured at Goodrich's.

A FORTUNATE DISCOVERY.

On Monday night between ten and eleven o'clock, as two men were walking up Vaughan street on their way home they observed a light in the yard of Oliver W. Ham's stable near the northerly end of the street, and on investigation found two fires burning, which had evidently been kindled but a few minutes, and which they succeeded in stamping out. One of the fires was in the middle of the yard, and the other close to the sill of the ell of the stable, the clapboards of which were already burning briskly. In a few minutes more the structure would have been well in flames, and a serious conflagration would very probably have resulted, as the stable is in the midst of numerous wooden buildings, an express company's stable being at its southerly side, and on the north a barn belonging to Benjamin F. Canney, which is filled with hay for the use of his herd of cows. The yard of the stable is covered with litter, which perhaps an incendiary might have thought would speedily be entirely ablaze.

THE PROPOSED NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

Messrs. Editors: A great many people think that the common council, whose members are supposed to represent the common people in particular, should hesitate a long while before they concur with the aristocratic board of aldermen in building a single huge school building in one locality for the children of different sections to climb up stairs in. There is no need in this little city, where building sites can be procured at reasonable prices, of copying after Boston, where land is high-priced and difficult to obtain.

CITIZEN.

"ON THE RIO GRANDE."

Of this new romantic American drama, which is to be played in Music hall on Friday evening of this week, the Boston Globe says:

"On the Rio Grande" came to Boston well recommended. The piece was taken out early in the season, and has been played all through the west, where it was received with the greatest favor, and the critics had nothing but the warmest words of praise to bestow upon it, and now Boston has added her stamp of approval. The drama is of that rare nature for romantic plays which does not require only one star actor, but a large and good company, and the characters are so drawn that all afford opportunities for fine acting. The drama abounds in dramatic situations of the most thrilling nature. The story is a strong one, and its interest never flags.

Tickets are now on sale at Goodrich's bookstore.

THUNDER AND SEA-BREEZES.

The New England Meteorolgical society, in conjunction with the United States signal service and the Harvard college observatory, will this year continue the observations of thunder storms, and will also inaugurate an investigation of the sea-breeze, to determine where it is the most strongly and distinctly felt, the distance that it extends inland, and the conditions favorable for its creation. Volunteer observers are wanted to aid in the work; and to those willing to do so, instructions, blanks for recording observations and franked envelopes for returning the records, will be distributed in the latter part of this month.

The desired observations of thunder storms are divided into three classes; for the first class no instruments are required, and any intelligent boy or girl can keep the record; for the second class only a thermometer and a tin can to catch the rain are needed, but a more detailed record is wished for; for the third class good instruments are needed, and barometric readings are desired if practicable.

In hunting down the sea-breeze, the only observations desired are of the wind and temperature, requiring only a vane and a thermometer. Observations are to be taken daily through June, July and August at one and four o'clock P. M., and also at every hour from ten A. M., to six P. M. on certain special days which will be announced in the daily newspapers as "Sea-breeze term days," when the breeze may be expected in greater extension and intensity than usual. Those who cannot undertake both the regular daily observations and the term-day observations, may attempt either series alone.

Persons willing to assist in either the thunder-storm or sea-breeze work, or both, are requested to communicate at once with "O. N. Oswell, Sergt. Signal Corps, U. S. A., Cambridge, Mass."

BASE BALL.

Some of the larger boys of the high school met on Monday to organize a base ball club, elected Tobias Burke captain, Ralph Sweetser secretary, William Johnson treasurer and J. H. Washburne manager. The president was instructed to select and submit a list of players on Tuesday.

MARITIME NOTES.

Capt. Garland, of the fishing schooner Norma, on Monday set his nets for bait off Little Boar's head, and with the bait took eighteen good mackerel.

Coal freights at the close of last week were reported firm at association rates, for vessels of 300 to 600 tons register, but there were very few orders for larger boats. Prices were quoted from Philadelphia to Boston at $1.05, and the same to Portland; to Newburyport, $1.20 and $1.25; to this port, $1.15. Baltimore to Bath, Portland or Boston, $1.15; to this port, $1.25.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Second Lieut. F. E. Sutton has been detached from the marine barracks at this navy yard, and ordered to proceed by rail to Mare island, Cal., and report for duty at the marine barracks there. On the 11th inst. he was granted permission to delay reporting for one week.

A democratic friend hands us the following: "A new arrangement is adopted by the bosses at the navy yard, for getting rid of an employe to make room for some one whom they wish to employ as one of their pets. Instead of suspension they resort to a system of harassing to which no spirited and self respecting man can submit, and thus carry out their purposes in getting him to vacate." We fear the possession of the navy yard patronage is not an unmixed political blessing to our brethren on the other side of the fence.

The directors of Cie Generale d' La Mana, at a meeting recently held in Paris, France, appointed Capt. J. Albert Sanborn of this city superintendent of their mining and milling business in French Guiana, South America.

Mr. David Burke died on the 17th inst. at the age of seventy years, after a long illness. Mr. Burke was an industrious, worthy man and good citizen, and was for many years, up to the time that failing health compelled him to give up, engaged in shore-fishing. On one of his trips a number of years ago his whaleboat was struck by lightning when to the eastward of the harbor, and went to the bottom in a few moments, leaving him and his mate in the water a long way from shore, but both were picked up by other fishing boats, and the sunken boat was afterward raised.

A deposit book was presented at the Portsmouth savings bank a few days ago by the administrator of an estate, to have entered therein the interest which had accumulated since the book had last been produced at the bank; the original deposit was about $500, and the interest amounted to $1975.

Mr. A. Brackett Trefethen has taken the contract to put in the foundation for Elvin Newton's new house on Gardner street, which is to be a two-story structure, thirty-eight feet by thirty on the ground, with an ell; the frame arrived from Bangor by schooner Mary Willey. Capt. Edw. Robinson is making ready to build a dwelling on the corner of Salter and Water streets, for his own occupancy. Mr. Freeman Pearson has enlarged, repaired and greatly improved the house on South street purchased by him some time ago; has built a barn, and will occupy the place with his family. John Fletcher has got his new building on the corner of Water and Manning streets nearly done, and expects to occupy it as a store early in June. Mrs. William A. Vaughan has just had repainted the old Wenworth house on Manning street, one of the oldest houses in the city, it having been built in the early days of the province.

One of the common councilmen who has persistently voted against the sale of the city farm, and who also turns a cold shoulder to the project for a new schoolhouse, has been discharged from his private employment. There may be no connection between the two incidents, but the discharged thinks there is, and that his dismissal is to be taken in the light of a warning to the recalcitrant members of the council that their party bosses don't mean to stand any ridiculous fooling by them in the way of voting as they may deem best for the city's interest, when their ideas run contrary to the wishes of the leaders.

The Illustrated London News is now published in this country simultaneously with its issue in England; the American reprint is a fac simile of the London edition, but is sold at less than half the price. M. Goodrich has it, price ten cents.

The assembly given by the colored ladies of the city in Franklin upper hall takes place this evening; tickets may be had of Mr. Peter Williams, at 25cts. each.

Moses H. Goodrich fire engine company have received their new uniforms.

Taylor's No. 6 is pronounced by fashionable ladies and leading dressmakers everywhere to be the queen; the latest Parisian shape, and strong enough to firmly support the clothing. See advt.

New line of Embroidered Mull Ties, 20, 25 and 37 cts., at Lewis E. Staples'.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

At the urgent solicitation of a number of my patrons I shall continue for a few months after May 1st to make those fine Cabinet Photos for $2.00 a dozen.

Seemingly Eradicated.

With repeated and powerful doses of quinine, chills and fever, in some one of its various forms, springs into active existence again, often without the slightest apparent provocation. To extinguish the smoldering embers of this obstinate and recondite malady, no less than to subdue it when it rages fiercely in the system, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is all sufficient. When every resource of the pharmacopœia has been exhausted against it in vain, the Bitters conquer it—will remove every lingering vestige of it. Nay, more, the Bitters will protect those brought within the influence of the atmospheric poison that begets malarial disease, from its attacks. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, are among the complaints to be apprehended from the use of miasma-tainted water. These are both cured and prevented by the Bitters. Rheumatism, constipation and renal complaints, yield to its action.

It is safe to take Brandreth's Pills at any time, but to get the best results they should be taken on an empty stomach before going to bed. Brandreth's Pills are entirely vegatable, and the safest and most effective purgative ever introduced to the public. They have been used in this country over fifty years.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

LINIMENT

THE TWO TEMPERAMENTS.

Differences Between the Parisian of the North and of the South.

The Parisian of the south is remarkable for an excessive love of self advertisement. He must be talked about; he likes to be seen, to shine, to write letters to the newspapers and to inform the public of everything he is thinking, planning, preparing, eating, drinking. He seeks to occupy attention even in the merest trifles, and if he refuses an invitation to dinner he will contrive to let all the world into the secret. Everybody's friend, all his equals are affectionately and familiarly addressed, and "old fellowed" by him in the second person singular, and he shakes hands with every Parisian notability who will let him. Frequently he has managed to lose the accent he brought with him from Provence or Toulouse, but you are pretty sure to find it again in his gesticulations and gait.

The man of the north, on the other hand, aims at distinction and correctness of bearing. He is a prig, and he poses. Generally affected, he endeavors to appear modest with his inferiors and scornful with his superiors. In society he keeps on the alert, refuses to talk and seems to avoid self assertion. The man of the south is somewhat a trifler; but, whether it be from ostentation or temperament, he is generous, cares not for money grubbing, and for the most part does some good about him. If he have wit he scatters lavishly; if he have money he spends royally. The northerner, on the other hand, is always a man of business, even when he is an artist or a man of letters. He reckons everything. A man of wealth, and he will scarcely be free from avarice; a wit, and he will sell his jokes.

When the meridional comes up to Paris he does not lose his love for his native place, but is clannish and helps his own folk, and at one period France was in the hands of the Toulousains. The men of the south help and admire each other and grow eloquent over each other's worth and talents, and hold banquets, at which they meet at fixed periods to thee and thou one another in the native dialect. The men of the north are more selfish. They do not know one another. When once the church steeple is abandoned under whose shadow they were born they mix with the people about them and with whom they assimilate.—Le Figaro.

A Prima Donna's Romance.

A little romance of Piccolomini was suggested by the portrait of a very sad looking Armand with a very conventional Armand beard. When Piccolomini was at the zenith of her fame she came to America and sang in the old Academy. One night she was singing in "La Favorita" when there hear her thought she had been taken suddenly ill. She was, but not for any physical reason. She had caught the eyes of a pale, slender man, who sat among the audience. And it was said afterward that when Piccolomini was a little girl, just entering her teens, and before any thought of her successful career as a prima donna had ever came to her or her parents, the pale gentleman and she became attached. It was at her old home in Florence, where this gentleman then lived, though he was an American, and it was expected that the little Piccolomini would one day, when she became older, be the bride of this early lover. But the discovery of her voice, and her queenly success with it, caused a severance of these tender relations. They separated, not angrily, but sorrowfully, and Piccolomini did not again see her youthful lover till she saw him in New York. They met once or twice afterward, and met simply as old and pleasant acquaintances.—New York Sun.

Mill's Wonderful Memory.

John Stuart Mill was noted for his wonderful memory. Nothing escaped his notice, nothing was forgotten by him afterward. This power of memory was cultivated by his early habits of study. His father took daily walks with him, and the boy was obliged to give a minute account of each book that he read. The discipline was a hard one, but it trained the memory to a strength and retentiveness which was of great value in mature years. I think that if young people would adopt some plan of the kind the most beneficial results would be sure to follow. It is a great power and a great convenience to be able to rely upon memory, instead of "the weak practice of making many notes.—"Observer" in Philadelphia Call.

The Dudley Cast of Countenance.

The other day an Englishman was walking on the street when the White House carriage came along, and he saw Mrs. Cleveland for the first time. The fresh air had made her cheeks red and rosy, and she looked very beautiful.

The Englishman was struck by her beauty, and exclaimed:

"Ah! She is pretty. By far prettier than the pictures offered for sale in the London shops. She has the Dudley cast of countenance—that refined and stately beauty which has made the Dudley beauty famous. No wonder you Americans are proud of her."—Cor. Baltimore American.

Clouds Which Produce Rain.

A communication to the London Meteorological society by Capt. Toynbee states as his conclusion that clouds of not less than 2,000 feet in thickness are seldom accompanied by rain, or, if they are, it is very gentle, consisting of minute drops; with a thickness of between 2,000 and 4,000 feet, the size of the drops is moderate; with increasing thickness of the clouds comes an increasing size of the drops, and at the same time the degree of temperature becomes lowered. When the thickness amounts to more than 6,000 feet hail is produced.—Chicago Times.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid oozed out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp is as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that statement is true and without exaggeration. CHARLES McKAY,

Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a painful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. McCARTHY,
25 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Big Fire in Lawrence.

Fire broke out in the 5th story of Washington Mill No. 1 at Lawrence, Mass., at nine o'clock on the night of the 17th inst., and the building, which was 300 feet long, sixty feet wide and nine stories high, was entirely destroyed, causing a loss of $150,000. Help was sent from Methuen, Andover, North Andover, Haverhill and Lowell, and by hard work and good fortune the immense Pacific and Pemberton mills, close by the burned mill on either side, were saved. The Washington mills are owned by a company of which Fred Ayer of Lowell is the principal stockholder.

Another Murder in New Hampshire.

The body of an unknown man was washed to the shore of Lake Winnipesaukie near Weirs on the 17th inst. It was that of a powerful young Irishman about twenty-five years old, who was apparently beaten and stamped to death. A coat, vest, boots and shirt were found near a pond connected with the lake, about two miles from where the body came ashore.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., May 17th.

Mr. Albert Moulton of Beech Ridge, York, will occupy Dr. Peirce's farm at North Kittery this year.

Edward G. Parker Post, No. 99, G. A. R., have called a special meeting at their hall on Saturday evening, the 21st inst., to arrange for Memorial day.

Mr. William M. Sanborn of Peabody, Mass., passed Sunday with his wife and children, who are visiting at Mr. William A. Fernald's, the parental home of Mrs. Sanborn.

There has been an immense quantity of lumber sawed at the portable mill on the Dennett farm this spring. Many thousand feet are "sticked" on the premises to season, and many more have been hauled away. The huge piles of sawdust looming up in the distance remind one of the pyramids of Egypt.

Patient waiters are no losers. Rockingham Lodge, I. O. G. T., of Portsmouth, after three unsuccessful attempts to visit Morrill Lodge of North Kittery, succeeded on Friday evening last, when about thirty-five of the visitors arrived in Beacham's barges and were royally entertained by the members of Morrill Lodge. Ice cream and cake were served during intermission, after which the lodge was called to order and all listened attentively to interesting remarks by the visiting brothers and sisters, at the conclusion of which the lodge adjourned to open session, and passed the remainder of the evening in a social manner. The visitors expressed themselves as well pleased with their entertainment.

The condition of Mrs. Frank Bartlett still continues to improve, through careful nursing, much to the gratification of her many friends.

Jefferson T. Lewis and Isaac H. Lambert started for Alfred on Monday evening, to attend court, which commences to-day, they being drawn on the jury.

Constable Daniel H. Nason and Will. Abbott went to Alfred to-day in connection with the recent burglary in the Globe Grocery company's store. The accused party will probably fail to appear, and his bonds will be called.

The work of blasting and removing the ledge on the line of the Y. H. & B. R. R. near the house of Redford Sargent at the lower-foreside is completed; about a thousands yards of solid rock have been taken out, and the road bed left in fine condition to receive the grading. We understand that the managers are taking the utmost pains in the construction of the bed; all ledges are required to be at least one foot below the surface, which when covered with eight inches of gravel will make a smooth and easy way. We also understand that the B. & M. will use the 600-lb. steel rails which now lay between Greenland and Hampton Falls for the new road, and substitute in their place the new standard rail of 720 lbs. which the company are now using on the main line. This route with the connection made from the terminus to the B. & M. at Cole's Corner, Wells, will be several miles shorter than the main line, and one of the most pleasant sea shore routes in New England.

The work of excavating across the roadway in Rice's hollow for the new railroad is nearly completed, and the earth thrown out on the lower side has filled the highway to the depth of nearly nine feet for a long distance, and will make the grades of both hills comparatively small when finished. The stone to build the abutments of the overhead bridge at that point is being split out of the ledge in Ephraim C. Spinney's field, close by the road and opposite Granville Spinney's house. The stone taken out thus far is of good quality, and it is but a short distance from the site of the bridge. Charles W. Cottle & Son have the contract to haul the stone to the spot.

Henry Cabot Lodge, member-elect to Congress from the Lynn district of Massachusetts, has leased the residence lately occupied by Senator Don Cameron in Washington. Mrs. Lodge is the daughter of the late Rear Admiral Davis of the navy, and sister of Commander Charles H. Davis, now in command of the Saratoga. Mr. Lodge has two houses, one on Beacon street, Boston, and one at Nahant, his legal residence. If the trial of keeping three houses in these days of high salaried "help" is in proportion to that of maintaining one establishment in this region, we should imagine that the wife of the new congressman-elect would prefer an easier life, even if she was compelled to owe "for a lodge in some vast wilderness" at a rate of interest on the mortgage which would appal even a western farm-loan broker.

There was great pressure brought to bear upon the secretary of the navy for the command of the Quinnebang, recently made vacant by the sickness of Capt. Coffin. An officer formerly in command brought into play much influence in the hope to be again ordered, but he failed. Commander Folger, who is well known by reason of his celebrity in the ordnance department and his accomplished and admirable traits, is withal an excellent French and Italian scholar. The designation of such an officer is creditable to whoever selected him. He one of the very brightest men of his grade.

Rev. William Matthews, pastor of the African Union Methodist church of Portland, is in this city for a short time. He is canvassing for subscriptions to aid in raising the debt on his church, a portion of which falls due in June. The gentleman has been in this city before, when he met with some success. He is worthy of help, and we trust he may not go away empty-handed. The debt on the church amounts to $2000, and the pastor hopes to raise one-fourth of that sum by June 1st.

Miss Lizzie Grant of Dover, for the past six years telephone operator in that city, was on the 14th inst. presented with a very handsome and costly toilet set, purchased with the contributions of a large number of citizens using the telephone in Dover, as a mark of their regard for the young lady, who has been appointed to the management of the telephone office in this city.

William Russell Burleigh of Great Falls was elected grand master of Masons of New Hampshire at the annual communication of the grand lodge, held at Concord on the 18th inst.

IT IS WONDERFUL

how easily rheumatism begins, and how insidiously it grows in the system, until one is startled to find himself its victim in either the acute or chronic form. He then learns the fearful tenacity of its grip and the utter powerlessness of the ordinary remedies to give relief.

Probably to no disease have physicians given more study, and none has more completely baffled their efforts to provide a specific; and until Athlophoros was discovered there was no medicine which would surely cure rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous or sick headache. Thousands of testimonials like the following prove beyond question that Athlophoros is the only reliable remedy, and that it will do all that is claimed for it.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

One year ago while suffering with a rheumatic difficulty I was induced by friends of mine to try a bottle of Athlophoros, although I had little belief in anything of the kind, but, contrary to my expectations, it gave me immediate relief, and it is with pleasure that I can now recommend it to my acquaintances, feeling sure that they will find it the remedy of the age for such difficulties, as I had tried everything else with little or no relief.

PARK H. KELLY.

Northampton, Mass., May 21, 1886.

For relief from rheumatic pains and trouble, I believe your Athlophoros is infallible. For many years I have been subject to rheumatism in its worst forms. During my last siege of sickness I was induced to try Athlophoros and found it to be all it claimed to be, a cure for rheumatism.

BEQUEST TO PORTSMOUTH.

The will of the late Robert H. Eddy of Boston has been filed in the probate court of Suffolk county, Mass. After bequests of about $50,000 to relatives, it bequeaths $20,000 to Robert Eddy Porter, son of Fitz John Porter, and $5000 to the church of Cranbrook, Kent county, Eng., for a monument to William Eddy, an ancestor of the testator who was vicar of the church in the sixteenth century. The residue of the estate is left, after the death of the testator's widow, in equal proportions to Harvard college, the Massachusetts General hospital and the New England Genealogical society. In a codicil, the sum of $30,000 is set aside from the latter bequests and given to the city of Portsmouth, for the purpose of erecting a bronze equestrian statue of General Fitz John Porter in this city, where he was born.

MIXED, APPARENTLY.

It is sometimes well to go away from home after local news, as the home article and that to be found abroad occasionally differ. The following, from the New York Sun, is a case in point:

R. H. White of Boston is at the Hoffman house. He is one of the merchant princes of the Hub, and owns an immense establishment on Washington street, opposite the Adams house. He and Frank Jones, the millionaire brewer of New Hampshire, have histories that parallel each other in many respects. Both started out as peddlers, journeying from town to town in an old wagon that carried all their stock in trade, as well as themselves. Though they were unknown to each other then, their routes were pretty much the same. Mr. Jones was more enterprising than his rival, however, for he had painted across the side of his wagon, "Honest Weight, Marm," and he came to be known by that among his customers. Both men succeeded so well with their wagons that the wagons were soon given up for small stores in Boston. Mr. Jones remained in the dry goods business only a few years, though, when he removed to New Hampshire and embarked in the brewing of ales, but Mr. White remained steadfast to his first vocation, and he is now at the head of a house that employs 2000 people, and has a trade in almost every New England city.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of Rockingham Lodge of Good Templars, Wednesday evening, 18th inst., the following resolutions were passed:

Whereas, in the dispensation of our Heavenly Father, the hand of death has again entered the ranks of Strawberry Bank Lodge, I. O. G. T., and removed an esteemed brother, George W. Frost, therefore we, the members of Rockingham Lodge, are hereby

Resolved, that we sympathize with the family of our deceased brother in their affliction, with Strawberry Bank Lodge, and with the church with which he was connected.

Resolved, that by his devotion to the interests of our order and the cause of temperance, his noble Christian character, his affable and courteous demeanor, his memory deserves to be fondly cherished by us all.

Resolved, that these resolutions be entered upon our records, and copies given to his family, Strawberry Bank Lodge, and to the daily press for publication.

A SOLID FINANCIER.

The Boston Record says: "Col. Chas. A. Sinclair of Portsmouth has made a neat sum out of his recent railway deals. It seems but a few years since, when Sinclair was known in Boston as the son-in-law of Frank Jones. He long since passed the milestone marked $500,000. If he keeps on as he has progressed, Mr. Jones will be known in financial circles as 'the father-in-law of Charles A. Sinclair.' Sinclair is a clear-headed business man. His strong point is in his prescience and keeping his own counsel. Mr. Jones frequently first learns of some of his son-in-law's operations from the street, so discreetly silent has been the 'Star of Bethlehem' as to his business moves."

"ON THE RIO GRANDE."

The plot of "On the Rio Grand," which will be presented in Music hall to-morrow evening by the company which has been playing it to full audiences in the Boston theatre, is in brief as follows:

The curtain rises on the home of Harold Rapley, a young cattle raiser on the banks of the Rio Grande. His greatest treasure is his sister Dora. Morgan Mortimer, a wealthy cattle king, basely loves this girl, and failing to win her by persuasion, secures the assistance of Del Paso, an outcast, and carries her off to his ranch on the border. The outcast proves to be Dora's brother, who, through no fault of his own, but because of the baseness of Mortimer, suffered imprisonment and was made an outlaw. The recognition between the two brothers makes the closing of the second act. In the next act, Del Paso, in his eagerness to rescue his sister, has stolen a horse. For this he is captured by the vigilance committee, who propose to lynch him. He is, however, granted a respite through the efforts of his brother and Daniel Webster Byall, an eccentric old fellow from down east, who knows more than his looks indicate. Everything is straightened out in the final act, Mortimer and his wicked associates receiving their just deserts, and all the good people what they deserve.

The company is a strong one, and the prominent parts, of which there are many, are effectively taken.

WENT LOBSTERING.

School matters will soon be running in the same old well-worn grooves, therefore I will give a little experience (or "experiment" might be nearer the mark) in lobster catching. Being a law-abiding citizen, to some extent, I privately borrowed Dan. B——'s foot rule and took two nets well covered with codfish napes, also a large Shaker basket, and started for my newly-tarred dory. Calling back to Sukey not to wait dinner (lest you should think I nicknamed my wife—my venerable housekeeper was christened Susan) I was soon abreast of Thaxter's island, nets over, saying to myself, "I am as honest as the down-east law-makers any day—Oxford bears and the rest—and if I don't have a mess of lawful lobsters then tell me of it."

Soon a net was taken in with five as active shell fish as I care to see. I measured one, exactly five inches long, but having forgotten the legal standard of length, if I ever knew it, I didn't throw it overboard. The next one after much squirming was found to be seven inches long. By this time my hands were nearly frozen, and one of my forefingers has been on the retired list for years, caused by a felon, so when about to apply my rule to the third, one of his claws fastened on the useless finger with a fiendish grip. Language fails in the attempt to picture what followed in that old dory. I landed at Sea point with my basket as empty as when it left Alfred, but having a cover it told no tales.

The first person I met, a natural, innocent maiden, said, "Where have you been to, Uncle Joe? Huckleberrying?" The next, a young woman, asked if I found many Mayflowers, and then if I was "agent of district fifteen?" I naturally groaned at that, which did not appear to surprise her. I asked how long she had been in town. "Two weeks," she said, and that she had found every school engaged to more or less teachers, all conditionally,—mainly, if they could get one nowhere else. She had been told that she would know the agent of No. 15, a very pale man, who when not on board his vessel peddled patent medicines. "O, I am so glad I have found you," she concluded.

Now, at my best I have always been afraid of "school marms" ever since one laced my mud-enamelled feet in old No. 10 only because an hour or so late, having been prospecting in Molly Mild's neighborhood in search of blue flags. My heart was steeled against the little animated creature—freckles, dimples and lisp were all the same—and I crisply said, "I am a sick man; go to the S. S. committee." She is now safely moored in a school among the Berwicks.

LAUGHTER AND DEATH.

There is no laughter in the natural world
Of beast, or fish, or bird, though no sad doubt
Of their futurity to them unfurled
Has dared to check the mirth compelling shout.
The lion roars his solemn thunder out
To the sleeping woods. The eagle screams her cry.
Even the lark must strain a serious throat
To hurl his blest defiance at the sky.
Fear, anger, jealousy have found a voice.
Love's pain or rapture the brute bosoms swell.
Nature has symbols for her noble joys.
Her nobler sorrows. Who had dared foretell
That only man, by some sad mockery,
Should learn to laugh who learns that he must die!

SOMEBODY'S SECRET.

St. Juliotts is about the sleepiest village in Cornwall; it is not in the track of tourists, and has nothing specially remarkable about the height of its cliffs, the sapphire of its sea or the beauty of its situation; but it is, nevertheless, a charming spot, and one which the traveler having discovered will revisit with ever increasing affection.

Years ago the village was often heard of as the scene of disaster to shipping; but a light placed on the headland forming one arm of its little bay proved of service in guiding unwary mariners; and it was, therefore, the more exciting when, during a dense fog in the early part of 187—, a large Danish vessel made total shipwreck on the dangerous rocks beneath the peaceful lights in the cottage windows. The fishermen of St. Juliotts were able to take boats to the vessel, owing to the position into which she drifted, and thanks to their gallant exertions during the whole dreadful night, the crew, mate and captain of the Olaf Bjornsen were all saved; but the heavy sea which was running made the work of rescue both difficult and dangerous; several men were injured and had to stay to be tended in the village. The mate, Eric Gottorp, a fine stalwart Dane, with a magnificent fair beard, clear blue eyes and smile as soft as a woman's, was terribly crippled; his hurts were so severe that it taxed the skill of the kindly doctor to help him to a cure; and long after the captain and crew of the ill fated vessel had found other ships he lingered at St. Juliotts in a condition pitiable to behold. It was not till the hedges were in full leaf and the fuchsias showing their crimson buds at each cottage door that he was able to crawl out into the sunshine and realize that health might once more be his.

During his enforced residence with the worthy Mrs. Cobbledick, who nursed him as if he were her son, he had been cheered and amused by the friendly interest of the neighbors; but his chief pleasure was an occasional visit from Barbara Tregage, the daughter of the schoolmaster, whose presence brightened the cottage like a sunbeam. "Bab" was 17, and as pretty as she was good. Her hair was the color of a chestnut fresh from its pod, her features well cut and her complexion perfect; she had the merry, sweet expression of a happy child, and to see her was to feel she would prove to be a woman in a thousand. She was the mainstay of the Tregage household, which consisted of an invalid mother, six children, whose ages ranged from 3 to 12 years, and the father, who considered himself a noteworthy personage and ruled his household with a rod of iron.

All day long, for help, sympathy or work, "Bab" was in constant requisition, and she needed all the patience and courage with which she was endowed by nature to travel along the path where fate had placed her; but if bright looks indicate happiness, Barbara needed no pity and required no change in her existence. The wreck had, of course, greatly interested her, and the memory of her happy face and kindly words will often come back to the sailors who shared them; but the serious illness of poor Gottorp awakened all her pity, and to see the strong man more helpless than her youngest brother touched the tenderest chords in her heart. Whenever she could she went to Mrs. Cobbledick's cottage and took her lodger a few flowers or little dainties prepared by herself; sometimes she read to him, and her low, sweet voice soothed and comforted him as nothing else could, till he watched for her coming as the patients at Scutari did for Miss Nightingale.

With convalescence, however, Eric found that he saw but little of Barbara; and when he was able to limp up and down the village, and slowly make his way to the sands, he noticed that he never met "the sunbeam," nor chanced on an idle five minutes when he could claim her attention and watch her bright eyes glow and darken as she listened to the tales of his simple home in Denmark and the mother and sisters whom he loved so dearly, or heard his accounts of adventure in foreign lands; and he sadly missed her bright companionship.

"Where is my copy of "Hamlet?" asked Mr. Tregage one evening, as he surveyed the book shelves in the little sitting room.

"I have lent it to Mr. Gottorp," said Bab's soft treble, as she lifted her eyes from her sewing, and looked with a smile at her father; "he is getting on well with his English, and wanted to read Shakespeare."

"I beg you will lend him no more of my books," said Mr. Tregage severely.

"Father!" exclaimed Bab in astonishment.

"And, moreover," continued he, in a rasping tone, "I desire that you do not go to Mrs. Cobbledick's while he is there; three times lately I have wanted you, and three times Tommy has told me you were reading to the foreigner. Foreigner, indeed! I'll have none of it! All foreigners are alike—bad, bad, bad!"

"But, indeed, father," pleaded Bab, "Mr. Gottorp is not like a foreigner, he is only a Dane; and very much the same as an Englishman except for his accent."

"Be silent," said Mr. Tregage; "he is a foreigner; and I forbid your acquaintance."

Bab sighed a long sigh; she saw her pleasant friendship was at an end. Her father's deeply rooted objection to any one not English arose from a miserable marriage between his favorite sister and an Italian, who had ill treated and deserted her; and Bab knew that discussion would only entail a repetition of the sad story, and be useless in effecting any change of opinion, and as her obedience was paid to the spirit as well as to the letter of her father's commands, it was small wonder that Eric so often sought her in vain. None the less, however, as he wandered disconsolately on cliff and shore, did she fill his thoughts; and as the lovely summer days lengthened, a resolve grew in his heart that this little English blossom should be his wife, and hopes and dreams of how he would woo and win her served to while away his days. The younger Tregages were under no ban as to their acquaintance, and to them Eric was king and hero, so Bab heard much of him, though she saw him so little. Indeed, a stranger coming to St. Juliotts might have taken Eric Gottorp for its principal inhabitant, so often were his speeches quoted or his aid invoked. The captain of the Olaf Bjornsen had promised to try and find him employment as soon as he should be able to take it, and he anxiously awaited the doctor's permission to seek it; inaction was intolerable when work would help him to gain a position in which he might ask Barbara to be his wife.

One lovely morning Bab set out early for the neighboring village of Tallans, where she was to help the rector's wife in preparing for a large school feast to be held the following day; and with a light heart she took her way over the cliffs, enjoying to the full the rare treat of a holiday. The tide was high, and she could hear the waves lapping against the rocks below; there was no sail in sight, and the water stretched away in all the beauty of its unruffled green, flecked here and there by a purple shadow from a passing cloud.

Her day soon passed; she had given her willing aid in all the arrangements, and the rector's wife made her the bearer of an invitation to all the children for the morrow's festivities. She paused on her homeward way to gather some hollyhocks, for which a steamlet in the village was famous; and at the top of the rocky descent which led to the shore, she staid again to gaze at the scene. The village she had left was out of sight, hidden in a hollow of the thymy downs, and, far away on the glorious sea, was a fine vessel with all sails set. "Outward bound," thought Barbara, as she stood shading her eyes with her hand. "I wonder where she is going; how lovely she looks with the sunshine turning all her sails to gold! Good speed, good ship!" she said aloud, and kissing the tips of her fingers to the vessel, she waved a farewell, and ran lightly down the path. As she neared the village, she paused idly, and looked down at a heart neatly drawn on the sand, with some words traced in it. "Perhaps I shall find out somebody's secret!" she thought.

Suddenly from throat to brow a lovely crimson dyed her face; for, half effaced by the coming tide as they were, she could clearly see the letters E. B. G. "Eric—Barbara—Gottorp!" she murmured, under her breath, and then with flying footsteps sped to the cottage, reaching it breathless, with a consciousness of fresh light and color in her life.

Her father was out, and the children greeted her with a noisy chorus, in which Tommy's shrill tones could be plainly heard, saying:

"Bab, Mr. Eric is gone away!"

"Where?" asked Barbara laconically, feeling as if her warm pulses were suddenly stilled.

"To Tallans," said Tommy; and at this they all laughed, it seemed so unlikely.

"It is true," announced wiser Polly, "he was telegrafted for from Plymouth; and he ordered Ben Wilson's cart and was going to catch the train."

"But he went to the sands first," put in Tommy again; "and if you had come back to dinner like you said, you would have met him."

Barbara was silent. A thousand words and looks unheeded before rushed into her mind, and the rough drawing on the sand took a meaning for her—it was his good by. She liked to think that the good ship she had seen bright in the afternoon sunshine might be his, and that she had wafted him a farewell. "Somebody's secret" was in truth her own. Later she heard from Mrs. Cobbledick that a telegram from his old captain had summoned Eric to a ship bound for South America, whose mate had been disabled almost at the moment of starting.

The autumn passed and winter came. Barbara worked very hard and was the life of the house; but she did not pass an unruffled existence. A well to do farmer of the neighborhood presented himself to Mr. Tregage as suitor for his daughter, and her emphatic refusal to listen to his wooing entailed upon her something very like persecution from her father, who found it difficult to realize that she should in any matter have a decided will of her own. It seemed almost as if he had obtained a glimmering of "somebody's secret," as his diatribes against all foreigners were more frequent and his praises of Englishmen—and especially of those of the farmer class—became wearisome reiterations. The weather was unusually severe, and one bitterly cold morning, when the sky was thick and gray and the atmosphere possessed that stillness which precedes a storm, Barbara was called by her father to come and dress Tommy for a walk.

"Where are you going, father?" she inquired.

"To Tallans," was his answer; and, in reply to a look of remonstrance, he added: "Exercise is good for Tommy, so I shall

The Waste of Over Six Years Repaired in Six Months.

About four years ago, to avoid the rigor of our Northern climate, my family and myself wintered in Florida. I went mainly for my wife's benefit, who was in a feeble state of health. Not long after our arrival Mrs. Titus contracted what is known in the South as "chills and fever." Inasmuch as this malady is common there we did not think it very serious. "A little quinine and a sea voyage," the physician said, "will soon make everything all right." We began with the quinine and kept on with it all the rest of the winter, but without breaking up the disease. Spring came at last and we concluded to try the second part of the doctor's prescription for malaria—namely, the sea voyage. We therefore returned North by steamer. The voyage ended, but the quinine was continued and the cure seemed further of than ever. Medical treatment, so far as we could see, had exhausted its resources and done no real or lasting good; and for over six years Mrs. Titus suffered from malarial intermittent fever in its most distressing forms, with its accompanying depletion of the life forces. She went through the entire letting-down process—the shocks from quinine and other powerful drugs used tending to weaken the system—until the result was great languor, nervous debility and general exhaustion. Then came the digestive disorders which always attend chronic malaria, until the very food necessary to support life actually became an irritating agent—assisting the disease instead of imparting strength to overcome it.

It is no more than simple truth to say that the quinine treatment did at times gives temporary relief, but the periods of relief became shorter with longer pauses between, until the use of the drug had to be discontinued. We then tried many remedies continually suggested by kind friends, but the equally numerous failures aroused the fear that we never should find the right one. But, like many another blessing, it was nearer than we dreamed. In the summer of 1886 a friend who had experienced great and happy relief from Kaskine—the new quinine—said to me, "Why don't you try it for Mrs. Titus?" "I will," I replied. I can hardly convey to you in words the pleasure and surprise we felt at the change for the better wrought by that efficient and potent medicine. It came as the summer dawn comes, stealing noiselessly upon our sight. The disease was rebuked as from a Power that speaks by authority; the system gave clear signs of the approach of health; the appetite improved; food was more rapidly assimilated, and Nature proceeded to build up the wasted tissues, and heal the hurt vitality. A delicate nervous organization righted itself; the fires of fever went out as Kaskine destroyed the germs which fed them; the digestive processes became more active and natural, and all this was accomplished so rapidly that the waste of over six years was virtually repaired in six months.

It was a healing wrought by a wholesome and genuine remedy. The functions and organs of the system all received a new impetus. Brain, stomach, nerves, digestion, assimilation now did their work with an ease and power that was delightful, and in all this there was no shock nor reaction. Kaskine is plainly the remedy for the delicate organization of women. It differs from other drugs in this important respect: that while they claim to cure by breaking down the disease, Kaskine cures by rousing to action the recuperative forces of nature and so makes its results real and permanent. THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

LINIMENT

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by fumigation and by internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

A SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music

Ranks with the very best, and no Sunday School management should adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.

Voices of Praise (40 cts., $4.20 per doz.) Rev. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, upright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Vestry Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.

Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. H. Tenney and Rev. E. A. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well-known as having had charge of the music at many Chatauqua meetings.

For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.

Don't Get Caught

This spring with your blood full of impurities, your digestion impaired, your appetite poor, kidneys and liver torpid, and whole system liable to be prostrated by disease—but get yourself into good condition, and ready for the changing and warmer weather, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, giving an appetite, and for a general spring medicine.

The sutler at Fort Adams, R. I., has received orders from the commandant not to furnish the troops with whiskey or other strong liquors.

Beware of Swindlers.

We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers who advertise, under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we can honestly recommend Sulphur Bitters.—Editor Sun.

Evictions in Pennsylvania.

Men employed in the mines operated by J. S. Wentz & Co., at Hazel Brook, Pa., have been on a strike for several weeks, and on Saturday, the 14th inst., the company began a forcible ejection from their houses.

The whole village and land lying around about for miles is owned by the company. It will not sell or lease a foot of it. Every employe in the mine is compelled to rent a hovel from the company at from $5 to $6 a month. A lease must be signed by the tenant in which he waives every right to which he is entitled under the law, which places his home absolutely at the mercy of the company.

On Saturday a sheriff, backed by a gang of Pinkerton men, appeared in the village and began to evict. Six families with all their effects were thrown into the street. Women and children were driven out, and the doors were locked behind them. The company had given notice that any tenant affording shelter to the evicted or their goods would be himself driven out, and not a soul in the village dared take in any family.

One woman was ill in bed when the officers entered her house, but she had to go, and her bed was put outside after her. It was with difficulty that she obtained permission to stay over night with a neighbor. Women and children were forced to sleep on the bare ground without roof or shelter. Their goods were left lying just where they were thrown out, the company refusing to allow wagons on their land to remove them.

The strike and the consequent evictions are the result of the efforts of the company to break up the local district of the Knights of Labor. The company has a large store in the village, and the employes are forced to deal with it. If there is any worse record in Ireland than this, it has not been made public.

Murdered Man Identified.

The body of the man found dead near the Weirs on the 17th inst. has been identified as that of Michael Conlon of Boston, who left that city on the night of the 13th in charge of a carload of horses bound to Littleton, N. H. He got drunk on some whiskey he took with him, and leaving the train at Meredith village to get a drink or water was unable to find his way back in time, and the train left him. He took the next freight train, Saturday forenoon, but being dirty and unshaved, and not showing his pass, was put off by the conductor for a tramp, and started on foot toward the Weirs. His suspected murderer is a tramp about forty years old, five feet ten inches high, very dark complexion, and of foreign birth.

No "Free Speech" in Canada.

Editor William O'Brien was mobbed by the Orangemen and hoodlums of Toronto on the evening of the 18th inst., and had his hat knocked off by a stone, his clothing torn and his mouth cut, while one of his companions was knocked senseless and badly cut on the head with a brick. Mr. O'Brien escaped the ruffians by taking refuge in a bicycle store, whose proprietor conducted him to a place of safety by a rear passage while the mob wrecked the store. The police offered no protection.

MARITIME NOTES.

Steamer Pinafore, Capt. Oscar Laighton, came in from the Isles of Shoals on Thursday morning last, having in tow the gondola Hard Chance, Capt. Cheney, which has been engaged in transporting coal and other heavy stores to the islands. Capt. Laighton reports the coal and ice all stowed, and that the Appledore house is now ready for summer company. The Hard Chance had on board, for the trip in, a team of A. K. Brown's which has for several weeks been actively employed at Appledore.

Schooner Gurnet, Clark master, arrived in the lower harbor on Thursday morning, 19th inst., bound for Harpswell, Me. Capt. Clark came up to the city in a boat to visit his family in the afternoon, and has since sailed. On the next trip the Gurnet will rejoin the brick fleet of the Piscataqua.

In the dearth of work consequent on the non-arrival of coal-laden vessels at the Concord railroad wharf, the yacht Arbutus sailed on a fishing expedition toward the Shoals on the 19th inst., taking out a crew of four, all officers, namely: Edward A. Ackley, captain, Andrew J. Geddie, first lieutenant, Walter Raitt, second lieutenant, John A. Ham, steward. Mr. James Crowley has so far recovered from the feelings induced by the motion of the boat on the first trip, that he talks of purchasing a genuine sailor's rig-out, and avows his purpose of soon engaging in piscatorial operations.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Mr. Thomas J. Donovan, recently appointed weigher and receiver under the general storekeeper at the navy yard, arrived in this city from New York at eleven o'clock A. M. on the 19th inst., and an hour later reported at the yard for duty.

It is stated that one of the newly appointed democratic clerks at the Kittery navy yard has introduced the phonetic system of spelling in the books of the navy department. There is nothing on record like this effort to reform the administration of our naval affairs.—Boston Record.

Mrs. Charles F. Shillaber and daughter arrived in this city on Thursday from Little Rock, Ark. They were accompanied by Miss Grace Connor, a sister of Mrs. Shillaber. Mrs. Shillaber and her little daughter will spend the summer here.

In the supreme judicial court at Alfred, on the 18th inst., the case of Winfield S. Dennett of Saco against Dennis O'Connor, an undertaker of Biddeford, was commenced before a drawn jury of which Andrew P. Fernald of Eliot, Samuel M. Chick of Wells and Nathaniel C. Bragdon of Kennebunk were members. This is a civil suit for damages on account of plaintiff's son, James W. Dennett, having died from the effects of a glass of cider taken from a keg sold by O'Connor to Frank Wildes, the keg having previously contained embalming fluid.

The work of building the extension of the Concord railroad wharf is nearly completed, and the capsilla are now being laid. As the extension has been built under the superintendence of Mr. Daniel Littlefield, the experienced ship, bridge and wharf constructer, it follows that the work has been done in the most thorough manner. The wharf projects far out beyond the others into the river, but it does not appear that it in any way interferes with navigation.

IT IS WONDERFUL

how easily rheumatism begins, and how insidiously it grows in the system, until one is startled to find himself its victim in either the acute or chronic form. He then learns the fearful tenacity of its grip and the utter powerlessness of the ordinary remedies to give relief.

Probably to no disease have physicians given more study, and none has more completely baffled their efforts to provide a specific; and until Athlophoros was discovered there was no medicine which would surely cure rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous or sick headache. Thousands of testimonials like the following prove beyond question that Athlophoros is the only reliable remedy, and that it will do all that is claimed for it.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

One year ago while suffering with a rheumatic difficulty I was induced by friends of mine to try a bottle of Athlophoros, although I had little belief in anything of the kind, but, contrary to my expectations, it gave me immediate relief, and it is with pleasure that I can now recommend it to my acquaintances, feeling sure that they will find it the remedy of the age for such difficulties, as I had tried everything else with little or no relief.

PARK H. KELLY.

Northampton, Mass., May 21, 1886.

For relief from rheumatic pains and trouble, I believe your Athlophoros is infallible. For many years I have been subject to rheumatism in its worst forms. During my last siege of sickness I was induced to try Athlophoros and found it to be all it claimed to be, a cure for rheumatism.

LEVI I. CLARK.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

TWO WOMEN KILLED.

Great excitement was occasioned in this city on Thursday evening about six o'clock by the announcement that the train due here from Boston at 5:30, and which was nearly a half hour late, had brought in from the Greenland depot the bodies of two unrecognized women, one very old and the other young, who had been killed at the Banfield road crossing (Young's crossing, as it is more generally known) by the train which left here for Boston at five o'clock. The bodies were placed in the freight house at the station and Coroner Whittier called, who after viewing them directed them to be placed in charge of Fletcher & Tanton, who removed them to their undertakers' rooms, where they were at about seven o'clock recognized by Mr. Geo. M. Huntress of Christian Shore, carriage and sleigh builder, as his mother, Mrs. Jane (Dodge) Huntress, and his wife, Mrs. Martha (Ayers) Huntress, who went out for a drive in the afternoon.

How the accident happened is not known. The elder lady, whose 80th birthday was celebrated several weeks ago, was very deaf, and the younger, whose age was about forty-five, was hard of hearing; but at the place where the disaster occurred the highway crosses the track at such an angle, and the lay of the land is such, that from a carriage approaching the highway from the direction of this city a train approaching from the same direction can be seen nearly an eighth of a mile away.

The ladies were seen driving leisurely along by Mr. John W. Caswell and Mr. Andrew J. Sides, shortly before the passage of the train; and Mr. Garland, who was in his pasture some little distance from the crossing, distinctly heard the locomotive's whistle and bell sounded, and noticed that the train stopped very quickly thereafter. The carriage was literally shattered to fragments by the collision, and both occupants must have died instantly, the elder being frightfully mangled, the younger much less so; the men of the train which brought the bodies in, thought from marks on the faces that both must have turned toward the engine at the moment they were struck. The horse was unhurt, and went to Mr. Garland's place, where it was stabled. The bodies were taken on board the train and conveyed to the Greenland depot, where they were transferred to the down train. It is possible that the engine men of the up train may be able to throw some light on the cause of this shocking accident, which at present is inexplicable.

Mrs. Jane Huntress was sister to Mrs. Moses H. Goodrich.

Bills amounting to $1495 were ordered paid.

H. F. Eldredge gave notice of his intention to fill up a sewer on his premises on Merrimac street; referred to committee on sewers.

Met the common council in convention, and the mayor reported that funds for a soldiers' monument having been raised, the Eldredge heirs were ready to make over to the city the Goodwin field, on certain conditions before recited. Voted to accept the field and terms; and Ald. Hodgdon and Littlefield, and Councilmen Cullen and Lear, were appointed a committee to draw up resolutions.

In board of aldermen, resumed;

City solicitor made an indefinite report in regard to the conduit across Mr. Wentworth's land near the Universalist church; accepted and placed on file.

Aldermen Hodgdon was called to the chair.

Samuel P. Treadwell was appointed collector of taxes.

The mayor reported that the heating apparatus for the Haven schoolhouse would be redy to put in during the summer vacation; and the committee on schoolhouses, with the mayor added, were authorized to attend to the same.

The widening of Water street was laid over for further consideration by the committee.

Reported obstruction of Newcastle avenue by a hitching post was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Adjourned for two weeks.

In Common Council, President Crowley in the chair:

A joint resolution fixing the discount on taxes promptly paid, at five per cent, was passed and sent up.

On the question of passing the bill authorizing the sale of the city farm the yeas and nays were called, and resulted as follows: Yes, Messrs. Stevens, Chas. E. Grover, John H. Grover, Littlefield, Cullen, Young, Pinder, Frisbee, Scott and Lear—ten; no, Messrs. Haddock, Griffin, Casey, McCarthy and Newton—five. Thus the yeas prevailed, and the bill was sent up for concurrence.

Adjourned.

PORTSMOUTH BARBERS' ASSOCIATION.

The barbers of this city met at the rooms of Mr. John E. Roberts on Thursday evening, and formed a permanent organization under the name of Portsmouth Barbers' Association. John E. Roberts was elected president, Will C. Randall secretary, and Herman C. Moore treasurer.

It was voted to hold the next annual picnic on the second Thursday in August at Wallis' sands, Rye beach; to have a brass band and a grand clambake, and sell tickets to persons outside the association at fifty cents each. Also to invite the barbers of Dover and Exeter to join in the picnic as guests of the association.

Committees were appointed to make the necessary arrangements, and the meeting adjourned to Wednesday evening, June 16th.

A Sea Sick Passenger,

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wine glassful full or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes the brackish water—often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, the western pioneer and miner, the bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manuel, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are small and as easy to take as sugar. One pill a dose. Price 25 cents.

take him. I may be detained, so you are not to wait dinner."

"It is rather far for Tommy's legs, father," said Bab, timidly, "and it looks like snow."

"If he is tired I shall carry him," said Mr. Tregage, in his uncompromising voice; and Barbara had to watch the pair set out with many misgivings on behalf of her little brother.

Her mother was suffering more than usual, and she scarcely noticed when the flakes began to fall; but the boys rushed in from their play eager to tell of the unwonted delight of a game in the snow. The wind rose, whirled the eddying flakes about the window panes and drifted them into every crack and cranny, till Mrs. Tregage became alarmed for her husband and Tommy; and though Barbara tried to calm her by assurances that the storm would soon cease and that her father would certainly wait in shelter till it was over, yet her own fears grew and the short hours of daylight seemed flying.

At last she determined to make her way to a neighbor and ask for companionship in seeking the pair along the cliff; and, clothing herself as warmly as she could, she was about to set out, when there came a sharp knock at the door, and with a cry of "Father!" on her lips, she rushed to open it, to be for an instant blinded by the icy blast and the thick whiteness of the falling snow. The children raised a shout of "Mr. Gottorp! Mr. Eric!" and Bab perceived it was not her father who stood there, but the tall Dane, whose coming seemed scarcely a surprise, so constantly had his presence been with her in her dreams.

It seemed to her that this welcome guest had not been within the house three minutes before all her cares were transferred to his broad shoulders, he so quickly learned the cause of the anxious faces of mother and children, and, in less time than it takes to tell, was equipped with wraps and restoratives, ready for the search it seemed a matter of course he should make for the truants. He paused at the door as Barbara held it open for him and took one glimpse of the peaceful parlor, with the ruddy firelight glowing on the group of children and the frail mother, then looking down at the girl's sweet, earnest face, raised toward him as she gave directions as to his road, a wave of love for her, and pity for the news he felt it quite possible he might have to bring her, made him bend and press a kiss on her forehead, as he said fervently:

"My darling, try and believe I will bring them safely."

He felt the light pressure of her hand, and saw the soft light of love in her eyes; and in this fashion, in the moment of suspense and anxiety, their troth was plighted.

Eric Gottorp found his task was no light one, and, accustomed as he was to face all weathers, yet he wished he had sought help before starting, as the path across the downs was impossible to trace, and he could only guess its whereabouts from the distance he remembered it to be from the cliff. He battled on, however, as quickly as was practicable, giving a call now and then that carried far in spite of the dense atmosphere, and, as he paused to listen, he fancied, far away to his left, he heard a faint reply. Continuing his shouts, and following the direction of the answering sounds, he came at length on a pitiable spectacle. Mr. Tregage, in his persistent endeavors to reach his home, had wandered from the path; and in attempting to regain it—burdened as he was with Tommy—had tried to make his way over a fence, against which the snow had drifted to a thickness of more than four feet. He had fallen, and—still clasping the little boy in his arms—was lying well nigh frozen and in severe pain, when Gottorp's welcome cry came to give him hope of rescue. Eric found to his dismay that the poor man's leg was broken, and Tommy's condition demanded immediate care, so he was obliged to leave the unlucky schoolmaster while he carried the child to his home. He first, with all a sailor's handiness, contrived a temporary splint with his walking stick and a long scarf, and, covering the sufferer with a wrap, he went to seek help to convey him to St. Juliotts.

The day of the snow storm became almost as memorable in the village as the night of the wreck, and Barbara speedily forgot the anxiety and suspense she had endured in the new and happy life before her.

During his enforced absence from his duties Mr. Tregage had many opportunities of discovering that foreigners are not all alike, and his gratitude for the Dane's kindly help ripened into respect and affection, so that when the flush of spring brightened St. Juliotts, it was with no half hearted consent he gave his daughter to Eric Gottorp. Barbara has told her new sisters many tales of her native village; but she and her husband share between them the little history of "Somebody's Secret."—"M. R. L. in Cassell's Magazine.

A veritable boon to harassed housekeepers has been discovered. This is the "Witch's Ladder," "a charm of marvellous power," says Walford's Antiquarian, from which we take the following trustworthy directions for its manufacture: "Take four wheaten straws, tie the two together, top and bottom, for one side of the ladder. Tie the other two in the same manner, and then insert short straws between for steps. Now take small feathers and place them up each side of the ladder, and the thing is done. Now, if aught go wrong, if fire will not burn, not irons heat, let the ladder be waved to and fro in the air, while the request is muttered, and all will be right."—New York Post.

A Sea Sick Passenger,

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wineglassful full or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes the brackish water —often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, the western pioneer and miner, the bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manuel, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

FAIRY LAMPS OF THE SEA.

Starfish That Sparkle Like Brilliant Gems. Phosphorescent Jellyfish.

When the contents of a dredge are landed upon the deck at midday the curious shapes and colors of animals alone attract attention; but if they are examined at night they develop a new beauty, gleaming with a wondrous light that is so little understood. The starfishes brought up at certain places are all seemingly heated to a white heat, the gleams running up and down the arms, making the animal a marvel of beauty. Especially among the stars known as ophinrans is the light most brilliant and interesting. Even the very young ones sparkle like gems. A dredge has been taken from a great depth fairly overflowing with these dazzling creatures, telling a wonderful story of the condition of things below the surface. These are the lights of the bottom, and in shoaler water we shall find anemones and corals emitting a wonderful light.

Perhaps the most striking light given is a group of polyps, growing upon a stem three or four feet in length, resembling a tall candlestick. The name of this creature is the umbellularia, and it was first found in deep water off the coast of Greenland, the trawl bringing up such large number that it was evident that the ship had passed over a veritable forest of them. Imagine a corn-field a mile or so below the surface, the stalks four feet long and the ears emitting a golden greenish light of wonderful softness; think of this as spread over acres of surface to an indefinite extent, the lights waving here and there in gentle undulations; imagine fishes darting through them with gleaming headlights, others outlined in fire, while far above are great globes of light, with soft aureolas, and some idea of this world beneath the sea can be formed.

The jellyfish, or medusæ, are among the most remarkable of light givers, and, with few exceptions, they are luminous, some being more so than others, and much of the phosphorescence of the Pacific, as seen from the decks of vessels, is due to these creatures—that are so beautifully formed and so delicate in color, yet in reality are 95 per cent. water; in all jelly fish 5 per cent. will represent the solid part.

In some, as pelagia, the entire animal is luminous, its shape being outlined in full, as it were, while in others only certain portions are light emitting. Not only are these creatures phosphorescent, but the colors are different; some emit a golden light; in others it is a green or azure, and some seem to combine several tints. Again, certain ones are luminous all the time; others show their light in a fitful way or when disturbed; and during the autumn of the year, when these radiant creatures are hurled against the rocks and ground up, their lights seem to combine in turning the entire ocean into a seething caldron.

Among the crustaceans, or, as they are commonly called, the crabs, we find some interesting light givers. Several years ago some explorers on our southwestern coast found that as night came on the snow sludge along shore gave out light, and when it was fully dark the display was extremely remarkable; at every step flashes of light splashed about everywhere, tinted with an intense blue hue, and the scene presented could be duplicated if it were possible for man to walk through molten metal. The little creature that produced this light was extremely small, but what it lacked in size it made up in numbers, the cold, icy water being fairly alive with them, each one flashing like a gem.

Probably nearly all of the deep sea forms are light givers, either over their entire surface or upon certain places. One which I call to mind has luminous bands upon its legs, while another, with an unpronounceable name, has luminous eyes. The worms that hide in the mud are brilliant light givers, some emitting lights of several colors. The sea plumes and fans of the south are gorgeous in their lilac light. In fact, in some places everything brought to the surface is a light giver, so that we can well imagine that while the deep sea has no sunlight, nature has done her best to compensate for the omission.

Even among the shells we find light givers. The little cleodora, with its little fairy ship or shell, emits a light now of intense blue, again red or white, while the pholas, the little bivalve that enters solid rock with all the ease of the miner, has a brilliant bluish light that continues even after the death of the animal, and as long ago as the time of Pliny a writer said that those who dined upon the pholas appeared to be eating fire, so vivid was the phosphorescence. Some interesting experiments have been tried with this light giver. Thus by placing one in honey its luminosity was retained for a year. As may be surmised such experiments were made with the idea of rendering the phosphorescence of the pholas permanent, and if the secret of animal luminosity could be discovered and applied to the wants of the man it would without doubt revolutionize existing methods.

We have seen that the deep sea and shallow waters have their lights, yet if all these were combined the most delicately adjusted thermometer would fail to show the slightest elevation of temperature, and this is the peculiarity of phosphorescent light. It is heatless, glows in vacuum, under water—in fact, in all conditions where ordinary light fails. If it is a combustion no one can prove it, and a consumption of organic fuel, accompanied by light but not heat, is difficult to understand. Endless theories have been propounded to explain the phenomena, and it is safe to say that very little more is known to-day than was advanced where phosphorescence was first observed.—San Francisco Call.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that statements true and without exaggeration.

CHARLES MCKAY,
Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when bodily affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. MCCARTHY,
35 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have called to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate cords and causing inflammation, coughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinated suffering, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00.

Don't Get Caught

This spring with your blood full of impurities, your digestion impaired, your appetite poor, kidneys and liver torpid, and whole system liable to be prostrated by disease—but get yourself into good condition, and ready for the changing and warmer weather, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, giving an appetite, and for a general spring medicine.

Martin Phinney, a drunken and brutal rough of New Haven, Conn., aged thirty-four years, on the 18th inst. met his wife as she was going to work at the rubber factory, and fatally stabbed her with a pocket knife. She had been married to him but seven months, and his abuse compelled her to leave him a month ago. The murderer was locked up.

Fox Hunting Extraordinary.

A fox hunt recently occurred in Kent, Conn., which was in many respects the most remarkable the country has ever known. There was no anise-seed-bag nonsense about it. The game was a real fox, and Mrs. Monroe, the only hunter, was in at the death. She was feeding chickens in the yard when a fox entered and seized a hen, but before it could escape Mrs. Monroe seized the invader by the tail. Holding the hen firmly in its mouth the fox attempted to drag Mrs. Monroe away to its lair. The heroic woman retained her grip, however, and called loudly for help. It came in the shape of two sturdy dogs, which immediately despatched the fox. It must be apparent to the most careless mind that this method of fox-hunting posessed many claims to consideration. No fields of grain were injured, no rider broke a limb, no expense was incurred. But, for all that, the excitement produced by the encounter was intense, the dogs had the pleasure of killing the fox, and the gallant heroine of the chase possesses the brush. Surely Connecticut economy and pluck often produce great results.

CHAUTAUQUA SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSEMBLY.

The executive committee of the Methodist Chautauqua Sunday School assembly held a meeting on the 17th inst. at Great Falls, and arranged the programme, so far as possible, which is to be carried out on the Methodist camp ground at East Epping, Aug. 15th to 19th, inclusive. The full programme will be issued shortly.

Negotiations are now pending with Bishop R. S. Foster, but the following can be secured positively: Drs. Townsend and Newell of Boston university; Professors Rich and Hayes of Bates college; Senator Blair, Ex-Senator Patterson, Rev. D. C. Knowles, D. D., Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., Rev. N. G. Clark, D. D., and Mrs. Mary A. Livermore.

The music will furnish a grand feature under the direction of Rev. J. H. Haines, assisted by competent vocal and instrumental performers. The Biblical normal work will be under the care of Rev. J. M. Durrell of Lawrence; the Sunday school normal work will be under the care of Rev. O. S. Baketel of Portsmouth; the primary work will be in the hands of Mrs. Mary C. Cutter, and the children's meetings will be led by Miss Annie S. Harlow of Lowell.

The contractors for the construction of a new sewerage system at Bar Harbor have thrown up the sponge. There was too much rock in it. There is no question but the drainage from the pocket books of visitors will be in good working condition the coming season.

The editor of one of the Boston newspapers never enters a theatre by the general entrance, lest his judgment upon the merits of the play should be influenced by contact with the lobby!

AN OLD PRINTER'S BILL.

Mr. G'Alex Emery, the pedicurist, has in his possession a printer's bill which reads as follows:

Mr. William Badger to J. Libbey Dr.
1797. To Postage on the Chronicle and the printer's bill for one year ending Dec. 31, 1797, 4.20.
Rec'd Payment,
4.20 cents. Jeremiah Libbey.

The writing is as legible, and the paper seemingly as good (though somewhat brown) as when the receipt was written. There is nothing to indicate where the Chronicle of 1797 was printed, excepting that postage is charged for, which shows that Portsmouth was not the place of publication, as William Badger resided here. The paper was probably the Boston Chronicle.

IT IS WONDERFUL

how easily rheumatism begins, and how insidiously it grows in the system, until one is startled to find himself its victim in either the acute or chronic form. He then learns the fearful tenacity of its grip and the utter powerlessness of the ordinary remedies to give relief.

Probably to no disease have physicians given more study, and none has more completely baffled their efforts to provide a specific; and until Athlophoros was discovered there was no medicine which would surely cure rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous or sick headache. Thousands of testimonials like the following prove beyond question that Athlophoros is the only reliable remedy, and that it will do all that is claimed for it.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

One year ago while suffering with a rheumatic difficulty I was induced by friends of mine to try a bottle of Athlophoros, although I had little belief in anything of the kind, but, contrary to my expectations, it gave me immediate relief, and it is with pleasure that I can now recommend it to my acquaintances, feeling sure that they will find it the remedy of the age for such difficulties, as I had tried everything else with little or no relief.

PARK H. KELLY.

Northampton, Mass., May 21, 1886.

For relief from rheumatic pains and trouble, I believe your Athlophoros is infallible. For many years I have been subject to rheumatism in its worst forms. During my last siege of sickness I was induced to try Athlophoros and found it to be all it claimed to be, a cure for rheumatism.

LEVI I. CLARK.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

THE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A gentleman who lives close to Young's crossing, where the two ladies were killed last Thursday afternoon by a Boston & Maine railroad train, informs us that he was in the barn but a few rods from the crossing when the accident occurred, and heard the crash of the collision, which was followed by the speedy stopping of the train. He heard the whistle and bell as usual, but there was nothing to attract his especial attention before the crash, and he heard no outcry by any one. One of the ladies was still breathing when he arrived at the scene of the disaster. Shortly afterward he observed in the road on the Portsmouth side of the railway, and extending from a woodpile some distance down the road, to the track, marks of carriage wheels which showed that it had gone from one side of the road to the other in a serpentine course for the entire distance; but he was unable to say whether these erratic tracks were made by Mr. Huntress' carriage or by some other, or whether they commenced at the woodpile and ended at the track, or commenced at the track and ended at the woodpile.

Engineer Allen, who was running the engine which struck the team, says his train was running as usual and he was looking ahead of the train, and when within four car-lengths of the crossing his fireman called to him that a team was on the crossing. Almost the next instant he saw a horse's head just in front of the train, and on his side of the engine, and before he had time to think, hardly, the engine had passed over the crossing. He stopped as soon as possible and ran back to where the two women were found lying beside the track, both dead. They were put on board the train and taken to Greenland depot, as before reported. The railroad employes on the train, and section men in the vicinity of the scene of the accident, were summoned to appear in this city Friday afternoon to attend an inquest, but it was decided afterward not to hold one, the disaster being regarded as clearly accidental.

The wreck of the buggy was brought into this city Friday forenoon, on a wagon, and its shattered condition showed that it must have received a terrible blow.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, May 20th.

Owing to the absence of Judge Batchelder at the supreme court, Hon. M. Bufford presided.

William Hurley, charged with drunkenness, was let off on probation.

William Griffin, another drunk, was not so lucky, being sent to jail for not paying a fine of $3 and costs.

A GOOD TIME IN YORK.

The York Histrionic Society gave their annual May party on Thursday evening last, in S. S. S. hall at York village. This was the closing event of a series of dances held during the winter, not for pecuniary profit but social enjoyment, and it was as successful an affair of the kind as was ever conducted in Old York. About twenty-five persons were in attendance from this city, going over in a barge and several single teams. The music, supplied by the Music hall orchestra of this city, was of course excellent; from eight o'clock to nine a promenade concert was given, and dancing then held the floor until one, except during the intermission, when cake and ice cream were served; there were sixteen dances on the card. Mr. H. E. Evans of York was floor manager, and Mr. Frank W. Moses and Miss Pauline Varrell of this city led the grand march. The Histrionic society includes in its membership many of the most highly respected ladies and gentlemen of York, and the party of 150 persons present on this occasion was made up of the best people in the town.

WANTS THE PUBLIC LIBRARY OPEN IN THE DAYTIME.

Mr. Editor: The only day during the week on which books can be taken from the public library appears by the notice published in your paper to be from three to six o'clock on Saturday afternoon. It would seem that this is hardly affording those living at a distance from Congress hall a convenient opportunity to obtain books or to enjoy the privileges of the library. The library at Kittery I am told is open on every other week day, and throughout the entire day. Cannot Portsmouth afford to have the public library open in the day time except between three and six P. M.? SUBURBAN.

DECLINED WITH THANKS.

Under date of May 13th Henry Austin, Esq., late of Rye, has notified the chairman of the Rockingham county democratic convention that he shall not qualify on July 1st for the position of register of deeds of Rockingham county, to which office he was elected in November last. The state of his health, and his removal to Boston, are given as the reasons. We are glad this matter is settled. Shortly after the election it was said by a republican paper that Mr. Austin's nomination was intended as a dummy one, to keep some undesirable candidate off the ticket; and that he having unexpectedly been elected, would decline the office. On the strength of a personal note from Mr. Austin we denied this, and asserted that he would qualify when the time came; but it seems now that the first statement was correct.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The secretary of the navy has granted Paymaster Cosby's request to continue his residence in Portsmouth, instead of occupying quarters at the navy yard as contemplated by the department.

George W. Guppy, Esq., one of the recently appointed clerks at the navy yard, is reported as having caught on to his clerical work with great alacrity. This is not to be wondered at. Mr. Guppy, who is a good penman as well as a good writer, has had a training in a printing office, where accuracy always is the rule. A man who could make a living publishing a democratic newspaper in Portsmouth, when his party was in the minority in the city, county, state and nation, ought to be able to be of service in almost any clerical capacity on a navy yard.

The Emerald on her 9:30 trip to the navy yard on Friday last had a slight list to port, occasioned by the paymaster's bag of coin taken over for payment of the sons of toil who have learned to labor and to wait on the yard. Friday was by no means an unlucky day to many.

PERSONAL.

Walter L. Harriman, Esq., formerly of this city, and ex-county solicitor of Rockingham, was in town on Friday.

The Misses Foster of Richards avenue have arrived home after passing the winter in Philadelphia and Washington.

Prof. James Parsons with his family will leave Philadelphia for their summer cottage at Little Boar's Head, on the first of June.

Admiral Thomas T. Craven opened his seaside cottage at Kittery Point for the season on Friday.

There was a light audience at Music hall on Friday evening, but those who were present saw a very strong drama excellently played, and were generous in their recognition of the merits of the play and the performers. It was a highly enjoyable entertainment.

"I keep the goods (Athlophoros), and have sold more of it than of all other remedies for rheumatism for two years past," is a brief recital of the experience of Frank Emerson, a prominent druggist of Lawrence, Massachusetts.

Hon. Albert Palmer, ex-mayor of Boston, died May 21st, aged fifty-six years. He was born in Candia, this state, and was educated at Phillips Exeter academy and Dartmouth college. He was a republican in early life, but went over to the democracy with Gen. Butler, and as a democrat was elected mayor of Boston in 1883.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in the form, in the extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid oozed out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that statement is true and without exaggeration. CHARLES MCKAY,
Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. MCCARTHY,
53 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age --A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and get a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS:—Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home.

A SPOOL OF THREAD.

What Cotton Goes Through Before It Reaches the Needle.

Few people ever stop to think of the twistings and turnings and the various processes that cotton fiber goes through after it is taken from the pods before it is wound up on a spool and ready for the housewife's needle. The whole story is told, however, in a small space in one of the cases in the hall in the National museum given up to an exhibition of textile fabrics. This is one of the many object lessons in the museum, which, combined, are intended to tell the story of a man as he exists on the earth.

First is shown a specimen of cotton in the pod just as it is picked, without having the seed removed. Next is shown a specimen of the same cotton after it has been ginned and the black seeds have been removed. The Sea Island cotton is used for thread on account of the length of the fiber. A sample of the sacking in which the cotton is baled is also shown. Then the cotton is supposed to have been baled and shipped to the thread factory. Here the first thing that is done with the cotton is to subject it to the "picker" process, by which the cotton from several bales is mixed to secure uniformity. During the picker process much waste, in the form of dust, dirt and short fibers, are separated from the good fibers by the picker. Next the "picked" cotton is wound on a machine, in sheets or laps, into a roll.

The next process illustrated by a practical exhibit is the carding by which the sheets of cotton are combed or run out into long parallel fibers. The cotton is next seen drawn through a trumpet shaped opening, which condenses it into a single strand or "silver." Then eight such silvers are run together into one, six of the strands thus produced are drawn into one, and again six of the strands from the last drawing are combined into one. Then comes the slubbing or fast "roving" process, which consists of winding the strand and bobbin. Two strands are twisted and again wound on a bobbin. After a number of other twistings and windings, during which the strand is gradually reduced in size, until it begins to assume a thread like appearance, two strands of this fine "roving" are run together and twisted, under considerable tension, on a bobbin that makes 7,000 revolutions a minute. Two of the cords thus produced are then wound together on a spool, and then twisted from that to another spool. The two cord thread thus produced is transferred thence to another spool, and then three threads of two cords each are twisted together, forming six cord thread.

One who has followed the process sees the cotton gradually transformed from a wide band or sheet of loose cotton to a compact thread that will pass through the eye of a needle. The six cord thread is at last taken from a bobbin and reeled into a skein, in which form it is bleached or dyed. Then it is wound back upon the skein upon a big spool, from which it is supplied to little white birch spools from which it is wound in regular courses, and is then ready for the market. The machine that regulates the last winding measures the number of yards wound on each spool. The spools are made of various sizes to hold from 200 to 12,000 yards of thread. The labels that decorate the end of the spools when they are sold are last put on. They are cut and pasted on by machinery with great rapidity.—Washington Star.

How Beecher Exercised.

There has been much talk of the physical exercise that Mr. Beecher took; but one of the earliest and most amusing features of it remains to be mentioned. When building fame came upon him he very quickly discovered that a man could not safely drive his brain under continuous high pressure without at the same time exercising his body. His means were then small and his domestic surroundings very modest. But he had a clean, dry and roomy cellar. He procured to be delivered there a load of sand. One day he shoveled it from one end of the cellar to the other, and the next day he shoveled it back to the old position. This he continued until his brother Tom discovered it, and drove him to the more intelligent and wholesome exercises of the gymnasium. This story comes privately from Rev. Dr. Bolles, of Cleveland, to whom Mr. Beecher himself told it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

How Like Cured Like.

There is in Philadelphia a citizen who used to be a hard drinker, but now shudders at the thought of whisky. He thus tells of his cure: "After I drank so much that I became a nuisance to my wife she tried the whisky cure. In the home where she put me they poured whisky over the meat we ate, the potatoes, the fish, the salads, the peas, butter and tomatoes. There was whisky in our coffee, our soup, our milk, our drinking water, and the water we washed in. We went to bed after eating veal stuffed with whisky, and got up to clean our teeth with whisky and water and enjoy the day on a breakfast soaked in milk and whisky. I stood it for a month. Unadulterated water is good enough for me."—New York Sun.

Accident in a Cooking School.

The other day something slipped and boiling water ran over Miss Maria Parlos's hands. There was a little cry from the hundred or more women in the room, but not a sound, not a change of a muscle on the face of the lecturer. A little soda on the raw, red flesh, a handkerchief torn in halves, and the business of the hour went on, those hands swelling into puffy balls of pain before her hearers' eyes. She did not flinch from her business nor abate one jot or one tittle of her running fire of jests till the morning's baking was out of the oven and the work of the session was done.—Brooklyn Union.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, transmitting the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all palliatives and simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a lingering termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made rightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00.

A New Boston Notion.

The Boston stock market, which in times past was the source of supply of safe investments for conservative corporations and financiers in New England, has of late taken a very decidedly speculative turn. The present craze seems to be what is known as "West End," which if we are correctly informed, is a corporation designed as a land speculation, with collateral branches of business such as buying and controlling horse railways and developing a means of relieving confiding investors of their surplus funds with an assurance that they never afterward will be annoyed by the trouble of re-investing the same. There were, we are told, 250,000 shares issued at $1 00 each share, but a persistent bull movement has carried the stock up to about $39 per share, for no other reason than that the several thousand shares bought to-day are expected to be sold to-morrow at a slight advance, and so on until the crash comes, when the party with the horns and hoofs will take the last person on the train.

The more unreasonable the proposed schemes of the West End, the more likely are the speculators to purchase its shares. The projectors promise all sorts of miracles. The legislature is to be asked to "legalize" a partial destruction of Boston common, and for aught we learn to subvert the orthodoxy of Park Street church itself, change the color of the blue blood of the native Bostonian, and perhaps make a pictorial military and naval history of the Atlantic Monthly! In fine, the concern proposes to raise Cain with the associations, traditions and good morals of dear old Boston. It has, it is suggested, debauched some portion of the press, approached the honest legislators of Beacon Hill, and retained no one knows who to do nobody can guess what. There's where the smile occurs. Its very mystery charms, cajoles and captures its customers. People buy its shares in the expectation that something extraordinary will turn up, and in this they are about right. The brokers in the meantime find employment either in speculation or a "purely commission business." Conservative stocks wait while the West End has the right of way and comes into the board and loads its shares of questionable value upon confiding buyers. While there is not the rush for shares seen at the scramble for John Law's Mississippi Scheme and South Sea operations a hundred and seventy years ago, the speculation is one of that kind, if not of that degree. It will be a disgrace to Massachusetts if the pet scheme of this enterprise (?) to cut up Boston Common for railway convenience of speculators, is permitted.

The Last Bond Call.

The secretary of the treasury on the 20th inst. issued the 149th call for the redemption of bonds; it is for $19,717,500 of the three per cent loan of 1882, and interest on these bonds will cease after July 1st, 1887. This cleans up the last of the bonds which are redeemable at the pleasure of the government, leaving only those issues which mature later at the distance of several years from this date.

A Lo Account Nobleman.

The French Marquis de la Tourasse, who committed suicide last week under the wheels of a train near Canton, Mass., had nothing noble about him except his title. At one time immensely rich, he fled to this country ten years ago a beggar, having squandered not only his own property but 700,000 francs held in trust by him. He left in France his wife and several children, and the wife from her private fortune made good one-half the deficit. Tourosse, under the name of August de Sempe, several years ago married a woman in Boston, though his wife was still living. The new wife died a few months ago, leaving two small children on his hands. A month ago he wrote to his daughter in France, representing that he was in a high position in this country, and begging her to come here and live with him, his real object being to get her to care for his children. She came about two weeks ago, and on discovering her father's real circumstances, determined to return to her comfortable home in Paris. Her father grew frantic in his efforts to dissuade her. He followed her to the train which she took for New York, and made a sensational scene on the cars. The daughter refused to remain with him, and just after the train passed Canton he dropped between the cars and was instantly killed.

O'Brien Again Mobbed.

Editor O'Brien addressed an audience of 1200 people in the skating rink at Kingston, Ont., on the evening of the 20th inst. A large crowd of Orangemen gathered outside, and the moment Mr. O'Brien and his small party of immediate personal friends appeared on the street they were assailed with bricks and broken paving stones, and a number of them considerably hurt, though all escaped with their lives. The cowardly and ferocious mob—a mob is always cowardly and ferocious—smashed the windows and doors of several houses with stones, and wrecked the office of the Canadian Freeman, the Irish Catholic paper. The police protection afforded Mr. O'Brien and his friends was conspicuous through there not being any.

President Cleveland will take a vacation. We are glad of it. Although it is not in accord with the sentiments expressed by the democratic newspapers when the republicans were in power, yet it is proper that a man who works so constantly as Mr. Cleveland has done since he has been in the office of president, should take a rest. The president is laborious in many details, and will not be run in any sense. He personally investigates nearly every question coming before him. It would be a calamity if he should break down from overwork. The outing is to be for ten days from the 26th inst., at Saranac lake. Later in the season, we hope he will come to the Wentworth and receive the benefit of the sea air of the New Hampshire coast.

The South Congregational society in Boston (Rev. Edw. E. Hale's) have voted to sell their edifice in Union Park street, and to build a new church elsewhere. It is stated that the new location will probably be between Commonwealth and Huntington avenues. The wealthy Christians of Boston have a decided preference for going to heaven by way of the Back-bay.

The proposed departure of Ex-Senator Cheney this week may have some effect upon the senatorial election in June. With Mr. Cheney out of the country Mr. Chandler regards himself as good as elected, and already begins to feel a pang of political sympathy for his defeated competitors.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.

For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 43 Granite St.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1881 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PARDEVOYE, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

Another Fatal Railroad Accident.

The shock given to the community on Thursday evening of last week by the sudden death at Young's crossing of the wife and mother of Mr. Geo. Melvin Huntress, was renewed on Saturday evening by the intelligence that Mrs. Emeline A. Shaw of Pleasant street, widow of John Shaw, aged seventy years and five months, had been killed on the Concord railroad by the up train, and her mutilated remains brought in to the station by the train from Concord. The details of the shocking affair appear to be as follows:

The old lady in the afternoon attended the funeral of the victims of Thursday's accident, and then started to walk to the locality of the disaster, going by the Christian Shore streets to the Creek, where she by mistake took the Concord & Portsmouth track instead of the Eastern. She had just passed the overhead bridge of the Greenland road, above the Plains, when the train leaving this city at 5:15 overtook her, she being then walking beside the track, on the right-hand side as she was facing. The engineer sounded the whistle, merely as a precaution, and the section men, who were at work a few hundred feet up the track, waved to her with their hats to step farther from the rails; but the old lady, who was quite deaf, took no notice of either signal until just as the engine was abreast of her, when she partially turned toward it as though intending to step upon the track. The engine touched her lightly on the left shoulder, and the baggage car grazed her hip hard enough to turn her partly around but not to throw her clear of the train, for after retaining her feet long enough to allow the first passenger car to go clear of her she feel beneath the wheels of the second passenger car, and was crushed to death, her body from the waist down being frightfully mangled.

The train was immediately stopped, although the engineer had no thought that the woman had been killed, supposing that the light blow struck her by the engine had thrown her from the track without seriously harming her. The body was taken to the Greenland station, and on the arrival of the down train was brought to this city, where the deceased was quickly identified.

She was accompanied at the time of the accident by a shepherd dog, which refused to leave the remains, stopping with them at Greenland and coming to the city with them; who the dog belonged to was not known positively, though the police were informed on Sunday that it is owned by a gentleman named Brackett.

It is thought by some that the deceased was simply endeavoring to reach her home, and not going to the scene of Thursday's accident; and that becoming bewildered she wandered up the track to her death.

Her funeral will take place at two o'clock this (Monday) afternoon from her late residence, No. 56 Pleasant street.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Sunday evening a man named Fred Turner, employed on the extension of the Jones brewery and living on Vaughan street, between Deer street and the railroad crossing, attempted to commit suicide by taking strychnine. Dr. Berry was called and administered antidotes, but up to a late hour Sunday night it could not be told whether he would recover or die. His wife is a sister of Mrs. Webster, proprietor of the Webster house, and is employed there. Domestic infelicity is the reputed cause of the rash act.

ELECTRICITY ADRIFT.

Lost Saturday evening Mr. Alfred S. Trafton, blacksmith, living on North road, alighted from his wagon at the Creek, and led his horse up to a hitching post at the edge of the Eldredge brewery grounds to secure him. On taking hold of the hitching chain he received an electric shock of sufficient severity to knock him over, and cause him to change his mind as to hitching his horse there. He reported the affair to the police, and Officer Smart proceeded to investigate the phenomenon by cautiously advancing the tip of his forefinger toward the hitching chain until actual contact took place, when he also went down all in a heap. The cause of these occurrences appeared to be as follows:

The derrick used for building the abutments for the new railroad bridge at the Creek street crossing is stayed by guys of wire rope, and one of these guys passes near an electric-light wire; and its lower end is near if not in actual contact with the hitching post. It could not be seen that the two wires were touching, but they were near enough for the transfer of all the electricity required to knock a man over. There was considerable spare end to the guy, which was coiled up on boards placed on the ground; and the officer after being upset went along and gave the coil a kick, when sparks appeared to fly from it at a hundred points. After making arrangements to prevent any one else from trying to use the bewitched hitching post that night, the officer temporarily terminated his electrical studies.

THE FITZ JOHN PORTER STATUE.

The New York Tribune, in an item concerning the bequest of Mr. Robert H. Eddy for an equestrian statue of Gen. Fitz John Porter in this city, says the persons named were second cousins. To a Tribune reporter Gen. Porter said on Friday:

Mr. Eddy was my guardian when I was a boy in New Hampshire, and later in life we were like brothers. My son, Robert Eddy Porter, was named after him. The bequest to my son is a surprise to me. Some time ago Mr. Eddy wrote to me that he intended to leave some money for a monument if I did not object, requesting me to destroy the letter and make no further mention of the subject if I consented. I acted on his expressed wish, although I would have preferred a donation of money to the Phillips academy at Exeter, N. H., where I received my early education. Mr. Eddy was not only a warm friend of mine, but an ardent admirer, and his estimate of my worth exceeded my own. I have received no information from the executors of his will, but I suppose the published report of the will to be correct.

"HOW TO BE HAPPY."

The subject in the Universalist church yesterday was from the history of Haman, the text being, Esther, 5-13: "Yet all this availeth me nothing so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the king's gate."

Haman, the prime minister to Xerxes, king of Persia, was jealous of Mordecai the Jew. Haman was in high office, and had splendid honors and much dignity of position. Yet he stooped to be jealous of Mordecai, because the latter had done some slight favor to the king and was treated with a sort of patronizing kindness. Haman coveted what to him should have been undesirable.

Jealousy is of two kinds. One is uneasiness for fear that goodwill, interest, affection, belonging to self, is being transferred to another. The other is vigilance and anxiety for public or individual character or honor.

Envy is different from either, inasmuch as we are envious of those who possess things not belonging to us.

A sustained jealousy of the first kind is a plain self-condemnation. It arises from a subtle self-consciousness that we are not as good as that other person. When we who go on foot or in horse-cars allow the fact that some men drive splendid teams to rob us of our pleasure, we are Haman-like, and say to Nature, "All this availeth me nothing so long as I see Modecai the Jew sitting at the king's gate." If we have the simple, plain truth in our worship, let no Modecai in another church disturb us. To be happy we must trust our own worth. Make ourselves so that no one can afford to slight us, and if they do, pity them. Of all that the Father has given you, you shall lose nothing, neither is any man able to pluck them out.

BASE BALL.

The game at Dover on Friday afternoon of last week between the High school nine of this city and the Dover High school nine, was won by the Dovers, score twenty-five to nineteen; only seven innings were played, the Dover boys scoring seven runs in their half of the last inning, it being then so dark that the fielders could not see the ball.

NO SHORT HAUL IN THIS.

Teams were on Saturday engaged in hauling gravel from the pit on Sherburne road, to mend the road near Hon. Frank Jones' summer residence, a distance, we should say, of between three and four miles.

MARITIME NOTES.

Among the charters reported last week was one of a schooner with 1000 tons of coal from Baltimore to this port, at $1.25.

The schooner Nautilus, Perkins master, arrived at this port on the 21st inst. from Boston with salt to E. F. Sise & Co.

The next attraction at Music hall will be Clark's female minstrels, who are to appear on Thursday evening, June 24. Manager Ayers has received notice from the manager of Janauschek saying that she is rapidly recovering from the injuries received by her fall at Newport, R. I., and will be able to travel again in about two weeks. She will keep her engagement in this city, and will appear in Music hall on Friday evening, June 17th.

Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor of the Methodist church, has been invited by Storer Post, G. A. R., to deliver an address in memory of the members of the post who have died during the year. The invitation has been accepted, and the address will be given at G. A. R. hall on Sunday afternoon, the 29th inst.

The body of George Roberts, who committed suicide at Providence, R. I., last week, was brought to Dover point on Friday night, and the funeral and interment took place there on Saturday.

The funeral of the victims of the recent railroad crossing accident took place Saturday afternoon, from the house of Mr. Huntress on Christian Shore. The younger Mrs. Huntress leaves two sons, aged respectively ten and fourteen years.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music

Ranks with the very best, and no Sunday School management should adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.

Voices of Praise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) Rev. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, upright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Vestry Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.

Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.

For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.

Naval Intelligence.

Assistant Engineer T. C. Bowers has been ordered to duty at the New York navy yard.

Lieutenant Cameron Mc R. Winslow has been detached from the Galena, and ordered to Newport for instruction in torpedo service.

Chief Engineer Elijah Laws has reported his return home, having been detached from the Mohican April 30th, and has been placed on waiting orders.

Rear Admiral Chandler, commanding the Asiatic squadron, reports to the navy department under date of Yokohama, April 22d, the following disposition of the vessels of the squadron: The Palos and Omaha were at Nagasaki, and were to proceed to Yokohama about May 1st; the Essex was absent on her search for the supposed survivors of the missing American barque Abbie Carver, off the coast of Formosa; the Monocacy, Marion and Brooklyn were at Yokohama, where the battalions were being put through the various manœuvres. The general health of officers and men was excellent. Two cases of supposed cholera had appeared at Tokio, but had not been definitely decided to be such by medical experts.

A Sea Sick Passenger,

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wine glassful full or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes the brackish water—often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, the western pioneer and miner, the bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manual, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

The Frankfort Gazette confirms the reported discovery of a plot at Novo Tcherkask to kill the czar.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

The steamer Lady of the Lake will begin to make her regular trips on Lake Winnipesaukie about May 30th, and will run very much as she has for many years. It is found that no other arrangement will so well accommodate the travelling public.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

The Cunard line steamer Pavonia arrived at Boston on Friday evening with 1165 steerage passengers, and the next two vessels of the same line will bring 2500 more—the larger part of them from England, Ireland and Scotland. Strange that these working men should leave the land of free trade and consequent easy times, and come to this tariff-burdened land to suffer the ills of American workers.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing, nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cures of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

Professors Agassiz and Shaler decline the superintendency of the coast and geodetic survey.

You

Will never regret sending three 2 cent stamps for postage, to A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass., for a copy of Dr. Kaufmann's great Medical Work; 100 pages, colored illustrations; of great value to every family.

Willard Titcomb is very low. Doctors Gerrish of South Berwick and Hall of Wells held a consultation on Sunday; they could render no aid. He receives the best of care, and everything he wishes for.

Three more of Miss Haley's converts were baptized on Sunday, namely, Mr. James O. Leavitt, Mr. William D. Moulton and Mrs. Charles E. Donnell; also the right hand of fellowship was given in the afternoon to Mr. Charles E. Donnell, who was a member of the Cape Neddick church.

Mr George H. Carleton has a fine team running from his stable on Water street, engaged in the sale of fish throughout the city.

Old fishermen always take with them a good supply of St. Jacobs Oil.

The carpenters' strike at Waterbury, Conn., has proved a total failure, they having returned to work at the old prices and on the ten hour system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself and superior to other preparations in strength, economy, and medicinal merit.

Henry Marcy, the six-year-old son of Alfred Marcy of Grafton, Mass., was killed May 20th by a loaded gun which he found in a shed. He was warned not to touch it, but while alone he was shot and died instantly.

Constipation is positively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and stregthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to the proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will peform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative Pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

Detectives of the city of Mexico are wrestling with a mysterious crime. One of the leading banking firms of the city has sustained a loss of $400,000. All that has been made public about the theft is that the officers of the association on going to the bank one morning found the doors of the vault wide open. The cash had been carried off, with the exception of some bags of silver with which the thieves evidently did not care to burden themselves. They left behind the bank building and the pavements in front of it.

Truly a Household Remedy.

240 Bedford Av., Brooklyn, N. Y., March 12, 1884.—I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters for the last twenty years. They are truly a household remedy. If one of my children has a cold and wheezes I put an Allcock's Porous Plaster on the chest and one between the shoulder blades. If any of the children have croupy coughs, or coughs of any kind, I place the plaster close up around the throat; the soothing effect is apparent almost always in two hours. If they have a disordered stomach, a plaster placed just below the chest bones makes digestion perfect in half a day. If there is any looseness of the bowels, accompanied by coldness of the skin, two Allcock's Porous Plasters applied over the stomach cure in from two to five hours. I notice particularly that these plasters never abrade the skin or cause the slightest irritation. From my own experience I know they never fail for rheumatism, pains in the back or lumbago.

CHAPLAIN HALL TO THE FRONT.

The Writer of the Following Letter is Above Reproach at Home.

I want to tell you in few words how I got rid of the nightmare of my life.

I once resided for several years in the Lake District of Michigan, where I contracted malaria. A vigorous constitution enabled me to resist for a time the encroachments of the disease, but continued exposure to the early morning fogs and to the night damps so lastened the disease upon me that I almost despaired of getting completely rid of it. For it event-ually developed into a chronic type of intermittent malarial fever, with all its distressing symptoms. This continued for eight years. In this long period of course I experienced all the well-known peculiarities of many successive attacks: the chill, the fever, the disturbance of the stomach and all the functions of digestion, the heavy headaches, the painful limbs and back, and the characteristic sensitiveness to changes in the weather, which impart to the chronic sufferer from malaria something of the powers of a barometer. My appetite came and went, but obeyed no natural rule. Sometimes I had a morbid craving for food, and then found myself unable to tolerate the most tempting and delicate dishes, until from a lack of proper nourishment I was transformed from a vigorous, active man into a weak, ragged-out being to whom the very thought of exertion was unwelcome. In addition to malaria I was evidently the victim of indigestion.

As for medicinal treatment all was done that apparently could be done. I used all the accepted remedies, including quinine, but all failed to give more than transient relief. My experience satisfies me that quinine is not a true tonic nor a safe medicine for those who habitually depend upon it. It seldom or never works a radical cure and often, if not generally, produces results which are in themselves diseases.

Now I come to the real cure and to the end of my story. In the summer of 1886 I first heard of Kaskine. I was struck with its being called "the new quinine" and the high claims made for it. I didn't believe a syllable of them. Neither would you—in my place. Still there was a chance, and to a chronically sick man any chance is worth taking. "It can't hurt me," I said, "I'll try it." I did try it. To my astonishment and gratification I soon began to improve. Clearly I was getting better. As I continued with Kaskine I seemed to feel the malaria going out of me and health coming back. It was a genuine, scientific healing—not one poison temporarily disguising another. The uric acid with which my system was charged was presently expelled, and my stiffened joints became pliant as before I was ever in the Michigan fogs and miasmas. The indigestion also disappeared, my bowels grew regular, my head clear, my nerves steady, and restful sleep returned. I am now permanently well; have never had any return of malaria—nor any sign of it. Results so real cannot be disputed, and I may fairly attribute them to Kaskine, because, after beginning with it, I took no other medicine.

DAVID J. NORTON,
State Street, Albany, N. Y.

P. S.—I read the letter of my friend Rev. J. L. Hall, Chaplain of the Albany Penitentiary, and fully accept his statements as harmonizing with my own knowledge of the medicinal properties of Kaskine.

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application.

Incident in a Poet's Life.

An English lady who knew the late Philip Bourke Marston, the poet, well writes of his personal history as follows: "Phillip's history was tragic enough. Blind from his youth, he was engaged when quite a young man to a very beautiful girl with whom he was madly in love. The time of their marriage was near. She was abroad with him and her parents. I do not know if she had been ill. I think not. Certain it is that the end came all in a moment. He was seeking her, and called. There was no answer; he grouped round the room looking for her; he found her on the sofa, and put his hands down to her face; there was no answering laugh. She was dead. This is the story as it is always told. I believe it is the literal one. When time had softened this sorrow his sister was his great companion; she also died. Thus he lost the two best loved of his life. It seemed as if those he cared for most were doomed to die. His betrothed, his sister, his friend Rosetti (who does not remember the beautiful sonnet Rosetti wrote to him?), his brother-in-law, O'Shaughnessy, young Maddox Brown, whose letters attest how much Philip Marston was to him, all went. Now Philip, too, has gone."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

How an Earthquake Sounds.

A frightful grinding noise, harsh, grating, terrible, like the passing of some giant removals van carrying Cleopatra's Needle or Memnon's Head; a sound as of the passing by of the biggest traction engine that was ever made, multiplied by forty; a sensation of being shaken violently in one's bed, in a house that shook and rattled and vibrated with an ever increasing violence, which seemed to presage the immediate fall and ruin of the building—that was what the peaceful dwellers in Cannes experienced betwixt sleeping and waking on the morning of Ash Wednesday, at 6 o'clock, town time, by all the clocks along the length of the Riviera. By the time these ten seconds were over and the earth was at rest again everybody on the Riviera was very much awake, and some there were to find that ten seconds of earthquake a very serious calamity.—Cannes Cor. London World.

Telegraph from the West Indies.

Nature expresses the belief that any money which might be spent in federating the West Indies meteorologically by means of the telegraph, even if new cables had to be laid here and there, would be saved over and over again in twenty years by the protection afforded to shipping by forecasts during the hurricane season, and observes that "the meteorological council would gain a larger and closer view of the phenomena which it is its duty to study, and the federal colonies would obviously gain by the reduction in the yearly loss of life and capital."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Mission of the Musquito.

A Springfield, Mass., man has discovered what has long been pretty well known—that the real mission of the musquito is to purify. He had two hogsheads filled with water, and into one he put a lot of wrigglers or embryo musquitoes. The water free from the wrigglers soon became foul, but that containing them remained sweet. So he concludes that musquitoes keep our swamps from becoming foul and pestilent.—New York Sun.

Prevention of Rabies.

Among the reported discoveries for the prevention of rabies is that of Dr. Fernandez, of Barcelona, who claims that a dog that has been bitten by a viper never has rabies, and cannot become rabid when inoculated. He has inoculated dogs with viper's poison, and he holds that under no circumstances will they ever become rabid.—Boston Herald.

A Good Hunter.

No horse is worthy of being called a hunter, according to Mrs. O'Donoghue, that cannot be turned in a very small circle, or that jumps with his hind legs stretched out behind him, or that won't attempt any fence at which his owner may choose to turn him.—Harper's Bazar.

A New Absorbent.

A new absorbent preparation is made from the cocoanut fiber. It is called cofferdam, and will hold like a sponge from twelve to fourteen times its own weight of water.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Relic of Primitive Religion.

The American Antiquarian describes a rock painted with red stripes and ornamented at its northern end with a rude representation of the sun, which still lies on the Upper Mississippi about six miles below St. Paul. It is an altar long held in reverence by the Dakotahs, who as lately as 1863 decorated it and performed dances before it on the eve of a battle. It is called Eyay Shah, or Red Rock. Before it is destroyed by vandals or fanatics, or stolen by interested persons, it is to be hoped that some local museum will secure this interesting relic of primitive religion. —Chicago Tribune.

Long and Short.

"Long John" Wentworth, who was six feet seven, and Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant," who was five feet four, were members of the house of representatives at the same time. One day when they stood conversing in the area before the speaker's chair, Wentworth bending over and Douglas on tiptoe, John Quincy Adams said, "Illinois there presents us with the long and the short of the position on the bill before the house.—Ben: Perley Poore in Boston Budget.

Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings. He felt tired instead of vigorous; nervous instead of strong. His appetite became poor and his sleep broken. He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and that the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the Captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it whenever they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife, (whom the best physicians of New York said was dying of tumor,) to perfect health, I swear by it."

Marine Disaster.

The steamer Celtic, from Liverpool for New York, and the Britannic, from New York for Liverpool, collided in a fog May 19th, 350 miles east of Sandy Hook. Both steamers were disabled, and arrived at Sandy Hook on the 22d, accompanied by two other British steamers. Five of the Britannic's steerage passengers were killed, and were thrown overboard that night. Several others were so badly hurt that they will probably die.

The latest reports place the number of killed on the Britannic at twelve, and the badly wounded at twenty. Charges are made of brutal treatment of the dead and living steerage passengers by the officers of the steamer, and of cowardice shown by the crew. The damage to the Britannic will take $80,000 to repair, and that to the Celtic $45,000.

Internal Revenue Consolidation.

President Cleveland on the 21st inst. issued an order changing and consolidating a number of the internal revenue districts throughout the country. The consolidations in New England are as follows: The district of Rhode Island with the district of Connecticut; the tenth district of Massachusetts with the third district of Massachusetts; the districts of Maine and Vermont with the district of New Hampshire. The following districts will be abolished and the collectors retired from the service: District of Rhode Island, tenth district of Massachusetts, district of Maine, and district of Vermont. This order makes Calvin Page, Esq., of this city, collector of internal revenue for the combined district of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Lizzie Guptill, Smith master, arrived at the Concord railroad wharf on Sunday forenoon at eleven o'clock, having sailed from Seal Harbor, Me., at five o'clock on Friday, the 20th. The only incident of the passage worth noticing was the presence of large schools of porpoises between Boon island and Whales-back, the creatures frolicking about the schooner all night. The vessel's cargo of 800 bbls. of lime has been disposed of. About eight o'clock Sunday morning, near Whale's-back, the Lizzie Guptill sighted the steamer James Sampson, having in tow the gondola Hard Chance, Capt. Cheney, loaded with piles from the Concord railroad wharf, brought down over the Concord road for Stewart & Grant, contractors for building the York railroad bridge across Bra' Boat Harbor creek.

The schooner Emma McAdam arrived here on Saturday with 256 tons coal, and the Helen Thompson with 188 tons, and the Telegraph with 164 tons, arrived on Monday—all to J. Albert Walker.

The schooner Grace K. Green, Seaward master, arrived at this port on Monday from Philadelphia, with 690 tons coal to E. F. Sise & Co. The John Lenthall, Parker, arrived the same day from Perth Amboy with coal to Sise & Co.

The British schooner Arizona, from a provincial port, hauled alongside the Gas Co.'s wharf on Monday to put out 10,000 feet of scantling, the remainder of her cargo being railroad ties to be discharged at Noble's island.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Capt. Levi Downs, will sail to-day for Gloucester to take on board her seines, after which she will look for mackerel to the southward. She takes across to Gloucester a quantity of salt fish shipped by Randall & Caswell.

Coal freights at the close of last week were reported at Philadelphia, to this port at $1.15, free; from Baltimore, $1.25.

About fifty mackeral, of fair size and quality, were captured in the weir at the mouth of the harbor on the 23d inst.

All that now remains to complete the work is for the abuttors on the other side to put up their fences as per agreement. Mr. Jones' wall was built by Jos. R. Holmes, and the city's by A. B. Trefethen.

The Eastern railroad will issue, July 1st, $700,000 in four and a half per cent bonds of $1000 each, for the purpose of funding the mortgages on the real estate at Charlestown, and payment of the bonds of the Essex railroad.

Mr. Oliver H. Cook of this city has rented Mrs. A. S. Trafton's house near Wallis' sands, Rye, for the summer.

The Fortune place at Tenney's hill, Kittery Point, one of the most beautiful places on the river for a summer residence, will not be opened this season, Mrs. Fortune and her youngest daughter remaining in Colorado with Mrs. Fortune's married daughter, Mrs. Hall.

The road from Portsmouth bridge to York is said to be in a most execrable condition; since the frost left the ground there has been no rain of sufficient quantity to settle the displaced earth, and the road surveyors are said to have made little if any attempt to improve the travelling. Perhaps the idea is to abandon the highway after the new railroad gets fairly going, so as to oblige everybody to patronize the cars.

Mr. George R. Mitchell of Kittery Point moved to Weirs, N. H., on the 20th inst., with his family, for the summer, he having purchased a boarding house there. They will return to the Point after the season of summer travel is over.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED

expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure! Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.

For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 48 Granite St.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE MEETING.

The democratic committee of Rockingham county met at the court house in this city on the 23d inst., to take action on the declination by Henry Austin, Esq., of the office of register of deeds. The meeting was called to order by Hon. Frank Jones, and Mr. Austin's letter of declination was read. On a formal ballot for a name to be presented as the party's candidate for the office, Gilman B. Hoyt of Exeter had fourteen votes to one for Dr. G. R. Bennett of Hampstead, and the chairman and secretary were authorized to send to the judges of the supreme court a resolution recommending Mr. Hoyt for appointment as commissioner to serve as register of deeds till one is elected.

Mr. Hoyt is a tailor by trade, and has resided in Exeter about twenty years. Previous to going there he was for some years a writer in the general store at the navy yard, at the time Gen. M. F. Wentworth of Kittery was general storekeeper. He is a good accountant and fine penman, and in every way qualified for the office he is recommended for.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Chief Marshal M. T. Betton has appointed George E. Hodgdon as chief of staff, and Thos. E. O. Marvin, Michael Crowley, John S. Perry, Daniel J. Ayers, Herman Manson and Herman W. Oxford as aids, for Memorial day.

Tickets for the evening exercises in Music hall will go on sale at Goodrich's, Thursday morning, the 26th; parquet fifteen cents, gallery ten cents. The orator of the occasion will be Rev. D. C. Knowles, D. D., who was captain of a company during the war; the committee on evening exercises have arranged a very pleasing programme. The proceeds of the exercises go to the charity fund of Storer Post—a most worthy object.

STORER POST---NOTICE.

A special meeting of Storer Post, G. A. R., will be held Wednesday evening, May 25th, at 7:30 o'clock.

Immediately following, a meeting of the General Committee on Memorial Day Observances will be held.

GREAT FIRE IN YORK.

A destructive forest fire prevailed on Sunday at Grand Root hill, near Mount Agamenticus, York, and in its vicinity; several hundred men were at work fighting it, but to little purpose, the ground and bushes being very dry. Many hundred acres of timber land were destroyed, and over 200 cords of wood ready cut for the market. The fire was still spreading on Monday, and more serious losses were feared.

Monday night, from elevated points in Kittery, the flames could be seen shooting upward over a wide stretch of territory, the fire having evidently been greatly extended by the high wind during the day. The whole southerly slope of Agamenticus appeared to be on fire, and the conflagration is probably the most serious one that ever occurred in the woods of York. There are not many buildings at the foot of Mt. Agamenticus, but near Ground Root hill live many basket makers and charcoal burners; but no word of buildings having been burned has yet been received.

ARRESTED AND CONFINED.

Alderman Hodgdon and the street commissioner were on Saturday superintending the improvements being made at the Spring market landing by order of the board of aldermen. The fish shanty has been taken away by Mr. John J. Hill; and the wooden bulkheads, wherever they were decayed, have been replaced with sound wood. While the city was at work there, it would have been well to have renewed the free delivery of the ice-cold and beautifully clear water from the spring under Downs & Co.'s store, and which now seeps out through fissures near the bottom of the dock. In excavating on Saturday for making repairs to the bulkhead, the workmen came upon quite a hole, caused by the washing away of the gravel, and in this hole they were astonished to discover a hare. The hare appeared to be still more astonished at being discovered, and made no attempt to escape; the little animal was taken into custody by Sheriff-elect Coffin, and by him turned over to Ald. Hodgdon, who on Sunday reported it to be very lively, ready to eat, and wild. The mystery of the hare's presence in a hole under a street in the heart of the city is explained by M. Griffin, who caught a hare in the south cemetery not long ago, and kept it confined for a time, when it escaped.

BASE BALL.

The game of ball between the Jones and Walker school nines, at the Plains on Saturday afternoon, resulted in a victory for the Jones school. The Walker school nine are all members of the school, but the Jones nine have only three or four from their school, the rest being outsiders, and better players. The Walker school nine will play a nine from the Jones school and give them five or six runs to start with, any time they wish.

The High school nine of this city will play the Dover High school nine at the Plains on Tuesday afternoon, May 31st.

National League games, May 23d: Indianapolis 9, Boston 8; Chicago 6, Philadelphia 5; Washington 7, Detroit 6; New York 16, Pittsburg 12.

PERSONAL.

Commodore C. W. Pickering, U. S. N., and wife, arrived home on the 22d inst. from the south, where they passed the winter.

Mr. George D. Marcy left Portsmouth on Monday for Kansas City, to take a good position in a prominent banking house there.

Mr. William W. Carmen, formerly superintendent of the Portsmouth Machine Co., expects to be ready to start for the west the latter part of this week. He will probably settle in Kansas City, Mo., or in Kansas.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY.

The change in the internal revenue districts under last week's order of the president, while it will by no means impair the efficiency of the mode in which the business will be done will prove a saving to the government. The office of collector in Vermont, where the aggregate collections are about fifty-seven thousand dollars a year, will be abolished after July 1st, and like that of the Maine district, where but about thirty thousand dollars annually is collected, will be consolidated with the office in this city. The New Hampshire people, with characteristic loyalty, pay $380,000 annually in revenue tax. The increased volume of tax will add but $125 to the salary of the collector of internal revenue, while of course the duties of his office, in the proper selection and supervision of deputies and the correspondence, will be very largely increased. The process of collection by means of deputies has reached such a system of accuracy that one collector for the three states will be abundantly able to as properly do all the business of these districts as have four in times past. While it may not be a popular move in the eye of the politician, there is an exhibition of practical economy beside which crumble into insignificance some of the puerile semblances of economic action which the majority in the house of representatives have attempted by a wonderfully strained effort at the spigot. In these matters, the president is more successful than has proved his party.

In reply to the correspondent who asks us to answer his enquiry without publishing it, we state that Gen. Fitz John Porter was born in the house where the family of the late Albert R. Hatch resided, on Livermore street in Portsmouth. He was appointed a cadet from this state in 1841; was brevetted captain Sept. 8th, 1847, for gallant services at the battle of Molino del Rey, near the city of Mexico, and on the 13th of the same month was brevetted major for conspicuous gallantry at Chapultepec. He was promoted to colonel of the 14th Reg't U. S. Infantry in May, 1861; was brevetted brigadier general in June, 1862, for gallant conduct at Chickahominy, Va.; and was cashiered Jan. 21st, 1863. His subsequent history is fresh in the memory of every one who has read the papers for the past twenty-five years.

Councilman Mahoney, a brewery workman, a week or two ago voted "no" in the council on the question as to selling the city farm; the next day there was a brewery workman out of a job, but he made so much talk about it that he was soon sent for to go to work in another brewery—and at the meeting of the council on the evening of the 19th inst., when the city farm business was carried through, Councilman Mahoney was absent! At the latter meeting Councilman Casey, a shoe factory employe, still persisted in voting "no," even when the yeas and nays were called; and next day he also was granted a permanent vacation. By and by the democratic councilmen will get it through their heads that they were elected to do the bidding of their party bosses, and that political liberty under democratic rule is similar to what religious liberty was under the rule of the Puritans—liberty to speak and act exactly as the leaders direct, all insubordination to be summarily punished.

Mr. Charles B. Colson, now in the employ of Flynn Bros., grocers and provision dealers of Market street, is possessed of quite a versatile genius. At one time we heard of him on the roofs of the Jones brewery, then on top of a building in Dover, and again on a lofty block in Concord. But he has just shown his artistic abilities by painting and lettering Messrs. Flynn's sign on the granite pillars of their store; the letters are well formed, and the colors show that he has good taste.

The rooms at the Revere House, Boston, have a homelike appearance, in pleasant contrast to those of most hotels; and their inviting comfort is fully appreciated by the travelling public.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

The parasols shown by Lewis E. Staples this season cannot be beaten for styles and low prices. Ladies, call and look at them, and be convinced.

At the urgent solicitation of a number of my patrons I shall continue for a few months after May 1st to make those fine Cabinet Photos for $2.00 a dozen.

A Sea Sick Passenger,

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wineglassful full or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes the brackish water—often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, the western pioneer and miner, the bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manuel, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

The jury in the Saco poisoning case, which was on trial at Alfred last week, remained out all night, and next day reported a disagreement. It is claimed that eight favored the plaintiff and four the defence. The case will probably be tried again next term.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

It will be news to many that Wall street, New York, derives its name from a wall erected as a protection against Indians.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Albert H. Rich, mate of the ship Belknap of Rockport, Me., has been arrested in New York on charge of murdering a seaman on the high seas.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing, nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cures of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

The Scotch yacht Thistle lost her bowsprit in a gale on the 20th inst., in a run from the Clyde to Cowes. On the way she took three men from a lifeboat belonging to steamer Harkaway, which had sunk with sixteen men, three others having died in the boat.

A Lucky Man's Gratitude Expressed.

WRIGHTSVILLE, Pa., April 5.

Editor of The Pilot, Boston, Mass.:—Thirty-five years ago the Pennsylvania canal boatmen would boat all summer on the canals, and steamboat on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers in the winter. I never thought then, when I boated between Pittsburg and New Orleans, that I should draw on March 12th from The Louisiana State Lottery $15,000. God is good, I thank Him for the great favor. I also thank the officers of The Louisiana State Lottery for sending me the lucky ticket, No. 66,551. It only took five days from the day I sent my ticket until I got the money. Yours, with very great respect, THOMAS FALVEY.

Frank Boynton of Bar Mills, Buxton, committed suicide on the 21st inst. by drowning, lying down with his face in a brook containing only six inches of water. He was about forty-seven years old, and a pensioner of the late war. He had been before the grand jury at Alfred as a witness for the two days preceding his death, in a cider case, and was to go again, and this is thought to have unsettled his mind. Charles Boynton, a brother, shot himself dead just a year previous, after having attempted to kill his wife and sister.

The woods fire in York was reported as still spreading on Tuesday, having passed over the top of Mt. Agamenticus during the night. Over 2000 acres of land were reported as burned over, the heaviest loser being John McIntire.

The location of the Kittery Point station of the York Harbor & Beach railroad has not been decided on as yet.

Capt. Hiram Perkins and wife of York, celebrated their golden wedding at their residence on Saturday evening the 21st inst. After an hour's pleasant chat, as one token of remembrance, they were presented a purse of gold amounting to $75.00. Samuel W. Junkins Esq. made the presentation speech in a few well chosen words, which was very feelingly responded to by Mr. Perkins. With many kind wishes for their future happiness, they were left to commence another fifty years.

— OF THE —

Renowned Medicine.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age —A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and get a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

W. B. HATHAWAY,
Agt. U. S. Ex. Co.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS:—Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the aspe. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind. TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home. REVERIE.

Life is a varied dream the while,
When all things seem so beautiful and fair;
But over all hangs subtle doubt and care,
With pleasure's fond, delusive smile;
And ghostly memories from a faded past,
Like Dead sea apples scattered here and there,
Fall like echoes of some sad, sweet prayer,
Part sweetness mixed with sadness overcast.

RABYAH'S LAST RIDE.

This is the relation of the death of Rabyah, son of Mokaddem, of the Beni-Firaz, according to the legend transmitted from generation unto generation by the rawis, or reciters of poems and of great deeds.

And it is written down in the commentary which Abou Zakariyah Yahyah-al-Tibrizi made upon those mighty poems chanted before Islam which are called Hamasah—a word signifying all that is stalwart and noble in a man—and in the Hamasah the place of the legend of Rabyah is in the second books which is the "Book of Dirges." But the tale hath also been told by Al-Madani, and Abou Riyah; and it is likewise preserved in the great Kitab-al-Aghani, or "Book of Songs," collected and written down by Abou 'l Faraj Al' Ispahani, who devoted fifty years alone to the study of the poems and the legends of the Desert Arabs of old.

Rabyah, son of Mokaddem, of the Beni-Firaz, was famed as the bravest and the strongest and the most generous of his tribe what time he lived, and he was celebrated as an escort. For from the day that he had, single handed, as a very young man, successfully defended his bride, Raytah, against the horsemen of the Beni-Djoucham on a foray, the women deemed it no little honor to have Rabyah as their escort. And no woman ever intrusted herself to the protection of Rabyah for the journey to whom any mishap befell while he remained with her.

Now on the day of his death Rabyah was escorting a caravan of women through the country of the Beni-Sulaim, and he was the only horseman with them. For though there had been blood between the Beni-Firaz and the Beni-Sulaim, the price of blood had been paid, and it was thought peace had been brought about. And the mother and sister of Rabyah were with the company.

And all that land was yellow and dry as long dead bone; and it was strewn with great stones that seemed to have been rained down from heaven with fire, so seared and so blackened they were. And the pass leading to their own country—the Pass of Ghazal—was still far off when Rabyah, looking back, saw a distant rising of dust, like the smoke of a fire newly kindled. Now Rabyah rode upon his favorite gray mare, Ghezala, whom no desert steed might ever overtake, but he rode slowly for the sake of the women, who were mounted upon camels.

So he drew rein and gazed at the dust cloud and perceived a gleam break through it, and another, and another and many glimmerings—a lightning of lances. And looking a little while longer, he could discern a company of men in helms of iron and shirts of mail riding upon lean, black horses; and as they sped swiftly he knew the helm of the horseman who led them—Nubaishah, of whom it was said that Death, the mother of vultures, ever rode with him.

Then Rabyah spurred in haste after the women, and urged on faster the toiling camels, and said unto his mother: "There is treachery, O mother! Lo! Nubaishah, the son of Habib, pursueth us with the wild men of Sulaim." And even as he spoke, the far off drum roll of galloping hoofs broke heavily upon their ears through the hot and thirsty air.

And turning his mare round Rabyah added: "Haste ye toward the pass while I strive to hold them back; and I shall met ye all at the pass, to hold it so that ye can reach our tents and arouse the horsemen." And he rode to meet the wild men of Sulaim, while the women urged their beasts faster over the dusty path.

Then Rabyah's sister, Oumm 'Amr, cried out in fear, and those with her lamented as they saw Rabyah ride back all alone. But his mother, Oumm Saiyar, chided them, saying:

"While there remaineth so much as one drop of blood in his veins, no son of mine will ever fail to do the deeds of a man and the duty of a man. Have no fear, ye foolish ones! when did Rabyah ever fail to protect a woman? How many such robbers as those hath he not harassed ere this, even as lizards in their desert holes are harassed with a stick? How many an enemy's corpse hath he not left to be devoured by the lions of the woods, by the ancient eagles of the hills? In how many encounters hath he not been hard pressed before—ay, even tightly pressed as the sandal strap between the toes of the wearer? Know ye not that my son is unto men as a beacon light—ay, as the signal fires that be lighted upon mountain tops?"

Yet Rabyah's sister only would not be comforted, and she wept and said: "Surely my brother hath never before been placed in any peril like unto this peril, for the men of Sulaim are many, and it hath ever been said of Nubaishah that Death, the mother of vultures, rides with him."

But Oumm Saiyar answered her sharply: "He that feareth death, verily death shall find him, though he have a ladder long enough to climb to heaven upon. Better is death than shame! Fear rather for thine own honor, girl—urge on thy beast while Rabyah holds them back!"

Then Rabyah, alone, strove against all the swarm of Sulaim.

Now in Arabia there was no archer more skillful than Rabyah, and he bent his bow against the pursuers; and with his first shaft he pierced the throat of a son of Sulaim, so that the horseman died upon his horse, and with his bow he

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 16th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and will at all times gladly inform those who inquire of me concerning the cure.

CHARLES McKAY,
Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. McCARTHY,
35 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of disease, and disease, quelling sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelope, and then, spreading through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal Administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions price, $1.00.

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Seems Like Anti-Slavery Days.

At Hamilton, Ont., on the evening of May 23d, Mr. O'Brien addressed a vast audience in the skating rink, having risen from a sick bed against the advice of his physician to attend, he being suffering greatly from the effects of injuries received at the hands of the Toronto mob. On leaving the rink in company with a few friends the party were fired upon with revolvers, one of the party receiving a bullet through his wrist. Eight shots were fired, and rotten eggs were pelted at the party as they entered the hotel. The police rushed up to protect them after they were safely housed.

Wednesday—a programe that will be entertaining. Fun in the evening.

Thursday—Reception of distinguished guests. The six governors of the New England states, with their staffs, are invited. Evening, campfire by the association and regiments.

Friday—during the day there will be a tub, scrub and potato races. In the afternoon there will be a regatta upon the lake.

Dr. McGlynn and the Pope.

The pope has sent to Archbishop Corrigan of New York a letter strongly supporting his action in the case of Rev. Dr. McGlynn, and pledging him the full support of the apostolic see in combatting the Henry George theories of land ownership. This puts Dr. McGlynn and George's followers in square opposition to the Catholic church. Dr. McGlynn affects to be in no way discomposed by the papal letter.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., May 24th.

Died in Portsmouth on Sunday, May 22d, at the residence of his son-in-law, (Mr. D. J. Ayers.) Mr. William Peirce, aged eighty-six years and seven months, formerly of Spruce Creek, North Kittery. Mr. Peirce was the son of William Peirce and a grandson of Dr. Daniel Peirce, one of the most skillful physicians of his day. He was an industrious and worthy citizen, and passed the greater portion of his life near the place of his birth. Four of his eight children survive him, his wife having died several months ago. The funeral took place to-day at the house of Mr. Ayers, on Christian Shore, Portsmouth, from whence the remains were taken to North Kittery for interment.

Mabel, a lovely child of six years, and eldest daughter of Newbury W. and Annie Haley, after several weeks of distressing illness was relieved by death of her suffering on Thursday morning last. The family are deeply stricken with grief, and have the sympathy of numerous friends.

The new lodge of A. O. U. W. was instituted this evening at the village by Grand Supervisor Parker Spofford of Bucksport, Me., assisted by P. M. W. Geo. O. Wilson of Kittery, a member of Sagamore lodge, No. 11, of Portsmouth. The new lodge is called the Barberry Shore lodge, No. 54.

Some of the railroad employes on the section at the Point have been rather careless in times past in regard to blasting; rocks weighing twenty pounds and over have been thrown several hundred yards, and have struck with sufficient force to crush through the roofs of several houses. Large rocks have gone through the roof of the Pepperell house, one or two going down through the ceiling, and one struck on a bed, breaking it down. Six different places on the roof of this house have been repaired on account of these rocks.

Would it not be a good plan to rake off of the Post road a few of the many millions of small loose stones with which that road now abounds? they certainly add nothing to its good, but are a source of much annoyance to ride over.

The large fire on Mount Agamenticus was distinctly seen by residents at North Kittery and Kittery Point on Monday evening; it looked as though the whole mountain was in a blaze. Much damage must be done.

There is good promise of a large crop of strawberries and peaches this year; the latter fruit has been a failure the past three years, owing to the severe winters.

We are much pleased with the style and location of "Hotel Park-field" and do not hesitate to prophesy that it will be a popular resort.

About forty Italians came from the westward on the ten o'clock train to-day, and got out at the Kittery depot, being under engagement to work on the York section of the new railroad. They were accompanied by a number of women and children, and innumerable boxes and bundles, and were not very prepossessing in appearance.

Dr. George L. Peirce returns to New York to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, after a visit in town of several weeks.

Mr. Edward F. Safford, proprietor of "The Pepperell," has been painting and touching up about his house this spring preparatory to opening about the middle of June. SUB ROSA.

The Keene Observer holds that the election of Mr. Chandler would be the climax of republican mistake, and would probably give the state to the democrats next year. That is what the democrats are hoping for.

Boston wants to borrow $800,000 with which to build the new court house in Pemberton square. If its capitalists will not lend at 3 1-2 per cent, the city will pay four. Boston will not look at a bid at less than par.

A Baltimore lawyer has been decorated by the queen regent of Spain with the royal order of Carlos III., in recognition of his eminent legal service to the Spanish government. The order is next to the Golden Fleece, (which is given almost exclusively to royalties,) and is the highest in the Spanish civil service. Most of the American lawyers, however, go for the "Golden Fleece" when they make up their charges.

As the democrats in the last congress failed to reduce the duties upon certain classes of woollen goods which come in competition largely with those manufactured in New Hampshire, and other manufacturing states, they are bringing about a revenue reform by a system of undervaluation on imported goods sworn to by a "custom-house oath." The American manufacturing interest is feeling the effects of this unfair advantage given to the foreign merchants by our reform administration.

It is said that Jay Gould, having frozen out some of the stockholders of the Little Rock & Fort Smith railroad, will put up the market price of the stock and sell his purchased shares at a handsome profit.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.

For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 43 Granite St.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

THE KNIBBS VALVE SUITS.

A Dover despatch of May 23d is as follows:

United States Marshal Barker will arrive to-morrow and serve papers on the city officials in the suit of Marcus P. Norton et. als. for $50,000, for the alleged infringement on the Knibbs patent valve. Manchester, Nashua, Concord and Portsmouth will be sued also, with writs returnable at the United States circuit court at Concord next October. Three years ago, in a similar suit tried at Portsmouth, a verdict was given for the city of Dover. Norton gave a free receipt to the New Hampshire cities on condition they would turn over the evidence and models in their possession, he intending to sue the cities outside New Hampshire owning engines on which the alleged infringement was used. Now he claims the New Hampshire cities did not turn over all they promised, that there has been a breach of faith on the cities' part. Hence the new suits. The cities will pool the issues as three years ago, and fight the case.

The correspondent is mistaken in some of these points. After the verdict in favor of Dover was returned by the jury in this city, the counsel for Norton and others wished to withdraw the suits against the other cities; the latter's counsel said that the cities had been put to great expense and trouble in preparing for trial and were now ready for it, and urged that the suits be carried to a definite termination; the plaintiffs' counsel then offered to give a quitclaim to the New Hampshire cities if they would give up the models and other evidence in their possession, which was flatly refused; and then a full release of the New Hampshire cities, without any conditions, was signed by Norton and his counsel. The other parties plaintiff in the suits have since claimed that they are not bound by Norton's waiver, and the present actions are the result.

A SITE FOR THAT STATUE.

A correspondent, a native of Portsmouth, writes concerning the statue to Fitz John Porter:

"If there is really to be a statue and Mr. Jones is to furnish the site, would it not be well to level off all those rookeries near St. John's church, and construct a plaza there with seats, etc., and set it up in full survey of the river? The view would delight the visitor quite as much as any work of art could. If the horse is supposed to sniff the battle afar, it may be the gas works he smells!"

The site is a beautiful one, and the view one of the most delightful in New England. Church hill is high and sightly, and the statue could be seen by passengers who in the by and by sail in and out of our harbor on voyages to and from the old world.

If New York is to maintain its bar at the mouth of its harbor, which of course will remain as long as Sam Randall controls the democratic party, and if fogs are to be the rule in the lower bay, it will not be surprising if ere long the European steamers make a port where the depth of water beneath their keels is twice the amount of the vessels' draft, where no ice is encountered, and where a steamer could leave her wharf and be at sea in thirty minutes, and come in with equal speed. Besides this, what a saving of time to be so much nearer Europe by departing from Portsmouth instead of going round by way of Sandy Hook, and waiting for a high tide to enter and depart from the harbor of New York.

BASE BALL.

The Granite State base ball club of this city offer to play the High school nine a game at the Plains, for a $1.50 ball.

National League games, May 24th: Pittsburg 5, New York 4; Boston 8, Indianapolis 6; Philadelphia 3, Chicago 2. The Detroit-Washington game at Washington was omitted on account of rain.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, May 24th.

Jeremiah Murphy, for drunkenness, as usual, was fined $3, costs $7.67, and as usual will work it out at the county farm.

FIRE ALARM.

The alarm of fire from box forty-three, corner of Cabot and Islington streets, about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, was caused by a trifling blaze on the roof of Mr. David S. Lowd's house in the rear of No. 15 Union street. Mr. Lowd was engaged in burning canker worms off the trees in his garden, using a rag wet with kerosene, on the end of a stick; and a spark from this arrangement alighting on the hot and parched shingles, set them on fire at once. The fire department turned out promptly, but their services were not required, the fire being extinguished with a bucket or two of water; but the pulling in of an alarm was the proper thing to do, for had the fire got beyond the control of the water-bucket brigade it might have done much harm in the present dry condition of the buildings of the city, as a brisk wind was blowing at the time. The damage done to the shingles was trifling; in fact, it would not be an easy job to do them a great deal of damage, as they were laid seven years before the war, and Mr. Lowd was intending to replace them with new ones this summer.

Rain is greatly needed now, in city and country. The surface of cultivated land is so dry that vegetation is checked, and the pressure on the aqueduct pipes is rapidly lessening.

The old three-story house on Chestnut street, in the rear of the residence of Mr. George W. Butler, was sold at auction on Tuesday for $35, to be removed at once; the purchaser was Mr. B. F. Webster.

The Portsmouth Athletic club on Tuesday turned over to Mr. C. M. Gignoux, treasurer of the soldiers' and sailors' monument fund, the sum of $273.10, the net proceeds of the recent minstrel entertainment given by the club in Music hall.

There is hope yet; there was rain enough in Washington on Tuesday to prevent a game of base ball.

In the assignment of parts for graduation exercises at Dartmouth college, J. Clifford Simpson of Greenland and J. D. Ball of Chester have been given: "Did the north or the south produce the greater general during the civil war?"

It is announced that Rev. J. D. Waldron will close his pastorate with the Pearl street church next Sunday, preaching his farewell sermon that day.

Fred Tanner, who attempted to commit suicide Sunday night, was able to be out on the streets Tuesday.

Hon. John S. Tréat has just finished a very beautiful tablet of polished Vermont Columbian marble, to be placed on the grave of the late Mrs. Alpheus A. Hanscom at Saco, Me.

The annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association commenced its session in Tremont Temple, Boston, on the 24th inst., Rev. James DeNormandie presiding in the absence of the president of the association, Ex-Gov. George D. Robinson. The past year was reported as the most successful in the history of the denomination.

The schooner Jonathan Sawyer, from Baltimore for this port with coal, touched on the Middle Ground, Vineyard sound, May, 22d, but was pulled off by two tugs without damage, and arrived here on the 23d.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, May 23d.

The dry weather is discouraging to the farmers, as seed sowing will prove of no avail unless rain comes soon. It is hard to find help by the day, as many hands have gone to work on the railroad.

The cider venders are doing what the law has forbidden, and we hope their boldness will be rewarded by heavy fines.

A large matrimonial wave will soon bear away some of the fair sex of this town; several young ladies are soon to leave us, and some of over three score years are contemplating marriage. All young men who expect good care and plenty to eat and drink are advised not to marry women who have had too many husbands.

Improvements are being made through the town in painting and grading, and it is hard to find a carpenter or painter unless long previously engaged.

A patent has been granted Mr. W. L. Drake on a bed-clothes supporter, said by the late Mr. R. H. Eddy to be one of the most useful articles he had applied for in his forty years experience; already several parties are desirous of negotiating for the sale of the patent right.

Almost daily Mr. Curtis DeLancey has applications for board, but not wishing to open his house so early, several of the applicants have engaged board with Mrs. J. J. Leavitt.

Several of our citizens went to Exeter to hear Mr. Mills on Sunday last.

The fast driving from Exeter to the beach on Sundays ought not to be tolerated; racing horses, on horse-back or in teams, is too bad; such cruelty inflicted on horses ought to be looked after. If "the society" is alive, where is it, and why are not agents stationed at different points to look after the fast men that do this business?

STORER POST---NOTICE.

A special meeting of Storer Post, G. A. R., will be held Wednesday evening, May 25th, at 7:30 o'clock.

Immediately following, a meeting of the General Committee on Memorial Day Observances will be held.

COOK, 5 Congress St., Portsmouth.

Governor Ames of Massachusetts has vetoed the bill to constitute the town of Beverly Farms, but dividing the town of Beverly, because the act was passed by means of high priced influence upon the legislature. The governor yields to the clamor concerning the lobby. It was the governor's gov'nor, we believe, who was in the habit of placing shares of stock "where it would do the most good." The world moves.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music

Ranks with the very best, and no Sunday School management can adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.

Voices of Praise (40 cts., $4.20 per doz.) Eminently dignified and classical, but not dull; intensely orthodox and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) Compiled by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Venny Singing Book for prayer and public meetings.

Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. Tenney and Rev. E. A. Hanaford—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both well-tried compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well-known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.

For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.

For a lively little book for the young children of a Sunday School, look no further than FRESH GLOW DROPS (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) Emma Pitman. Pinks (Pitman), Sweet Nellie, Pretty Pictures.

nailed the thigh of another to the ribs of his animal, and with his third he shattered the swordarm of the strongest Sulaimite; and, seeing that it was Rabyah, the men of Sulaim fled from his archery; and he drove them back yet farther, sending his arrows humming like Djinns behind them. And when he had thus kept them back a good while he turned and rode after the women again.

Then the men of Sulaim rode furiously in pursuit of him and shot arrows after him in vain. For though all the black horses strove until they were sweating like well filled water skins in the great heat, only Nubaishah's stallion could follow after Rabyah's gray mare; and the gray mare's skin remained dry.

And so soon as Rabyah—after having urged on the toiling camels of the women still faster—turned once more and laid an arrow across his bow, the drum beat of pursuing hoofs broke up into a sound of scraping and of stumbling, while the men of Sulaim scattered and drew back in dismay. And many times Rabyah thus checked them. Only Nubaishah, the son of Habib, ever sat firm upon his black stallion and faced the humming shaft, and dexterously avoided it or turned it from him with marvelous surety of eye and trueness of hand.

So, fleeing and turning, halting and proceeding, pursuers and pursued ever grew nearer to the jagged teeth of the western hills; and in the black toothed line of them appeared the bright gap of the Pass of Ghazal, ever widening and brightening as they rode. And now the great stone upon the way made long black shadows over the plain; for the sun was setting before them. So they rode into the edge of the shadow of the hills, and Rabyah turned to make a last stand, and the pounding of the pursuing hoofs became a shuffling once again as the band of Sulaim drew rein in a cloud of dust. But now in Rabyah's quiver there was no more shafts.

Then Oumm Saiyar cried out to him afar off: "Sword and spear, son! Sword and spear for the women of the Beni-Firaz! Give them sword and spear for thy mother's sake, for thine own Raytah, who waiteth in the tent."

The Maine Central railroad is fast completing the arrangements for the through express train that is to run direct from Portland to Bangor without making any stops, taking water from troughs laid between the rails. This train will probably make one of the longest runs without stopping of any in the eastern states, covering a distance of over one hundred and thirty-five miles in three hours, a little more than forty-five miles per hour.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

Mr. Samuel Clark of Eliot is about to put up a quite large building close by the railroad station, to be used as a store; Mr. Cyrus Hooper will rent it, and carry on business in grocories and general merchandise.

Headache, toothache, backache and all other aches are cured by St. Jacobs Oil.

It is rumored that a number of residents of Kittery Point and York have been indicted by the grand jury at Alfred, for selling cider contrary to law. The jury's report has not yet been made, but the rumor is sufficient to cause a good deal of disquietude to those who have reason to fear that they may be of the elect.

For headache St. Jacobs Oil is splendid.—J. Grundhofer, Euren, Wis.

Mr. John Rogers of Kittery has what is probably the finest bed of pansies in Maine, covering about half an acre of ground; one small bed contains plants raised from seeds imported from Germany, the flowers being about twice the size of the largest native varieties. Mr. Rogers has also seeded about an acre of land with popping corn.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing, nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cures of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

A rowboat capsized near Market street wharf, Philadelphia, on Sunday, and five of the occupants, Kate, Jerry and Thomas Murphy, Dennis Clemens and Maggie Haney, were drowned.

The favorite Washing Compound of the day is James Pyle's Pearline. It cleanses fabrics without injury and without the scrubbing necessary with ordinary soap. For sale by grocers.

Ten counterfeit money passers, or swindlers, were captured in Portland, Me., on the 23d inst.; they have been "doing" the city as soap peddlers, and bargained with a detective to supply him with $500 of "the queer" for $100 of good money.

Beware of Swindlers.

We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers who advertise, under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we can honestly recommend Sulphur Bitters.—Editor Sun.

At Travesse Bay, Mich., on Sunday, a yacht capsized and Captain L. W. Cole, D. G. Stark, George Wise, Fred Cole and Marion Trip of Peteskey were drowned. Two others were saved.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

A Wall Street Man Cured of Sciatica by Allcock's Plasters.

"They" say Wall street is a wicked place and that men occasionally have worse than physical ones. Yet, relief from physical pain gives the broker a wider margin in that leaves him a clear head. Eugene Rubino, stock and bond broker, No. 34 Wall street, N. Y., says: "In 1881 I was confined to my bed by sciatica. The pain not only went down my thigh, but affected my side as well. I suffered greatly, and after having been shut up for four weeks, determined to abandon doctors and their prescriptions, and try Allcock's Porous Plasters. I placed two on my thighs, one on my hipbone and one on my side. I was completely cured in four days; and on the fifth day after the application was at my business in Wall street."

A Sea Sick Passenger,

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wine-glassful full or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes the brackish water—often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, the western pioneer and miner, the bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manuel, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

Renowned Medicine.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age —A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and get a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS:—Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind. TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Member of Canadian Parliament.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home. A LADY, AUGUSTA, ME.

RABYAH'S LAST RIDE.

And again and again did Rabyah charge them with spear and sword, scattering them even as a hawk scatteth quails. Only Nubaishah, the son of Hahib, fled not, but yielded way cunningly to let him pass, and always thereafter circled menacingly about him, like a vulture sweeping close to the sand.

And it happened at last that, as Rabyah bore down upon a man of Sulaim, Nubaishah suddenly circled by him rapidly as a whirling wind, and thrust with his lance as he whirled, and the lance blade burst its way through Rabyah's shirt of Persian mail and into his entrails.

And Nubaishah laughed, and drew back the blade of his wet spear between his stallion's ears, and smelled the odor of the blood upon it, and shouted: "Thou hast thy death wound, O Rabyah!" For never had swarthy Nubaishah lifted his spear against a man to slay him and failed in his purpose—so keen his eye, so subtle his hand.

But Rabyah, seeking to deceive him for the women's sake, shouted back with all the deep power of his voice: "Thou liest in thy throat, Nubaishah!" And Nubaishah laughed again, and shook his head in scorn, and circled away among his men.

Then Rabyah rode after the women swiftly, sitting firm as a tower despite his pain; and even at the Pass of Ghazal he came up with his mother, as he had promised, and he said to her, "Oh mother, give me to drink! I have received my death wound." And Oumm Saiyar looked upon the wound—a ghastly wound, that gaped even as the mouth of a camel with divided lip.

But she was of the race of eagles, and she answered him, tearlessly, Nay, my son, for if I give thee to drink now thou diest, and we would then be taken and put to shame, and while even one drop of blood lives in thy veins, oh son of mine, thy duty remains to stand in defense of the weakness of woman and the honor of thy people. Turn back, son of Mokaddem! Turn and smite them while thy strength lasts, and bear the thirst for thy mother's sake; yet suffer me first to bind up thy wound."

And while she strove to bind it with her veil—for that was all she had to bind it with—Rabyah murmured to her, "Oh mother, the sons of Firaz have indeed lost him they were wont to call their battle hawk—their deep diving hawk of battle—him they held precious unto them as fire-shining gold. They have lost their darling horseman, oh mother!"

But Oumm Saiyar answered him as she knotted tightly the long veil about his wound: "Son, are we not of mighty Thalabah's stock, and Malik's breed, whose daily lot is bereavement? Well hath it been said that no man dieth in his tent! What is the record of our race but an outpouring of ghosts from the clash of battle, even as the spark flood's perpetual gush from the grinding of swords? Yet thou knowest that blood of ours is never shed without vengeance; and when one of us falleth straightway another riseth up to do the deeds of a man—to help the weak, to strive with them that are mighty for evil. Bear thou the thirst for thy people's sake; turn now, oh son, and smite them stoutly while thy strength endures."

And Rabyah turned back again, while the women fled; and once more he scattered the band of Sulaim, and drove them before him and held all the pass. And he sat guarding the narrow way upon his gray mare.

Then fell and died the day, in awful passion of fire, behind the pass, and against the mighty glow, as in a flame, the horseman towered like a Djinn.

And the sons of Sulaim drew afar off, and watched Rabyah—as vultures wait and watch, pluming themselves, about the place where a lion lieth down to die.

And because they would not again attack Rabyah, Nubaishah mocked them with rhymes piercing as the iron of lances. But they could not be moved to approach him; and Nubaishah foamed at the mouth like a camel that had eaten bitter herbs. And the night came.

But Rabyah, remaining in the shadow of the Pass, felt that his ghost was about to depart from him. And bending to the ear of his slim gray mare, he whispered unto her, softly, "Stand thou still, darling; stand still as a stone for the love of me!" Then he pressed the foot of his long spear into the ground, even as he sat upon her, and leaned upon it.

And in the darkness its ghost went out from him.

But ever, as a king sitteth upon his throne, so Rabyah sat upon his mare; and ever the gray mare stood still as a stone for the love of him.

Over the black desert of the sky slowly moved the long white caravan of the stars; and the night waned. But dead Rabyah still sat upon his mare; and the beautiful mare stood as a graven image standeth, for the love of him.

Until the cheek of the morning reddened, as for shame; and Nubaishah saw that Rabyah's head drooped, as though he slept upon his mare.

Then Nubaishah called unto him an archer of Khuzaah, a mighty man to bend the bow, and he asked the archer, "Hast thou an arrow left, my son?" And the man looked to where Rabyah was, and replied, fearfully, "One only—and it is for my life."

But Nubaishah said: "Thy life is safe now. Shoot the arrow, my son; shoot at the gray mare."

And the mare saw the arrow coming, and leaped aside; and Rabyah fell upon his face. Then, for the first time, all the men of Sulaim knew that he was dead, and they sent up a great shout.

And they went up to where he lay, and looked upon him, and wondered, and they spoiled him of his helmet and his broken shirt of mail and his lance and sword and his sandals. But the

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to the scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has grown out, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that statement is true and without exaggeration. CHARLES MCKAY,
Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. MCCARTHY,
35 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid substance surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and remains, as but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, blighting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it secretly but surely undermines and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinate sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions price, $1 00.

No Pardon for Such a Crime.

The president has refused a pardon to J. J. Stanley, convicted at St. Louis of fraudulent registration and sentenced to ninety days imprisonment in jail. The president indorsed the application as follows:

Denied — I cannot pardon a crime against the election laws, except it be in a case presenting unusually strong considerations for clemency. I consider such offences the worst of all crimes, and I know of none the punishment of which is more important to the public.

This is somewhat discouraging to the democrats,—that is, if Mr. Cleveland is to have his own way in these matters as against the political workers of his party.

But how was it that the president so readily granted a pardon to Police Lieutenant Mackin of Chicago, Carter Harrison's tool, who on the night before the national election arrested over a hundred respectable colored citizens, kept them locked up until the voting was over next day, and then turned them out without a trial and without a charge having been preferred against any one of them?

It is announced from Washington that Attorney General Garland says he is not a candidate for the supreme court vacancy, and when he leaves his present office will retire to private life. This is good news. It is bad enough to have the Standard Oil Co. elected to the United States senate, without putting the Pan-Electric Co. on the supreme bench.

Ticknor's Paper Series is a happy idea of the publishers, and will be very acceptable to all readers during the summer that is now so close upon us. It includes a number of the most famous and successful novels of the past five years, —books like "Guenn," "The Story of a Country Town," "A Nameless Nobleman," and "The Story of Margaret Kent," and others of equal value and merit; and with these come brilliant new works, like DeMontauban's "The Cruise of a Woman-Hater," and the vivid and fascinating Venetian novel, "The House of the Musician," by Virginia W. Townsend. The series for 1887 will include thirteen volumes, appearing one each week during May, June and July. The retail price is fifty cents each volume. The second number of the series is the famous and widely approved novel, "Guenn: a Wave on the Breton Coast," the chef-d'œuvre of Blanche Willis Howard, whose first book, "One Summer," won for her such a large and appreciative audience. "Guenn" is a tale of love and art, the scene being laid in Brittany, and the picturesque shores and no less picturesque people of this land of romance are vividly and graphically described. The book is illustrated throughout with some forty vignettes, initials, etc., drawn expressly for it by a brilliant and skillful American artist, and illustrative of French coast life.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED

expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.

For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 43 Granite St.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

WRECKED AT THE END OF A VOYAGE.

A New York despatch of May 24th gives the following account of the sinking of the barque Quickstep, formerly of this port:

The barque Quickstep, Capt. Morrison, from Cheriton, while towing up the lower bay about 4:30 o'clock P. M. to-day was run into by an unknown steamer, supposed to be a tramp; she was struck on the port quarter, and immediately sank, her crew being picked up by the tug Leonard Richards, which had her in tow at the time of the collision. Nothing is known of the steamer which struck the barque, or what damage the former received. The wreck lies in the channel below the buoy of the Lower Middle, in a very dangerous position for navigation. The Quickstep hails from New York, and is owned by James E. Stafford.

The Quickstep was built at this port in 1867 by Tobey & Littlefield, and her net register was 785 tons; she was for some years owned at this port, and commanded by Capt. Albert E. Chase. Among the owners in this city and vicinity who sold out some years ago, were Tobey & Littlefield, Thomas E. Call, Capt. B. F. Jacobs, heirs of Isaiah Wilson, and Amos Paul of South Newmarket.

A despatch of the 25th from New York says the steamer which sunk the Quickstep was the Ludwig Holberg, from New York for Baracoa. The captain and part of the crew of the barque were remaining by the wreck in a small boat.

NOT ALL GONE YET.

The effluvium as it escapes from the big sewer's mouth at the foot of Deer street is quite unpleasant at times to the denizens of that locality, whenever the brewery refuse comes down with the tide on the flow. It cannot be very pleasing in the summer time to the pleasure seekers awaiting transportation to the watering places by the steamers, or to those coming in boats to the public landing there. The original plan of the sewer contemplated its being run in a straight line to the end of Sise's wharf, where the sewage would have been discharged into running water with the tide flowing either way; the change made we thought at the time was a mistake, and said so, and we are now more than ever confirmed in our opinion. In the meantime the dwellers along the north millpond shores are congratulating themselves on the absence of nauses.

A COMPLAINT.

A gate sufficient to keep honest people out has been placed across the stable yard on Vaughan street where the start of a fire was recently discovered by two passers-by. Notwithstanding that the city expended so much money there in extending and building the street, it is allowed to be in a most filthy condition, so that ordinarily a lady cannot pass along without soiling her garments, and the odors which arise are equal to those of Cologne. Besides this, the sidewalk and roadway are often encumbered with vehicles, and the wonder is that some of the spirited teams, after escaping the puffing of the engines on the railroad track, have not ere this been wrecked at the expense of the city. The costly street is in fact little more than a barn-yard, and the city marshal and health board should pay it an occasional visit.

VAUGHAN STREET.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK HARBOR, ME., May 24th.

The work of driving piles for the railroad bridge across York river was finished on the 18th inst. Levi Briard of Kittery had charge of the pile driving, and has of the capping. The bridge will have a good draw, with 100-foot piers. The railroad crosses the harbor road by passing under it. George Payne, of Bra' Boat harbor, is boarding forty of the railroad workmen.

The painters are very busy touching up the cottages at York harbor. Frank Mozart, Benj. F. Bridges and George Caswell have had ten or fifteen cottages and other buildings to paint this spring, at the harbor and village.

Edward Blaisdell, the well known builder of York, is putting up a fine residence for himself close to the harbor station of the railroad.

Boarding house keepers at the harbor report more advance engagements this season than ever before, most of them having applications enough to fill them for the summer. Among the houses fully engaged are those of Rufus Varrell, John Glenn, Dr. Hawkes and Mrs. Andrew Leach; the latter has some boarders already.

J. P. Simpson has bought the building put up at the harbor last summer for a restaurant and club house, and has made it into a cottage to be rented the present season.

The York Harbor house, which was run by George Goodall last year, will be managed again this season by him.

Mrs. E. C. Atkinson of Massachusetts has already arrived and taken possession of a cottage—the first cottager of the season.

Jos. Bragdon has leased his cottage to Mrs. Bigelow Lawrence for the summer. He is also going to erect a large livery stable opposite Rufus Varrell's store at the harbor, to be ready for use this season.

Grant Bros. of York village lost their well known trotting horse Ethan Allen, record 2:35, on the 18th inst.; they had refused $1500 for him.

Daniel and Frank Donnell, of the harbor, have 230 lobster pots in the water, and average about seventy-five good lobsters a day, for which they find a ready market right at hand.

Leach & Winn have put up a big hennery at the harbor, adjoining the premises of George H. Donnell; it is 150 feet long, and they have over 500 hens and chickens now. They contemplate putting half an acre of ground under glass the coming fall, as a nursery for flowers and early vegetables.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Anna S. Murch arrived at this port on Wednesday, the 25th inst., from Perth Amboy, with coal to O. F. Philbrick & Co.

The schooner J. F. Baker, with 614 tons coal to J. Albert Walker, arrived at this port on the 25th inst. from Newport News.

The schooner Edith Rowe, which recently arrived at Gloucester from a southern mackerel trip without any fish, and sailed again May 18th, returned to Gloucester on the 24th with 340 barrels of extra large mackerel, taken 120 miles south of Georges. This is new fishing ground, the Edith Rowe being the first vessel that ever went there for fish. She reports mackerel as plentiful and in large schools when she was there, and no other vessel in the vicinity.

Hon. Robert A. Howard, assistant attorney general of the United States, will come to Portsmouth early in June to be present in behalf of the United States at the taking of testimony before William H. Hackett, commissioner of the court of claims, on behalf of certain claimants for the French Spoliation fund.

The light rain on Wednesday was the first for four weeks in this section, and it was very welcome; and more of it would have been more so. There was enough of it to freshen up the grass and the leaves of the trees, but not enough to wet the ground to the depth of half an inch.

Edgar G. Eaton, the popular pitcher of the Walker school base ball nine, and son of Conductor Henry J. Eaton of the Concord railroad, was in attendance the first three days of this week at the commencement exercises of the New Hampshire Conference Seminary at Tilton, at which institution he was formerly a pupil.

At the annual meeting of the Concord railroad corporation, in Concord on May 24th, Josiah Minot, B. A. Kimball, John H. Pearson and John A. White, of Concord, Frederick Smyth and Walter M. Parker of Manchester, and Alpha J. Pillsbury of Tilton, were unanimously chosen directors.

Clark's Female Minstrels will perform in Music hall next Wednesday evening; see advertisement in another column.

The steam pile driver of the Boston & Maine railroad was engaged on Wednesday, the 25th inst., at the railroad portion of the Noble's island bridge, in driving piles to serve in place of those before mentioned as being honeycombed by worms. The machine evidently knows its business, for it picks up the piles and puts them down with amazing celerity.

Mr. Michael J. Griffin has been employed fourteen years in ornamenting and adorning lawns and cemetery lots. At first he was engaged on a small scale, and was comparatively unknown, but by carefulness and strict attention to his business he has attracted a large number of patrons, and has obtained the confidence of the community. At this season of the year he is very actively at work, but still ready to serve the calls of all those who desire his services. He is a member of the common council from ward two, and was elected by the city councils as superintendent of burying grounds.

The Rockingham Bicycle club at the annual meeting elected Charles A. Hazlett president, W. C. Walton secretary and treasurer, Goodwin E. Philbrick captain, F. H. Ward 1st lieutenant, C. W. Gray 2d lieutenant, W. W. McIntire bugler, and H. P. Montgomery color-bearer.

The lodge of A. O. U. W. instituted in Kittery on the evening of May 24th is called Polar Star lodge, No. 55.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music

Ranks with the very best, and no Sunday School management should adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.

Praise (60 cts., $4.50 per doz.) Rev. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, bright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) Rev. by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Poetry Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.

Songs of Promise (25 cts., $2.40 per doz.) J. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, melodious, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (25 cts., $2.40 per doz.) R. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well-known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.

For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.

For a lovely little book for the young children of a Sunday School, look no further than FRESH FLOWERS (35 cts., $2.40 per doz.) Emma Pitt. Sweet Hymns, Sweet Music, Pretty Pictures.

mare had fled toward the tents of the Beni-Firaz, and none might overtake her.

And swart Nubaliah muttered: "There was no other like him among the men of Firaz. I almost repent me to have slain him." And a wild man of Sulaim, marveling, smote the foot of his spear into the dead man's eye, and cried aloud, in the uncouthness of his admiration, "God curse thee!—a man who defendeth his women even after he is dead!"

But Oumm Saiyar and the women had reached the tents of the Beni-Firaz, and aroused the tribe. And the best men of the camp sprung to horses in haste, and rode fiercely to the Pass of Ghazal; but they only found Rabyah lying there, naked and dead, and the vultures circling above him. And leaving him there, they pursued so furiously after the sons of Sulaim that the log way smoked beneath them; yet they could not overtake them.

So they rode back to where Rabyah lay, and they buried him there, with great mourning, in the place of his last and greatest deed. And they built above him a hill of black stones to mark the spot, and in the midst thereof, at the summit, they set up a great white stone, shaped like the back of a camel.

And never thereafter—until the days of the Prophet—did any Arab of any tribe pass that way who did not sacrifice a camel in honor of the valiant one who had defended his women even after he was dead. (Except, indeed, Hafs, son of Al-Ahmaf, who, having but one camel, could not make the sacrifice; but he composed an immortal poem in honor of Rabyah, and his verses are still in the mouths of the Arabian people.)

And never a son of Firaz passed that way to war who did not cry out unto Rabyah: "La tab'adan! Abide with us! Be with us this day, O Rabyah!"

And after Islam, not less than in the Days of Ignorance, the wives of the desert horsemen prayed that they might become mothers of brave tall boys worthy to bear Rabyah's name.

And whenever, in time of foray, or in days of ill fortune of war, or amid the ghastly perils of desert travel, women found themselves face to face with the fear of shame, they would cry out the name of him upon whom no woman had ever called vainly in those wild, dark days before Islam.

And Islam itself, spreading like a holy fire east and west, 200 days' journey from India to the Sea of Darkness, bore abroad his name, and flashed it far into the black south, making it known unto the blue eyed Touareg, whose camels dance to the sound of music—making it known to those swart sultan's whose domains do border upon the unknown lakes of Afrikis.—Lafcadio Hearn in Harper's Bazar.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

Four young men and their horses recently took refuge from a heavy rainstorm under a tree on Pine Island, near Chattanooga, Tenn. Lightning struck the tree, killing the horses, and probably fatally injuring the men.

The supreme court of the United States has sustained the validity of the driven-wells patent.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

The shirt worn by Michael Conlon, the man supposed to have been murdered at Meredith and thrown into the lake, has been found; it is much spattered with blood, but not much torn. There is no clue to the murderer.

The New Haven aldermen have thanked Inspector Byrnes, of New York, for his prompt capture of the supposed Ernst murderers, he having refused any money reward.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing, nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cures of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

President Cleveland has given notice that he will be unable to attend the dedication of the soldiers' monument at New Haven, Conn., June 17th.

There is trouble in F. M. Breed's shoe factory in Rochester, only about fifty of the 400 hands employed being at work.

One Hop Plaster will kill pain quicker and is a better strengthener than a dozen other kinds.

Clear the Way,

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up by reason of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. The fiat of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles, and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

The queen of the Sandwich islands has sailed from New York for England.

John Thomson, a boat builder, left Hemilton, Ont., on the evening of May 24th, for a row on the bay in a small skiff, with his wife, a Miss Vincent and three children. It is supposed that the boat upset in a squall, which sprang up shortly after they had put out, as Mrs. Thomson's body was washed ashore next morning. Nothing has been heard of the others.

Constipation is postively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and stregthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to the proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will peform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative Pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

At Warrenton, Ga., last week, a man named Hoover, who was organizing negroes into labor associations, was "riddled with bullets" while making an address, by white regulators, who do not approve of negro organization. This is the way the "New South" encourages freedom of speech and action.

SALEM, MASS., May 12, 1887.

ENGINEER BAXTER,

He Tells the Story of a Ten Years' Fight.

About the year 1877 I was superintending some work on Harlem Flats. The ground was composed of earth that had been dumped on the soft and spongy shores of the Harlem River, and was full of decaying vegetable matter. From frequent visits I contracted dumb ague—the worst and most persistent form of malarial fever, the most perplexing to deal with and the hardest to break up. When dumb ague once gets hold of a man it sticks to him like his skin or the color of his eyes.

Well, my physician prescribed quinine; very large doses of it—fifteen grains at a dose, if I remember right. It is sufficiently to the purpose to say that in a general way I kept on taking quinine in this liberal style for ten years. Not every day, of course, but as the disease troubled me more or less; yet I may be said to have been under the influence of quinine all that time.

After this steady dosing with quinine for several months I began to feel the bad effects of it. My hearing grew dull. Then memory began to be uncertain on special points, and I caught myself forgetting things which I never forgot before.

Another peculiarity of my ailment was this: I had one "well" week and one "sick" week, as other malaria patients have sick and well days.

During the ten years I speak of I used to take quinine raw—that is, I poured it in whisky and drank the mixture. I did this so often that the druggist knew my habit, and, as I entered his store he would often greet me with the remark:

"I know what you want, you want some quinine and whisky."

About a year ago I saw Kaskine advertised, and said to my wife: "I am going to buy a bottle of that stuff." Believe in it? Bless you, no. Why should I? But it was a chance. I got it and began taking it according to directions. I commenced feeling better almost immediately. In a few days the worst symptoms abated, and in less than three months I was cured! Not a sign of malaria was left, and the indigestion and dyspepsia went with it. This is now nearly a year ago, and I have had no relapse, and don't expect any. My nervous system got back its tone, and to-day I am as good as new.

What I think of Kaskine you may infer from this condensed statement of the facts in my case.

C. BAXTER,
Harlem, New York.

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application.

GUFFAWS, GRINS AND GIGGLES.

Different Kinds of Cachinnation—Spontaneous, Sentimental, Hysterical.

There is a class of wisdom seeking Solons in this city who, strange as it may appear, profess to be able to judge persons from their laughter. They claim that the voice in laughing indicates the individual character to greater or less extent, as surely as does the study of the three p's—phrenology, physiognomy and palmistry. They describe themselves as laughter readers, and believe that their cachinnating diagnoses are just as correct as those of the mind reader, the chiromancist and the phrenologist. They divide the human laugh into four forms, namely, the genuine or spontaneous, the sentimental, the hysterical and the false or satirical laugh. The inarticulate sound of the vocal organ in cachinnating is as expressive to their ears as are the chords of the piano to the musician. They imagine, whether truly or not is a matter of belief, that they can read a nervous character as soon as they hear one laugh.

The genuine or spontaneous laugh is described by them as of quick, ringing sound, more or less magnetic and catching, according to the physique of the laugher. It denotes a happy disposition, good health and a sympathetic nature. Rich people, it is claimed, are never possessed of this sort of laugh. Neither are misanthropes. The Persians say that it conveys more meaning than any other sort of laugh. There is more music in it, and it is difficult, if not impossible, to imitate. It is essentially the vox humana, and there is more life in it than in any other laugh.

The sentimental laugh is of a different kind. Persons of weak natures who are easily influenced by others are addicted to it. Women indulge in it to a great extent. It is devoid of passion or power compared to the genuine, whole souled laugh; musically speaking, it is as the clarion is to the flutina, the diagnosists say.

The laugh of scorn, which comes within the category of mock laugh, is sometimes difficult to analyze. "Its dread laugh what philosophers can scorn." Only spare, robust persons, it is said, can laugh the true laugh of scorn.

The guffaw is described as a loud, unsonorous sound, which is indicative of nothing in particular.

The laugh hysterical belongs to nervously inclined people. Another name for it is the "giggle." It is more a movement of the throat than of the lungs. People with heart diseases are given to giggling. "I can tell a man by his laugh or a woman by her giggle," is a maxim. The giggle is a dangerous style of laughter, and those who allow it to grow upon them are liable to sudden death, the experts claim.

Last of all the ways of laughter is the satirical laugh. It is hollow and insincere and expresses a doubt or disbelief. It is a polite way of saying in so many words, the philosopher asserts, "You are a liar." Agnostics and misanthropes are given to this laugh. With the most rabid disbelievers, the laugh is curtailed to what is termed a "chuckle." There is yet another laugh which is a sign of sudden joy over some unexpected fortune. Shakespeare says, "They laugh who win."—New York Journal.

Jay Gould Eats Snails.

Jay Gould has set down towners to eating snails. Nearly every afternoon since his return from his far western trip the great little financier has stopped at the office of a transatlantic steamship company, stayed a few seconds in the agent's sanctum and emerged with a brown papered parcel, which he carried home with the air of possessing something very precious. These packages contained each about a quart of snails, of the species eaten in some parts of France, and especially imported by some of the steamship men as a favor to friends.

Mr. Gould got his appetite for snails in New Mexico, however, and "got it bad," as one close observer declares. He has the things cooked under stringent orders to boil them first in their shells, then submerge them in a highly flavored sauce and finally roast them. They are served in the shells, which by this time are thoroughly browned. When eaten they are piled hot on a plate, after the manner of roasted clams, and the eater extracts them by holding a shell in his left hand, while with a fork in his right he gets the curious morsel out. The taste is pleasant, if one isn't squeamish, and a liking is easily acquired for the "escargots," as they are called in the restaurants where they have been this week suddenly introduced. Some are brought from France, but the bulk are gathered by boys in the outlying districts. Mr. Gould has hitherto been famous for a plain diet, and so his mania for snails is all the more a Wall street wonder.—New York Sun.

Too Much Starch in Cuba.

The operations of the toilet are sometimes still further retarded by the necessity of rubbing the starch out of any articles needed from the last week's wash.

I have not yet succeeded in convincing Paula, the laundress, that when I say "No starch" I mean precisely that, and am prepared for no compromise whatsoever. The Cuban practice is to starch all garments, without exception, to the utmost degree of stiffness. How they manage to wear them I cannot imagine. The sensations of a foreigner are best described by a certain Herr Wagner I met in Havana.

"The first time that I sat down in a clean shirt from a Cuban laundry," said he, "I thought I must have landed on a pile of broken crockery. And when it became necessary to put on a Cubanized night shirt I sat up till 2 o'clock in the morning trying to rub the scratch and the crackle out of it. As for pocket handkerchiefs, you might as well use sand paper."—Youth's Companion.

"What earthly use will such a contrivance be?"

"Why, you see, when a man comes home without any fish and his jug empty he can hand his wife the broken fish pole and show her the rattles of the snake that bit him."—Omaha World.

Parisian Theatre Burned.

The Opera Comique at Paris was burned on the night of May 25th, and though the audience behaved with wonderful coolness many persons lost their lives. The fire caught on the stage, one of the wings igniting from a gas jet, and the whole stage was on fire in a few moments. Fourteen persons were killed, and forty-three others injured, some fatally and many very seriously, by jumping from windows; these were nearly all supernumeraries. Five bodies of persons burned to death were found in the ruins, among them being a woman clasping a little boy in her arms. Four firemen were killed. The building was totally destroyed. The total loss of lives is estimated at sixty.

THE DRIVEN-WELL PATENT.

The decision of the supreme court of the United States sustaining the validity of the patent for what are known as driven wells, which consist of nothing but a pointed tube driven into the ground and worked by an ordinary pump, is of deep interest to tens of thousands of farmers in all parts of the country.

The patent was issued to Nelson W. Green in 1868 and in 1871, since which time suits have been brought in nearly every circuit court in the United States. The case first reached the supreme court some years ago, but that tribunal was then equally divided on the question, leaving it open. A new suit was brought subsequently in Iowa against the validity of the patent, on the ground that the public had acquired rights during the five years in which the wells were in use before the first steps were taken to obtain a patent, which resulted in favor of those contesting it.

The first of these wells was driven in 1861, in the camp of a New York regiment which was commanded by Colonel Green. Other wells were driven during and after the war, and upon this circumstance the circuit courts of Indiana and Iowa held that the use of the wells by the public rendered the subsequently-granted patent void. In Indiana the decision was rendered by Judge Gresham. Similar decisions have been reached in Connecticut, New Jersey and Ohio, from which the present appeal was taken. The supreme court now reverses the decisions of the lower courts, and holds that the invention had neither been anticipated nor used by others in a manner to invalidate the patent. This decision renders every person who uses or has used a driven well without permission of the persons controlling the Green patent, liable for damages for infringement.

The interest involved, while it will no doubt prove small in each individual case, must amount to a vast sum in the aggregate, as the patentees have records of over 500,000 of such wells in use in the entire country, there being more than 50,000 in Indiana alone; but putting the number at 500,000 and the royalty at $10 each, would amount to the snug little sum of $5,000,000, almost the whole of which will come out of the pockets of the farmers, very few of the wells being in use in cities or large towns.

There are many of these wells in this vicinity, several hundred having been driven in Stratham, South Newmarket, Newmarket, Exeter, Durham, etc., within a few years. The cost being trifling in comparison with that of a dug well, many farmers had them put down at different points on their farms, for the convenience of watering their stock, and other purposes; and the parties putting them down, in many if not all cases guaranteed to defend the users of the wells from all claims for infringement of any patent whatever. How much this guaranty is worth will now be a matter of concern to those to whom it was given.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Maggie J. Smith, which arrived at this port May 25th from Newport News, brought 1158 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker.

The oyster schooner Carrie, of New Haven, Conn., was on May 24th cut in two by the United States coast survey schooner Eagre, in a fog.

The schooner Jennie F. Wiley, Chadwick master, from Baltimore for Newburyport with 500 tons of coal, went ashore near the north jetty at the mouth of the Merrimack river during a dense fog on the afternoon of May 25th, but it was hoped could be got off. She is owned in Thomaston, Me., valued at $10,000, and uninsured.

Steamer Wyanoke, of the Old Dominion line, collided with the schooner Penobscot, of Belfast, Me., near the Scotland lightship in a dense fog May 25th, and took out all three of her masts, besides wrecking her badly otherwise. The steamer had one wheel damaged, but towed the Penobscot into New York harbor.

The ship Ocean King, the largest sailing vessel in the American merchant fleet, whose loss by fire has already been reported, had her sails blown away and was started leaking in a heavy gale on May 7th, while on the passage from British Columbia to San Francisco with a load of coal. The pump shaft was broken so that the donkey engine was useless, and the crew were driven aft for shelter. The vessel then took fire forward, and the crew attempted to leave her, but their boats were stove alongside, and they were compelled to remain on the burning and sinking wreck until noon on the 8th, when they were rescued by the boats of a small fishing schooner which had been lying by them for seven hours. There were twenty-five men on the ship, and all were saved. The destruction of the Kennebunk-built leviathan does not leave the merchant fleet without an Ocean King, there being two others, one a Gloucester schooner of less than eighty tons, and the other a six ton sloop at Santa Barbara, Cal. The ship registered 2156 tons.

Rain has extinguished the forest fires in Wisconsin and Michigan.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.
Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.
For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.
MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 43 Granite St.
Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.
If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.
Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.
For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 9

Three Peculiarities
Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:
1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.
2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.
3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.
The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Meeting of the Subscribers to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Fund.

The subscribers to the fund for the erection of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument are requested to meet at the Common Council room on Friday evening, May 27th instant, at 8 o'clock, sharp. As very important business will come before the meeting, every subscriber is specially requested to be present.

NOTICE---WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Members of Storer Relief Corps are hereby notified to meet at the hall on Saturday at 12:30 o'clock, to attend the funeral of our late Sister, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Seavey of Rye, which takes place at two o'clock. PER ORDER.

"AY, TEAR HER TATTERED ENSIGH DOWN."

We agree with the democratic county committee man who came to town on Monday of this week to name a candidate for register of deeds, that the flag which Commodore Hanscom flies on the custom house during business hours is rather dilapidated for a government like ours, with so many millions in its treasury, to display. It is to be hoped that when the new fiscal year begins the only public building of the kind in the state may fly a new flag. The eagle begins to look lonesome because half of the stripes have left it.

This is not the flag of which Daniel Webster in his speech in reply to Hayne expressed a hope that there would not be a stripe erased. That was the gorgeous ensign of the republic. The flag which floats over the custom house is the American customs flag, and as the stripes run perpendicularly instead of horizontally, it is quite apt to lose one or more of the thirteen before it is condemned. We trust before the secretary of the treasury comes here to visit the president the coming summer he will order the custom house to be supplied with new bunting.

BASE BALL.

The "Summer Boarders" base ball club of this city have organized for the season, and would like to arrange games with other amateur clubs—High school club preferred. All communications should be addressed to "John Foley, Captain Summer Boarders B. B. C."

The Portsmouth High school nine will play the Kittery nine at the Plains tomorrow (Saturday) forenoon.

The Walker school nine will play the Granite State nine of this city at the Plains on Wednesday afternoon, June 1st.

The Portsmouth High school nine will play the Dover nine at the Plains on Thursday afternoon, June 2d.

National League games, May 26th: Chicago 3, Boston 1; New York 7, Detroit 6; Philadelphia 9, Indianapolis 7. The Pittsburg-Washington game at Washington was omitted on account of rain.

Messrs. Willis E. and George M. Nowell took part in a classical concert at Providence, R. I., on the evening of May 24th, and the Journal of that city says: "The Messrs. Nowell's performance of the beautiful Rubenstein sonata was the most important contribution to the evening's music, and was quite worthy of its many beautiful qualities, unexceptionable in depth of feeling and in the rendering of its strong yet delicately poetic fancy."

Councilman Casey has opened a boot and shoe store at No. 26 Market street, lately occupied by Mr. Frank E. H. Marden. As he is a practical shoemaker he knows how to select goods, and his stock is all new, he having only opened for business to-day.

The Arbutus boat club, of the north end, have sold their boat to parties at Dover.

The East St. Louis Meat Co. have purchased the vacant lot on McDonough street, near the railroad, where the old Rockingham mill (afterward the Came carriage manufactory) formerly stood, and will erect thereon a suitable building for the wholesale meat business.

Charles H. Clark & Co., successors to Henry M. Clark, have on sale clear pork and pork backs in large amount, 100 tubs of lard, and 150 4-lb. and 8-lb. cans of lard; these goods are all of their own packing, from the corn-fed porkers of the neighboring country, and are of the very highest quality. They also have on hand the best brands of flour, and a large stock of best quality miscellaneous goods.

The makers of illustrated articles for the daily papers have in some way got hold of a photograph of our worthy and respected city clerk, and from it have made a picture which they are palming off an unsuspecting public as a likeness of Hon. William O'Brien, the noted Irish home ruler and editor of United Ireland, who has been in Canada giving Lord Lansdowne such a raking, and being shot at and pelted with bricks and other missiles.

A large gang of men were on the 26th inst. engaged in relaying the freight tracks on the northerly side of the Boston & Maine railroad station in this city, and further west in the freight yard.

The portable sawmill which has been stationed at Dennett's woods, Kittery, during the past winter, was loaded on the Concord railroad cars at the station in this city on Thursday, the 26th inst., for transportation to Epping, where the owners, Thompson Brothers, reside.

If you are in want of a good writing ink, call at Frank W. Moses' book, music and art store, No. 1 Congress block, and get a bottle of Carter's Writing Fluid. It answers every requirement of a good writing ink; we have tried it.

Among the saloon passengers booked for the Cunard steamer Pavonia, from Boston for Liverpool, on the 26th inst., were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Niles. They will attend the marriage of E. Glover Niles, (their only son,) in London, early next month, and afterward make an extended stay at Carlsbad, Germany.

Among the successful merchants of the new era at Portsmouth, N. H., is J. Albert Walker, who has made nearly a million in coal traffic. For several years, though dealing in hard coal, he has had a soft thing with the Reading railroad. When Walker finds Portsmouth too small for business investments, with Frank Jones in the market, he slips away to Kansas City or Newburyport and buys a slice of the town as a means of disposing of part of his surplus capital.—Boston Record.

The total amount of death claims paid by the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York for the week ending May 20th was $135,437.14; endowments paid during the same week, $23,613.23. For every $1 paid in premiums on the above policies the company returned $3.31.

The Boston & Maine railroad will at once build a new turn-table and coal shed in Dover, the old turn-tables of the Boston & Maine and Dover & Winnepiseogee roads being nearly worn out. The new turn-table will take the place of both the old ones.

Mrs. Sally Bennett Durell of Newmarket, who died on the 11th inst. in Lee at the age of eighty-six years, while on a visit to a married daughter there, was one of the fifteen children of the late Rev. John Osborn, of whom now two only survive. Mrs Durrell was mother of twelve children, of whom six are living—five sons and one daughter.

The barbers of Dover have all agreed to close their shops at two o'clock every Monday afternoon during the summer.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

The parasols shown by Lewis E. Staples this season cannot be beaten for styles and low prices. Ladies, call and look at them, and be convinced.

At the urgent solicitation of a number of my patrons I shall continue for a few months after May 1st, to make those fine Cabinet Photos for $2.00 a dozen.

LANDING AT CASTLE GARDEN.

The Two Rivers of Humanity—The Probabilities of Citizenship.

It would be a pleasant use of the power of clairvoyance, if one possessed it, to go down to Castle Garden and pick out the future Carnegies and Woods among the throng of steerage passengers when they have just been transferred from the steamers to the garden. Even without the exercise of divination the sight is an interesting one. As the immigrants land, chattering in their various tongues, they are huddled together like a great drove of sheep in a grove during a thunder storm. Then the big doors are thrown open and the procession moves into the amphitheatre. Generally more than one steamer at a time empties its living freight from the steerage into the garden, and all the types of Europe are represented in the motley throng. There are stout boys from Ireland, men, women and children from France and the lower German provinces, Scandinavians and Italians from Leghorn and Mediterranean ports.

Upon entering the castle proper the procession divides, one line swinging out to the left and one to the right, and these two rivers of humanity are again divided into four smaller streams, which flow into narrow passageways. The center of the garden is fenced in, and by passageway, railing and wicket gate the immigrants are finally resolved into their various nationalities and quickly registered by the clerk. Take the Italians for example. They were lined off and brought up to a desk, where each person was asked a few questions. First the name is given, then the place from which he came, his destination, and whether or not he had money. This finished, the new arrivals were turned loose in the rotunda and permitted to do as they pleased. Breaking up into nationalities, they sat down on their baggage or prepared to camp out on the floor. Scandinavians took one corner and sat there without comment, looking like inhabitants of a silent city; Italians had possession of the next, but they were anything but silent, keeping up an endless chatter; Irish and German groups made themselves as comfortable as possible while they waited for friends or prepared their beds to remain all night in the garden.

Among them railroad agents were going about, pasting addresses on the caps of the men and attaching placards to the children, and toward night boats came up from the railroad companies and carried off loads to the stations. Money changers also plied their vocation, and rival telegraph companies shouted in their bidding for customers. It was a curious and bewildering scene; it was intensely interesting, moreover, to one who could sympathize with the emotions of the new arrivals or ponder over the probabilities of citizenship.—Willis Steele in Chicago Times.

The Chinese national bank examiner when on his round among the banks always takes with him a block, an ax, and a bag of sawdust. The use for these articles will suggest itself when it is stated that the decapitation of the defaulting officials of the Tung Lung bank has been ordered. A shortage means a good deal more to a Chinese bank officer than it does to his American compeer.—Boston Transcript.

Maud Mason, the young girl whose disappearance Tuesday evening, May 24th, created so much excitement in Waterville, Me., was found on Wednesday evening about six o'clock in the cemetery in that town, in company with George Blair, a young Nova Scotia man who was seen walking beside her horse Tuesday evening, and whose wife left him a few weeks ago. The girl was taken home, and Blair was locked up but soon released.

It is reported that the Star of Bethlehem, which is only seen once in 300 years, has been discovered by a Kentucky astronomer.

Beware of Swindlers.

We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers who advertise, under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we can honestly recommend Sulphur Bitters.—Editor Sun.

Jennie Anderson, daughter of a leading citizen of Bates county, Mo., was chloroformed and outraged, May 17th. On recovering she described her assailant accurately, and John Vanderberg was arrested and fully identified. May 24th, at Rockville, he had an examination, and just as the judge announced that he was held in $10,000 three pistol shots were heard, and Vanderberg fell dead.

A party of boys were swimming in the river at the foot of Clarkson street, New York, May 25th, when the police appeared, and all ran away except Tommy Gray, seven years old, who jumped into an ice-wagon and got into a box used by the driver as a seat. Half an hour later the other boys returned, and found Tommy dead, he having smothered, having been unable to raise the lid, which closed with a catch on the outside. The little fellow's fingers and body showed that he had made a hard struggle for his life.

Fritz Kibitz, a little boy in New York, died May 22d from the bite of a spider.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music
Books with the very best, and no Sunday School management should adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.
Voices of Praise (40 cts., $4.20 per doz.) Bev. Dr. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, bright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.
Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Vestry Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.
Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. H. Tenney and Rev. E. A. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.
Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.
For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.
For a lively little book for the young children of a Sunday School, look no further than FRESH FLOWERS (25 cts., $2.40 per doz.) Emma Pitt. Sweet Hymns, Sweet Music, Pretty Pictures.

A Boon for Old Soldiers.

Many an old soldier still suffering from wounds received in the great civil war will be interested in the following letter:

P. O. Box 10, Mendota, Ill, Jan. 8th, 1885.—I suffered greatly for a number of years with violent pains through my left lung, occasioned by a gunshot wound. The wound healed, but I was left with severe neuralgic pains—particularly during changes in the weather. I found no relief until I placed an Allcock's Porous Plaster on my back and chest, covering the inlet and outlet of the ball. In less than an hour I was free from pain.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing, nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cures of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

Renowned Medicine.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age —A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with like success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS: — Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Member of Canadian Parliament.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home.

FOREST AND RAINFALL.

IMPORTANT ACTIONS WHICH AFFECT LAND AND SEA.

The First Result When Land is Destitute of Forests—Another Important Result—Beautiful Phenomena—Erosion of the Soil.

The tangle of decayed vegetation which covers the ground beneath the forest is of considerable thickness. On top it consists altogether of the decayed trunks, branches and leaves of the forest trees, while below comes dark colored soil at the depth of a few feet from the surface. This, the decay zone of the forest, lies between the boughs of the air and the branches of the roots. In it go on the most important actions which take place in our forests—actions which affect the history of land and sea. We shall therefore have to consider it in a somewhat painstaking way.

The most evident effect of this sheet of decaying wood, and moss which feeds on the decay, is on the rainfall of the region which it mantles. When, after a season of drought, a copious rain falls on this spongy mass, the water is for a long time absorbed in the interstices, and does not flow to the rivers. Even in times of very heavy rain the water is slowly yielded to the streams; after a dry period of many weeks this sponge retains a good share of water. A like amount of rain falling on filled fields or pastures slips quickly away to the rivers and thence to the sea. The first result is that when the land is destitute of forests it sheds water like house roofs, breeding floods after every considerable rain, while in the forests the rain is only slowly yielded to the streams.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT RESULT.

A second and less evident result of the spongy character of the forest bed is that, by hindering the escape of the rain water to the rivers, it increases the actual rainfall of the country. To see the nature and importance of this action we must turn aside for a moment to consider the origin of the rain which falls upon the land. The original source of this water supply is the sea, which sends into the lands a tolerably regular annual store of moisture. When this falls as rain or snow, either of two things may happen—the water may go away directly to the sea or it may return to the atmosphere as vapor to be again precipitated as rain. The chance of its re-evaporation is determined by the speed with which it flows to the streams. From a treeless region it rapidly escapes; in an extensive district of virgin forest it may again and again pass from earth to air, and from air to earth.

The columns of vapor, which in times of summer rain may be seen ascending from every great wood, afford visible evidence of the effect of forests on rainfall. They also may show the observer some of the most beautiful phenomena of atmospheric circulation. In a summer rain shower the air above the trees becomes much cooler than it is in the recesses below their tents of foliage. This heated air within the woods seeks to rise and escapes in great columns wherever there is a wide gap between the branches; as soon as it attains the cooler level above the moisture is condensed, and the air, before transparent, becomes charged with steam. To replace this ascending air a broad current drifts toward the emerging streams of vapor, commonly from the higher parts of the forest, where the air, owing to the elevation of the site, is cooler than in the lower levels.

EROSION OF THE SOIL.

This repeated passage of the moisture from earth to cloud and from cloud to earth greatly increases the amount of force which the rain applies in its falling drops to the earth's surface; but the rank vegetation protects the surface from the erosion which it would otherwise bring about. Even the forest clad hillsides of the Cumberland mountains, where the soil lies on declivities of great steepness, suffer little wear as long as their natural protection is left to them. But as soon as they are stripped of the garment of wood which has been upon the region ever since, in the far off ages, they came from the depths of the sea, they wear with great rapidity. The erosion is limited, as long as they are forest clad, to the stream beds, and there is hindered by the innumerable obstacles of the fallen trees and entangled driftwood.

The brooks which are strong enough to clear their beds and cut into the earth and rock are few in number; we may often, on the flatter ground, find tracts of a square mile or more in area in which there is not a single stream that ever assails the surface of the earth. As soon, however, as the forest mat is removed, the surface becomes seamed with channels; they often, on the deforested surface, increase 100 fold in their length and more than that measure in their destructive power. Relieved of all restraint from fallen timber, or the loose knit roots which enmesh the earth, they sweep the precious soil away toward the sea. In a single day a tilled field may lose from its surface more soil than would be taken from it in a century of its forest state.—Scribner's Magazine.

Treatment of the Conscience.

The conscience can be dulled in one direction by neglect, even while it is quickened in another by exercise, and it is too often the case that persons think themselves bound to pursue a certain course while they entirely forget that they are first of all bound to discover, to the best of their ability, whether that course is the right and the true one. To cultivate the reason, to strengthen the judgment, to probe conclusions, to examine opinions, are obligations which a sensitive conscience should press with as much urgency as to act up to those conclusions when intelligently formed.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Where Rubies Are Found.

The designation "ruby mines" is altogether inappropriate, seeing that no mining is required, or, at any rate, has never been attempted. The gems are found in a very rough state at distances from the surface of the land, varying from three feet to a dozen, and these tracts of free, gravelly soil, intermixed with quartzy clay, stretch in long, slightly undulating plains, skirted by ranges of lofty hills.—Chicago Herald.

The cause of so many defeats in the battle of life is because men try to fight the ought to be's instead of the what is army.—Whitehall Times.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema—Another Important Result—Beautiful Phenomena—Erosion of the Soil. of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of his head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and will all similarly afflicted to know that statement is true and without exaggeration.

CHARLES McKAY,
Oct. 6, 1885. Peabody, Mass.

I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular.

WILLIAM J. McCARTHY,
33 Foster St., Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of any instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as a druggist.

A Word About Catarrh.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its principal battlefield. Catarrh enters into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives and simply procrastinate the sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Medication and by Internal administration, has never failed; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out."

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions price, $1.00.

The Paris Horror.

The reports from the burned Opera Comique in Paris grow vastly worse than the first statements were. The bodies of twenty girls, members of the ballet and chorus, were found in a heap where they perished; three men and two women were found in a stage box; the bodies of eighteen women, all in full dress, were found lying together at the bottom of a staircase, but no remains of men were found near them, though they all had escorts to the play. A number of other bodies were exhumed from the ruins, and many were found by the firemen floating in the water with which the theatre was flooded to the depth of five or six feet. The loss of life is now put at 150 or 200, and may even exceed the latter figures; 156 missing persons, most of whom were known to have intended going to the theatre on that fatal night, were enquired after by friends next day.

National Bureau of Unity Clubs.

Delegates from the different Unity clubs of the country, numbering about fifty, met in Channing hall, Unitarian building, Boston, May 26th, and formed the National Bureau of Unity Clubs. The new organization, under the constitution adopted, is designed for purely literary and social purposes in connection with the church, and it is generally understood, will be undenominational in character; it fact, some of the delegates stated that the clubs they represented would refuse to join the association if Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians or persons of any religion were to be excluded from membership. The following officers were elected:

President, Rev. Edward E. Hale; vice president, Rev. Messrs. J. L. Jones, C. W. Wendte and J. W. Day; recording secretary, Rev. G. M. Bodge; corresponding secretary, Rev. A. J. Rich; western corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. E. Gordon; treasurer, Rev. E. R. Butler.

The New York Times concludes an article upon the New Hampshire senatorship as follows: "Involved in the controversy are the personal plans and desires of various aspirants for the senatorship, including the irrepressible William E. Chandler, who after his manner assumes to be a boss of the New Hampshire republicans. Whatever happens it is to be hoped that the republican majority of the legislature will not discredit the party in that state or humiliate it in the country at large by foisting again into national prominence this disreputable and unscrupulous politician." It is perhaps superfluous to say that in these sentiments the Times differs widely from the ideas of the Concord Monitor upon the question.

Home Insurance Companies.

The representatives of the home insurance companies have, in conference at Concord, decided to adopt a thorough system of inspection of risks so as to prevent a recurrence of the recent disastrous fires. It was also determined that all places of 500 inhabitants must maintain fire departments. Statistics were submitted at the meeting showing that the losses in the state the last 17 months, exclusive of brush fires, aggregate about $1,500,000. Of this grand total the cities lost $300,000, or about 19 per cent., and towns and villages having little or no fire apparatus the balance, $1,200,000, or 81 per cent. An advance in rates in the small places was one of the unwelcome outcomes of the meeting.—Nashua Telegraph.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED

expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and nervous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

Nashua, N. H., March 17, 1886.

For rheumatism and rheumatic afflictions I believe Athlophoros a most excellent remedy, it penetrates all parts of the body, driving out rheumatism and makes a sure cure if taken according to directions. It is a splendid tonic for a run down system, a condition rheumatism is sure to make of one's health. I heartily recommend Athlophoros to all suffering with rheumatism, it is a fine medicine.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT, 43 Granite St.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

If I had depended on the doctors I believe I would have died, for they did me no good whatever. Rheumatism was the trouble and what a trouble it was, but now, thanks to Athlophoros, not to the doctors nor to the many other remedies I took, the rheumatism is kept off where it belongs. For two weeks I could not sleep, so severe was my pains; after a few doses of Athlophoros I felt relief and soon I enjoyed my sleep and rested very well. Gradually but surely the rheumatism disappeared, and to-day I can without the slightest hesitation say to anybody suffering with rheumatism, if you would be cured, don't wait to experiment with this and that cure, but take Athlophoros, it will do all it claims to do and will cure you. MRS. MARY E. GOODWIN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERLE, Salem, Mass.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' MONUMENT.

At a meeting of the subscribers to the soldiers' and sailors' monument fund, held in the common council room on Friday evening, Mayor Eldredge was called to the chair, and Major Urch to act as secretary.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of five, to procure plans for a monument to cost between $5000 and $10,000, the committee to be announced on Wednesday, June 8th.

A communication was received from Charles C. Melcher, a native of Portsmouth residing in Boston, asking that the sons of Portsmouth resident abroad be allowed to subscribe toward the monument. The secretary was authorized to answer the letter.

It was voted that the local press be requested to publish the list of subscribers, excepting such as should previous to June 6th notify the secretary and treasurer of the fund of their desire to have their names omitted.

Messrs. J. W. Parsons, M. M. Collis and C. H. Bessellevre were appointed a committee to ask the co-operation of the city government in the erection of the monument.

Adjourned to June 6th, at the same place.

BASE BALL.

The game between the High school nine and a Kittery nine, announced to be played this forenoon, has been postponed.

National League games, May 27th: Boston 8, Chicago 7; Philadelphia 6, Indianapolis 0; Detroit 11, New York 9; Pittsburg 9, Washington 8.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, May 27th.

Thomas Williams, drunk, promised to leave the city at once if allowed to go, so he was let off on probation.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Abrams of Kittery left home last Thursday for Boston to join the tug Knickerbocker, on which boat he has secured a position as engineer.

Governor-elect Sawyer was in town on Friday, and called upon the collector of the port upon official business.

E. C. Stedman was in town on Friday, and went to his cottage at Kelp Rock. Mr. Stedman intends to return to New York on Monday. As usual he is crowded with literary work, but promises himself a rest toward the end of the season.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

Frank Jones, with Gov. Rodwell of Maine and G. H. Goodwin of Salem own Convent hill in Somerville, Mass., where the Ursaline convent formerly stood. They wish to grade it to make it available for building, and have asked the Somerville aldermen to allow the Boston & Maine railroad to construct a railway track across Myrtle avenue. These owners have made a contract with the railroad to grade the hill, the railroad intending to use the earth removed to fill a tract of sixty-five acres of land which it intends when graded to utilize for railway purposes.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad was held in Manchester, May 27th. George B. Chandler and Herman F. Straw of Manchester, John W. Sanborn of Wakefield, John A. Spalding of Nashua, Elisha R. Brown of Dover, William Fowler of Boston and Charles A. Sinclair of Portsmouth were elected directors. Charles A. Sinclair was elected president, S. N. Bell of Manchester clerk, and Henry Chandler of Manchester treasurer.

The 1000-miles tickets on the Concord railroad, sold on and after June 1st, will be made good for a family, or for partners in business and their travelling salesmen or agents. The names of the persons for whom the ticket is good must be written thereon by an authorized agent of the corporation.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Northern railroad was held in White's opera house at Concord, May 26th, and the following-named gentlemen were unanimously elected directors: Alvah W. Sulloway, George W. Nesmith, Franklin U. Crocker, Josiah S. Benton, Jr., George E. Todd, Silas Pierce and Benjamin P. Cheney.

The Boston Post of May 27th says: "The Boston & Maine railroad company will, commencing Wednesday, June 1st, put on sale at the various ticket offices mileage tickets. These will be issued in the usual form, at the rate of two cents per mile or $20 for a 1000-mile book. Every ticket will bear the name of the party who proposes to use it, and will not be transferable. This departure on the part of the Boston & Maine management is one that has long been under consideration, but that could not, for various good reasons, be effected until the present time, and it is a departure, too, that will be well appreciated by the business men all along the line of the road. It amounts really to a reduction of one cent per mile on the prevailing rates, and it is bound, in connection with the big reduction in the suburban rates announced by the company on May 1st, to make a very considerable difference in the aggregate receipts for the year."

MARITIME NOTES.

A despatch of May 26th from New York said: "The Chapman wrecking company are at work stripping the bark Quicksep, which lies stuck at the West bank, and have entirely stripped her of sails. Her decks are bursting up, and she will probably be a total loss, together with her cargo of sugar. She is only partly insured. The captain and crew saved absolutely nothing. Captain Morrison, who was below at the time of the collision, barely escaped with his life, and lost everything, including $150 in gold and all his clothing and effects. The captain stayed by the wreck all Tuesday night in his yawl boat. One of the crew, a Chinaman, was made insane from fright, and was sent to New York."

The schooner Mary S. Hontvet, Johnson master, started on Friday for Gloucester, whence she will sail on a trip to the banks for halibut.

The schooner Jennie T. Willey, which went ashore near the north jetty at the entrance to Newburyport harbor at about half-past twelve o'clock P. M. on May 25th, during a thick fog, had a pilot on board at the time, and another pilot was in charge of the tug Jetty, which was towing the schooner. As soon as the vessel went ashore the captain of the life-saving station drove to Newburyport and got together part of his crew, secured two volunteers, and returning to the schooner carried out her anchors; and after nearly twelve hours of hard work had the satisfaction of getting her off unharmed. The anchors were buoyed and slipped, but were recovered by the life-saving crew next day.

The elevated engine house at the Concord railroad wharf is about completed, and nearly ready for hoisting.

Mr. James Stack, the former flagman at the Green street crossing of the railroad, has left his position there, and is at work at the Portsmouth shoe factory. Charles Abbott has taken his place at the crossing.

The Dover city councils on the evening of May 26th empowered Mayor Lowell and City Solicitor Pike to take such steps as they deem proper to form a pool of New Hampshire cities to fight the claims of Marcus P. Norton, et als., for alleged infringement by the cities in using the now celebrated Knibbs patent valve on steam fire engines.

Rev. J. H. Mugridge, for nearly seven years past minister of the Christian Baptist church at Ogunquit, Wells, Me., has with his family moved to Newcastle, N. H., where he will continue his labors as pastor of the Christian society in that town, also supplying at Beech Ridge, York.

NOTICE---WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Members of Storer Relief Corps are hereby notified to meet at the hall on Saturday at 12:30 o'clock, to attend the funeral of our late Sister, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Seavey of Rye, which takes place at two o'clock.

PER ORDER.

When Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," visited Boston, more than thirty years ago, she made her home at the Revere House; and this famous hotel has probably had the honor of entertaining more distinguished guests than any other hotel in this country.

Fire In Dover.

On Thursday afternoon, 25th inst., the building known as Pike's Mill, on the bank of the Cocheco, about two miles from the City Hall, was burned. It was built about 20 years ago by Pike & Dearborn, and then used as a saw mill. About 4 years ago the property was bought by the Cocheco Mang'g Co. Of late the only portion of the building occupied was a wing used by Messrs. Geo. W. Hobbs and Joshua G. Flagg for the manufacture of carriers' splitting knives—in which they did a successful business. The fire was first seen in the upper story, and is supposed to have caught in oily rags by spontaneous combustion. The fire could not be checked, but about all the valuables except the fixed machinery were got out. Loss of Messrs. P. & D. about $2000, on which there was no insurance. The building was 220 feet long, 40 wide, and three stories high; value about $2500; no insurance.

Ditson & Co.'s Sunday School Music

Ranks with the very best, and no Sunday School management should adopt a new Singing Book without carefully examining one of their "tried and true" Sunday School Song Books.

Voices of Praise (40 cts., $4.20 per doz.) Rev. C. L. Hutchins. Music and poetry dignified and classical, but not dull; in fact, bright and enthusiastic. Very large collection for the money.

Singing on the Way (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) by Mrs. Jewett, able assisted by Dr. Holbrook, whose noble compositions are known and loved in all the churches. This, like the book above mentioned, does excellently well for a Vesper Singing Book for prayer and praise meetings.

Songs of Promise (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) J. Hoffman—the first highly gifted, musically, and the second the author of many hymns of refined and beautiful quality. One of the newest books.

Song Worship (35 cts., $3.60 per doz.) L. O. Emerson and W. F. Sherwin, both celebrated compilers, composers and leaders, and the latter well known as having had charge of the music at many Chautauqua meetings.

For other good books, please send for lists and catalogues.

For a lovely little book for the young children of a Sunday School, look no further than FRESH FLOWERS (25 cts., $2.40 per doz.) Emma Pitt. Sweet Hymns, Sweet Music, Pretty Pictures.

There is serious trouble on the Columbia river, Oregon, between the fishermen who catch salmon in nets at the mouth of the river, and those who fish with traps higher up, the netters saying the traps must go, if they have to murder all the trappers. On the night of May 24th a trap fisherman and the owner of a cannery were shot down while watching their property.

Clear the Way,

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up by reason of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. The fiat of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles, and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

The fishermen of Newport, R. I., and vicinity, have formed an organization under the name of the Rhode Island Fresh Fish association, for mutual protection. They have already succeeded in raising the price of fish from $2 to $7 and $8 per barrel.

Schooner Chillion Ashore.

We received information by telephone this morning from the cable station, Rye Beach, that a small schooner had gone ashore within a short distance of that institution, at about six o'clock. Further intelligence went to show that the vessel on the beach was the schooner Chillion, Capt. Ira Whidden, of this port, bound from Hingham to a Maine port, light. The vessel left Hingham, Thursday, and was slowly making her way east in the fogs which have prevailed during the last few days. She was trying to make this harbor last night, but when a short distance south of Straw's point she let go her anchors to ride out the gale. She succeeded in holding on until nearly six o'clock this morning, when she slipped her cables and went ashore on the sand beach a few rods east of Rye ledge, and very near the bath houses at the south-western end of what is known as Jenness' beach. The Captain was fearful that it would blow harder, and considered it safer to slip his anchors and put his vessel ashore on the sand, than to take the chances of going onto rocks. The life saving crew went to the assistance of the vessel, and with their aid the crew of the schooner reached the beach in safety. The vessel went ashore at about half tide, and it cannot now be determined how much she is injured, or whether she can be got off or not. The Chillion was built at Westbrook, Me., in 1869. She is 74.1 feet long, 22 feet beam, and 6.9 feet deep, registering 74.48 net tons, and is owned in this city. She has been a very successful craft, and for some years has been engaged in the brick and lumber trade between this port and Boston and Maine ports and Boston. Capt. Call was her master up to last season, and Capt. Whidden was with him as mate.

The people at the cable station at Rye tell us this afternoon that the vessel has been carried well up on the beach by the tide, and that she now lies in good condition and apparently is not much injured. The sea is not now running very high. —Times, May 28th.

A prominent Portland democrat is quoted as feeling quite jovial over consolidation of internal revenue districts in New England. "That finished Redman; no more putting on airs on his part; he can stay at Ellsworth and meditate upon greatness. The deal has been an unfair one. The democrats of Maine have not been consulted, and discord has followed. The result of this consolidation will oust Redman, and possibly Patten. But Tom Murphy will be kept, and so will Gus Cromwell, though the latter don't care a red about it; but he is well known to the collector at Portsmouth, and is popular with his party in Maine." The foregoing has a decided flavor of Cap'n Chase. But this evidence that the democratic brethren cannot dwell together in unity is truly sad.—Biddeford Journal.

Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen is as strong physically as he is mentally. He is a constant marvel at the seaside resorts where he spends his summers, on account of his long-distance swimming. He picks up a great deal of material for literary work during the Portsmouth, and resorts unblushingly to flirtation in order to get it. At the close of a vacation on the Isles of Shoals he bade good-by to a young lady with whom he had carried on a flirtation, with the words; "I am very glad I met you; you have been worth at least $500 to me."—New York Sun.

McDonald and McGargle, two leading democratic politicians of Chicago, were put on trial last week on charges of defrauding the county; "Nic" Schneider, the county boiler-maker, turned state's evidence, and told how the boodlers got in their work.

Two great enemies—Hood's Sarsaparilla and impure blood. The latter is utterly defeated by the peculiar medicine.

Three thieving bellboys of the United States hotel at Boston were arrested last week, and $1200 worth of plunder was recovered.

You hardly realize that it is medicine, when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills; they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

To all who are afflicted with deafness:

I have been afflicted with deafness for about seven years; first, seemingly from a cold, but as I kept growing worse, I sought treatment from some of the best aurists, without any apparent benefit. I was about to give up in despair, when I chanced to read Dr. T. S. Page's advertisement in the paper. I wrote to him, with little faith that he could help me, but after receiving an answer I ordered the treatment, and after taking it two weeks, and following the directions closely, I commenced to hear better, and imagine my delight at the end of two months after taking the treatment, I could hear as well as anyone—my hearing fully restored. I can safely say that Mr. Page has found the cure which all deaf people should try, and if the drums are not injured, his treatment will cure you. I will gladly answer all letters from deaf people. Yours sincerely,

VINA A. VOSBURGH.

KASKINE,

THE NEW QUININE.

No Bad Effect.

No Headache.

No Nausea.

No ringing Ears

Cures Quickly.

Pleasant, Pure,

A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia, and all Germ Diseases.

A powerful Tonic that the most delicate stomach will bear. The most Scientific and Successful Blood Purifier.

I wish to sincerely thank you for the knowledge which you gave me of a remedy for nervous disorders and for neuralgia.

I have been afflicted all my life with attacks of neuralgia affecting principally my face and head giving me at times excruciating pain, disturbing my sleep and appetite and general health, and often rendering me unfit for business. You will see that this affection has been of long standing. These attacks were not continuous, but of an intermittent character, coming and going, making their appearance often like a flash of lightning, without any previous warning, tormenting me for a few days then passing off with a few lingering twinges, only to reappear later on. Besides being hereditary it was no doubt aggravated by nervous and mental irritation and exhaustion, helped on by a faulty digestion and bad nutrition. No doubt the prevailing cause of neuralgia is impoverished or poisoned blood. The seat and lines of attack are the nerves. A great city is not half so full of telegraph wires as the human body is of nerves, and neuralgia pains are the most exquisitly afflicting series of sensations from head to hand, and to the most distant portions of the body, a human being is capable of experiencing.

You may be very sure that I was eager to get rid of this infliction, and to this end have tried almost every form of nerve medication; oftentimes it is true with great temporary relief, but never, until I met with Kaskine, with a hint bore any resemblance to a cure.

When Kaskine (the new quinine) was brought to my notice by a friend it was at a time when one of my attacks was on me in full force. My friend told me that Kaskine (the new quinine) not only acted directly on the blood, disinfecting it of poison, but that it also acted on the digestive and assimilative functions, furnishing new and vivifying blood to the attenuated and throbbing nerves.

I without hesitation began to use it freely and steadily according to the directions, and found that it was not only an easy and a pleasant medicine to take, but also a very effective one. When I began taking Kaskine I was nearly wild with the spasms of pain in my head and face; they were almost unbearable. After a few doses had been taken I was greatly relieved of the paroxysms. I could sleep restfully and eat my food with relish, and I said to myself, "I think that this Kaskine will do the business for me."

I continued its use and was soon a different man; the pains were all gone, the nervous twitches and lightning-like twinges of darting agony had disappeared; my depressed spirits rose, and whatever the cause or however it may have wrought, I believe that Kaskine (the new quinine) has proved itself to be the true remedy for neuralgia.

Some months have now elapsed since my neuralgic attacks ceased and they have not returned.

I again thank you for making known to me this remedy, and if my "say so" is of any use to you or to others who may be suffering from this dreadful infliction, I am entirely willing that you should use my name in its behalf, as personally I believe in it.

P. S.—I will very willingly reply to any letters of inquiry addressed to me at my residence, 131 North Pearl street, Albany, N. Y.

END OF THE TRACK.

STIRRING SCENES AT A NEW MEXICO RAILROAD TOWN.

How 3,000 Outlaws Spent a Winter in a Secluded Region Among the Rockies—A Funeral Every Day—Departed Glory of Chama.

Chama is situated in Rio Arriba county, New Mexico, about seven miles from the Colorado line. In the winter of 1879-80 Chama was the western terminus of the San Juan division of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. The town at that time had a population of about 3,000, composed of railroad builders waiting for spring to open, contractors, gamblers, cowboys, cuttbreats, thugs, saloon keepers, speculators, teamsters, and a few business men and forwarding agents. There were about 250 women in the community, of which about a dozen were respectable and led virtuous lives. Chama was a tough town. Shotguns and large revolvers were necessary articles of men's dress, and no man attempted to go abroad without them or to go to sleep without having them within reach. The women, too, carried revolvers and demonstrated at regular intervals that they knew how to use them. Two-thirds of the men had no regular employment beyond killing time and each other. They had a cheerful willingness to be shot at and an earnest and painstaking habit of shooting back.

Scarcely a day passed during the months of November and December, 1879, and January, February and March, 1880, that there was not one or more funerals in town. Christmas day, 1879, there were three men and two women buried in one grave, without coffin, shroud or prayers. The population was regularly reduced, but the fame of the town had gone abroad through the San Juan region of Colorado and northern New Mexico, and toughs flocked in to take the place of those who crossed the great divide. There was a town marshal, but the office was merely ornamental, and was usually conferred on the most popular ruffian in the community. There were three marshals in five months, and at no time could the citizens point with pride to an ex-marshal. The office of marshal led but to the grave. The mayor had a less dangerous but a more onerous office. It was a duty of his office to attend all funerals in town. If he failed in this the friends of the departed took occasion to interview him, and after a couple of these interviews the mayor concluded that he would not be guilty of malfeasance in office thereafter.

Chama is nestled among the Rocky mountains. In winter time the average depths of snow exceeds seven feet. It is surrounded by great pine woods, and occasionally old Boreas gets on a lark and makes things hum. At the time of which we write there were three brick buildings in town, one frame building, five log houses, and a thousand tents, more or less, of all sizes and shapes. When a stiff breeze came tearing down the gulches from the Rockies it was a signal for the lowering of tents. The strongest ropes and the best braced canvas could not stand the racket, and the people knew it. So out in the elements the inhabitants of the tent went, and in order to make an even and symmetrical distribution of misery, they invariably attacked the occupants of the few houses, and between the tearing of the winds, the smashing of signs, the clattering of carts, the shooting of guns, the shrieking of women, the cursing of men, and the pitious braying of mules and burros, the night passed. These storms were of frequent occurence, but seldom lasted more than ten hours. The day after the storm there were generally a few funerals, the tents were raised and things went on in the old way. The women of the place were a picturesque set. They could shoot and stab and kill and swear, and habitually did so. They habitually got drunk. Some few of them maintained establishments of their own in tents, but the great number huddled together in great barn like dance houses with canvas roofs.

Each of these dance hall men had a little army of retainers, and he needed them. In the first place the bar needed a guard of at least a dozen ready shooters night and day. The first qualification of a barkeeper, too, was readiness with the pistol. The dance hall proper required at least ten select bouncers. There were ordinariiy three musicians attached to each establishment, and these were about the only non-combatants in the town. Yet sometimes stray bullets sent a fiddler to kingdom come, and a series of casualties at times created a music famine. On such occasions an effort was always in order to win a fiddler from a rival establishment. Sometimes a mighty poor fiddler cost as much as ten human lives, as the proprietors of a dance hall never gave up a musician without a battle. When rivalry between the dancing establishments ran high, it was a fancy stroke of enterprise on the part of a proprietor or manager to hire a dozen fancy gunners to shoot the music of another establishment. At last it was found necessary to build a log inclosure within the hall and conceal the musicians from view. All the musical talent in the neighborhood was shot. White men had long ceased to play, and Mexicans and negroes were getting so nervous that $50 a week, board, lodging and whisky could not tempt them.

ALL NATIONS REPRESENTED.

The women invariably took part in the melee. All nations nearly were represented. American and Irish women were good and ready on the shoot, Mexicans handled a dagger with a good deal of dexterity, negroes invariably had a razor concealed in their clothes, German and Scandinavian women could not fight worth a cent, and English women had a reputation for being very ready with their fists. The women were full of the esprit of the establishment with which they were connected. They despised the other gangs, and when they met on the streets a fight was almost certain to ensue. Fights of all kinds were of daily occurrence. The people of the town had nothing else to do. They were showed in—completely isolated from the rest of the world. The Denver and Rio Grande was completed to the town, but sometimes did not—and in fact could not because of snowdrifts and snowslides—send in trains more than once a month.

Chama was the heaven of desperadoes, and they flocked to it from all points of the compass. Farmington, N. M., and Durango, Colo., sent a good supply. Farmington, in the winter of 1879-80, was the headquarters for horse thieves for all that region extending from Pueblo and Santa Fe to Utah, and from Ouray and Rico to Albuquerque. Farming-

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age ---A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS: — Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Member of Canadian Parliament.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home.

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A Judicious Appointment.

The president has appointed E. Henry Lacombe to the office of United States Circuit judge in New York. The office was recently created by congress to give additional judicial aid in the business in the New York district.

Mr. Lacombe is a native of New York city, born in 1844; a graduate of Columbia college, where he was graduated at the age of seventeen. Two years later he was graduated from Columbia law school, and two years after that, was admitted to the bar. In 1875 he entered the law department of the city of New York under Wm. C. Whitney, and in 1884 was appointed corporation counsel.

The appointment of Mr. Lacombe is an excellent one. He is young, industrious and able. It is expected that by aid of an additional judge the large number of customs cases which have accumulated on the docket of the Circuit court will be disposed of.

Mayor Hewitt will have no easy task in selecting a proper lawyer to fill the position to be vacated June 30th by Mr. Lacombe.

On the other hand, the appointment of Mr. Oscar S. Strausse as minister to Turkey, is as bad as can be. Mr. Strausse is an importer of crockery ware, and the record of his firm as to undervaluation is beyond all question. The firm have been detected in very many undervaluations, and yet Mr. Cleveland, who of course was bound to know what was the character of the importer in this respect, commits—shall we say a blunder or a crime, in making this selection? The senate will doubtless permit the president to name another man for the position hereafter.

The Brewers in Council.

The United States Brewers' Association held its annual meeting at Baltimore, Md., last week.

The brewers regret the continued attempts of misguided persons to interfere with the free consumption of intoxicating and malt liquors. They regret this because they think it is unwise and unreasonable, and they hold that all legislation looking to the repression of the free sale of liquors is impolitic and uncalled for.

The brewers in Michigan were granted $5000, and a like sum was voted to the brewers in Tennessee, the money to be used in defeating the efforts of the prohibitionists in those states, and to buy up the fellows that are supposed to run that way in politics. A large assessment was ordered to enable the board of trustees to fight the "temperance fanatics" in various sections of the country.

The members acted as a unit in these matters. The next convention is to be held at St. Paul, when the brewers will take a little wine for the stomach's sake. The literary bureau, a very important adjunct of the association, has an appropriation of $9000 to expend.

Many Wrecks.

The United States revenue cutter Oliver Walcott has just returned from Vancouver's island to Port Townsend, Washington territory, and reports having found ship St. Stephens at Cape Cook, but the most diligent search failed to reveal any trace of her crew of thirty men. The St. Stephens left Port Townsend on March 19th with 2200 tons of coal from Seattle for San Francisco. Captain Williams of the Oliver Walcott thinks that the crew of the St. Stephens must have perished while trying to leave the vessel after it struck the reefs off Cape Cook. During the voyage of the Oliver Walcott from Cape Cook to Cape Flattery thirty-one wrecks were passed, and an immense amount of lumber was strewn along the shore.

A Colliery Horror.

An explosion in the Udson colliery, Scotland, May 28th, imprisoned over 200 miners, but nearly fifty were rescued in a short time, and five dead bodies were recovered; it was feared all the others in the mine would perish before they could be reached.

One of the editors from way-back recently went to Boston to see the sights, and thinking he would regale his readers with a dramatic criticism, applied for a complimentary seat in one of the theatres. The manager thought the interstate law would compel him to decline the courtesy. The editor went home and published a full account of the terrible holocanst at the Opera Comique, Paris, and congratulated himself that he had escaped even the possibility of a similar disaster in the modern Athens.

Lieut. Gov. Jones of New York, who disgusted the majority of the senate by the partial and unparliamentary manner in which he presided over the senate, disregarded the rules and omitted all recognition of the proper mode of performing the duties of presiding officer during the session just adjourned, had prepared—or had had prepared—a farewell speech. With an enterprise known only to a rising politician, copies of the eloquent remarks had been previously furnished the reporters. But the lieutenant governor failed to perpetrate his speech, and the copies had to be recalled.

When Gen. Grant used to visit Long Branch for a few weeks, all the while being within call, a democratic Congress called upon him to explain what he meant by such conduct, and the democratic papers were filled with denunciations of such gross neglect of duty by "our absentee president." When Mr. Cleveland goes away on a three weeks' trip, beyond the reach of railroads and telegraphs, it is called an "outing" by the democratic press.

FROM LIFE TO DEATH

is but a moment if rheumatism or neuralgia strikes the heart. These diseases are the most painful and the most dangerous of any to which human kind is liable. They fly from one part to another without a moment's warning, and liniments and other outward applications are in themselves dangerous because they are liable to drive the disease to some vital organ and cause instant death. Rheumatism and neuralgia are diseases of the blood, and can only be reached by a remedy which will drive from the blood the dangerous acids. Such a remedy is Athlophoros. It has been thoroughly tested and is a safe, sure cure.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

For the benefit of people suffering with rheumatism I write to make the following statement. For a series of years my wife has been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism, often lasting for several months at a time, suffering intense pains, and only found relief by injecting powerful remedies in the arm, receiving thereby only temporary relief. The last of December, 1885, it appeared in the right arm and had with it excruciating pains. I procured a bottle of Athlophoros and by the time she had taken the third or fourth dose the pain ceased, and now after having begun on the second bottle is much improved, and I think on the road to a complete cure.

DANIEL S. WARD.

Carlton House, Boston, Mass. June 21, 1886.

Last winter I was troubled with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which stuck to me with such obstinacy as to cause me much worriment, pain and misery. All of these troubles were speedily removed by two bottles of Athlophoros. That medicine cured me entirely. P. JOSEPH MONAHAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

MEMORIAL DAY.

To-day being a legal holiday, we shall issue no paper from this office to-morrow.

This morning at eight o'clock a detail from Storer Post, under command of the officer of the guard, will leave G. A. R. hall in wagons, visiting and decorating the graves of deceased soldiers and sailors in the North, Union and Catholic cemeteries in this city and the two cemeteries at Newcastle, and firing the usual volleys at each cemetery. Graves located in Rye will be decorated in the forenoon by comrades of Storer Post residing in that town; graves in Eliot, Me., by Comrades Cousins and Caban; those in private burial grounds in this city, by Comrade Herrington; and those in Greenland, by Quartermaster John H. Locke.

The order of the afternoon parade and exercises, and of the evening exercises at Music hall, we have already published.

Post-office hours to-day: General delivery open from 8:00 to 10:30 A. M. and from 6:00 to 6:30 P. M.; box office open all day.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

About sixty comrades of Storer Post, G. A. R., on Sunday forenoon marched from their hall to the Universalist church, where they took seats in a body in pews immediately in front of the pulpit, and listened to a very earnest and able patriotic discourse by the pastor, Rev. Lee H. Fisher, the subject of the address being "Our Defenders." The Woman's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans were also represented by a number of their members, though they did not attend as organizations. In the afternoon, at G. A. R. hall, a memorial address commemorative of the members of Storer Post who have died during the past year was delivered by Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor of the Methodist church.

Rev. J. D. Waldron closed his pastorate with the Pearl street Freewill Baptist church on Sunday, preaching his farewell sermon in the afternoon.

Owing to the stormy weather on Sunday afternoon, the proposed attendance of De Witt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar upon divine service at Christ church, on invitation of the rector, Rev. H. E. Hovey, was postponed to Sunday next, June 5th.

It had been announced that Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., would deliver on Sunday evening in the Middle street Baptist church a memorial address on "Our Heroic and Patriot Dead," but owing to his preaching in Great Falls that day an exchange with Rev. C. J. Fowler, he was unable to do so.

The vesper service in the Unitarian church will be omitted from now until the first Sunday in October.

TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The Rockingham County Temerance Association met at the Union church in Fremont on Thursday, May 26th, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, Rev. E. B. Pike in the chair. Devotional exercises conducted by Rev. A. B. Peabody occupied the first hour, and at twelve o'clock there was a basket collation in the vestry.

On resuming, Rev. J. W. Adams, who had served the association with great acceptability as secretary, tendered his resignation, he having moved to a remote part of the state. It was accepted, and Rev. J. Mowry Bean was chosen to fill the vacancy. A vote of thanks was given to the retiring secretary.

At 1:30 P. M. Rev. C. C. Foster spoke on "the Maine law," and at 2:15 Rev. J. M. Bean gave an address on "Constitutional amendment." Following this address, the next hour was occupied by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; and the last hour was taken for general discussion of the temperance question. The meeting was well attended, and the exercises interesting and profitable.

A CARD.

We acknowledge with many thanks the generous contributions of beautiful flowers and wreaths from Miss Smart's school for the use of the Grand Army in decorating graves on Memorial day.

THOMAS TREDICK, JR.,
Chairman Com. on Flowers.

PERSONAL.

The Boston Sunday Globe of May 29th says: "Another wedding on June 1st of interest in Boston will be that of Celia Thaxter's son, John Thaxter, and Miss Stoddard of Worcester."

Mr. Wm. B. Ogden and wife, of New York, arrived in this city on Saturday.

Wm. H. Rollins, Esq., returned on Saturday from an extended business tour in the west.

Mr. Edward S. Smart and wife, of Somerville, Mass., formerly of this city, arrived in town on Saturday evening to pass Memorial day with friends here.

"HIS ROYAL KNIBBS."

At a special meeting of the Dover city councils on the evening of May 26th, Mayor Lowell reported that he and the city solicitor had visited Concord and seen Judge Foster in relation to the suit of the Knibbs valve claimants against the city of Dover. Judge Foster, the mayor said, has in his possession all the documents of the former trial, and is now employed by the pool of cities in the case Norton et als. against Portsmouth, which was commenced in March, 1886, and not on the 23d of May inst., when the papers were served on the other cities. Judge Foster told Mayor Lowell that in all probability the release given the New Hampshire cities by Norton would stand, for in six decisions in like cases it had been sustained. The reason, he understood, why it was proposed to try to have the release set aside, was that the valve folks claimed it was obtained through fraud, and that some of the witnesses swore falsely. He also stated that Philbrick, who brings the present suits, at the time Norton signed the release had nothing to do with the case, but has since bought a share of Norton's interest, which however can give him nothing to do with the New Hampshire cities. Mayor Lowell further said that Roberts Brothers of Boston, counsel for the cities in the former suits, had not been engaged (as had been stated by some papers) by the valve claimants, and could be again engaged by the cities if desired.

MARITIME NOTES.

The brick schooner Satellite was hauled out on the marine railway at Kittery last week, to receive some slight repairs.

The three-masted schooner June Bright ran ashore at Scituate, Mass., on the night of May 27th, and will probably be a total loss; crew taken off by life-saving crew.

Samuel Taylor of this city was last week granted a pension.

Horace Sawyer is entertaining the first guests of the season to arrive at Rye beach.

Col. Sise Engine Co., No. 2, received their new uniforms on Saturday evening, and voted to participate in the parade on Memorial day.

Hoop Wah, recently one of the Chinese laundrymen of this city, is reported to have left for China with a fortune of $550 in his pocket. His place in the laundry is supplied by another emigrant from the Celestial Kingdom.

The electric light recently placed at the foot of Daniel street is one of the most serviceable ones in the city, not only lighting up the lower end of that street, and along the head of Broughton's dock to the foot of State street, but partially illuminating the navy and city landings, and shining out brightly on the river.

Mr. H. Fisher Eldredge begins this week a heavy work, in raising the grade of part of his premises on Miller avenue and Merrimac street; 2000 loads of gravel have been contracted for.

Charles Sanborn Knowles, aged thirty-five years and unmarried, son of Moses Knowles of Seabrook, was instantly killed in the Boston & Maine railroad station in Newburyport on the afternoon of May 28th, by being struck by the engine City of Lynn. He had just stepped from the train, and was crossing the track.

Mr. James Walker of Kittery Point has been engaged the past two months replastering and doing other work at the Thaxter house, "Champernoune farm," Gerrish's island. Mr. Walker has had several men employed with him most of the time.

Nathaniel L. Thompson, Jr., of Kennebunk, has been appointed railway postal clerk in place of Samuel Dingley, Jr., of Standish; and J. S. Bradbury of Charlestown, Mass., in place of C. L. Milliken of Wells.

C. E. & F. P. Brackett, dry goods dealers at main street, Biddeford, failed May 27th, with liabilities of about $30,000. They have been conducting branch stores at Norway, Me., and Farmington, N. H.

The body of Mrs. Asa Jewell, who died in Boston on Sunday, May 22d, was on the 26th interred at Eliot, Me., her former home.

Mrs. Lucy Titcomb of Boston, sister of the late Luther Thaxter, Esq., father of Mr. John Thaxter of "Champernoune farm," Gerrish's island, is building a nice cottage on the farm for her own occupancy.

Mr Samuel G. Williams, once an apprentice in the Portsmouth Journal office, has just started a newspaper at Rutland, Sargent county, Dakota, entitled the Rutland Journal. After his first essays in the typographic art, he went to sea in a whaler, and became an expert in that business; but has since returned to printing. Thus men go from the risks and dangers of whale fisheries to those attendant upon the issue of a newspaper. Chronicle please copy.—Journal.

First Lieut. Carroll Mercer, U. S. M. C., was on May 18th detached from the marine barracks at the Portsmouth navy yard and ordered to command the marine guard of the U. S. S. Quinnebaug, European station, to report with his guard May 31st to the commandant of the naval training station at Newport, R. I., for passage to Europe.

Second Lieut. Charles A. Doyen, U. S. M. C., was on May 18th detached from the marine barracks at the Boston navy yard and ordered to report for duty at the marine barracks at the Portsmouth yard, but these orders were suspended on the 19th.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

ton was a pretty tough town, but could not hold a candle to Chama.

The glory of Chama has departed. In 1880 the railroad was pushed on to Durango, and the people who made Chama lively went with it. Chama is now a quiet little village with a population of 200, mostly Mexicans. The graveyard has grown green again, and the crack of the six-shooter is not often heard. A reputable railroad contractor recently informed the writer that during the months in the winter of 1879-80 160 people were killed at Chama. And for this slaughter there was not a single person called to account by law. —Missouri Republican.

Method of Beating Hotels.

New York hotels suffer most from customers known to them, who have been good pay, but lose all their money in dissipation and go away without paying their bills. A comparatively new method of beating hotels is this: A well dressed guest pompously registers, throws down a check and orders the clerk to send for his baggage. He goes to his room and the clerk reports that the baggage cannot be found. The guest gets very indignant, and the search for his trunks is renewed. The next morning, after having had a dinner, a night's lodging and breakfast, the guest goes away and leaves his check, which it is found represents no baggage, but was procured for the express purpose of beating hotels. The New York hotel men are now so well organized, however, that out of the incomes from 50,000 guests a day they lose less than 1 per cent of their profits by reason of beats.

Wealthy people on wedding tours, who pay $40 to $50 a day for a suite of rooms, are desirable guests, but Sarah Bernhardt and Patti are more choice patrons. They pay from $50 to $75 a day for apartments, and $25 a day or more for meals. Bernhardt has the reputation of being the most easily pleased of all high priced guests as to her meals.—Amos J. Cummings in Pioneer Press.

Don Cameron at Home.

Don Cameron is the most unsociable man in public life. He is entirely unlike his father, the venerable Simon Cameron, whose loquacity is only equaled by his fondness for company. The old man will talk a companion blind in half a day. He is particularly fond of relating his early political experiences. It is not so with Don. He will ride in a railroad car for a week and never exchange a word with a passenger. He does not even talk with his family. When he goes home at night, after his congressional work is over, he will draw up a table, call for a pack of cards, and play solitaire the whole evening, without speaking a word to a soul. All the time he is playing he is thinking out some political or real estate scheme.—Chicago Times.

The crater Kilauea of the volcano Mauna Loa is three miles long, two miles wide and in places 800 feet deep. The boiling lava can be seen in many places.

An Important Instrument.

Professor Bonamico, of the royal naval school, of Leghorn, has invented an important instrument for showing not only the speed, but also indicating the relative position of one ship to another, and so preventing collisions.—Chicago Herald.

Nature vhas mighty good to some folks, but you vhill most alvays see dot she run short of brain material after making a handsome face—Carl Dunder.

Hold your breath and contract your abnormal muscles is the remedy for sea sickness suggested by an English physician, Dr. E. P. Thurstan, who speaks from experience.

A building in Newport occupied by Charles H. Fairbanks as a store and by Jerome Clough as a residence was burned May 27th, causing a loss of several thousand dollars.

The cholera is raging fearfully at Buenos Ayres; the bodies of the dead are burned.

Clear the Way,

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up by reason of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. The fiat of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles, and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

Mate Albert N. Rich, of the schooner Robert L. Belknap of Rockport, Me., has been held in New York to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of murdering seaman James Paterson on the outward voyage.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailment caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

D. C. Beach's place at Long hill, near New Haven, Conn., where was captured a large amount of illicitly distilled cider brandy not long ago, was again raided last week, and another big haul of moonshine liquor was made.

By a fire damp explosion in the Susquehanna Coal Co.'s mine at Nanticoke, Pa., last week, three miners were fatally burned. It was in this same mine that twenty men were buried alive in 1885.

To be free from sick headache, biliousness, constipation, etc., use Carter's Little Liver Pills. Strictly vegetable. They gently stimulate the liver and free the stomach from bile.

Twelve hours use of the Athlophoros you sent me greatly removed the pain from my system, and rendered the muscles so supple that I could get up and down with ease, which I have not done for a long time. Rev. A. S. Cooper, Williston, Vt.

Charles Blake, aged eighteen years, and Mrs. Mary Taylor, aged thirty-five, were arrested about midnight on May 25th at Brown's hotel in Boscawen, where they were occupying one room. They had eloped from Ayer's village, near Haverhill, Mass. They were taken before the police court in Concord, and fined, Blake's father, who lives in Boscawen, paying the son's fine. The woman was formerly Mary Twombly of Concord.

For the cure of pain St. Jacobs Oil has no equal. Price fifty cents a bottle.

The barn of Stephen Edmunds at Warner was burned by lightning on the night of May 26th; loss $1000.

St. Jacobs Oil always cures my pain.—F. Worbes, Plymouth, Wis.

A large number of poor oppressed brewers of San Francisco struck the other day against the hydra-headed monster Capital. They paraded through the streets carrying a banner stating that they were "Slaves Striking for Freedom." And every slave in the line had on a broadcloth coat, a high hat, and sported a buttonhole bouquet.

Do Not Distress Yourself.

Brandeth's Pills cure eruptions, tetter, salt rheum, blotches, spots, pimples, pustules, boils, carbuncles, ring-worms, scald-head, sore eyes, erysipelas, itch, scurfs, discolorations. There is nothing more disgusting than a face and neck all broken out with pimples and blackheads. Make the blood pure and all such eruptions disappear. One or two Brandreth's Pills taken every night for a month never fail.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK, ME., May 30th.

On Wednesday of last week Fredinan Moreau, a laborer on the railroad, was arrested by Officer Stewart, and taken before Trial Justice Putnam, on a charge of drunkenness. He was convicted of the charge, and sentenced to thirty days in jail.

By some sort of hocus-pocus law a man having been convicted of a crime, can buy his freedom by "squealing" on the party of whom he bought the intoxicant. He may swear as to where he got his rum—and, whether what he swears to be true or not, he obtains his freedom; i. e., he, with a price, purchases of the great state of Maine, by consent of the state, his liberty. Thus Mr. Moreau has appeased the wrath of the state, and is now free to roam whithersoever he will. "Consistency, thou art a large bowl of gruel!"

In the case in question the respondent swore, through a semi-interpreter, that he obtained of S. G. Donnell the cider upon which he became intoxicated. Under the law Mr. Donnell would be liable, for a single sale, to thirty days in Alfred jail and fifty dollars fine; and for keeping a drinking house and tippling shop, to sixty days in jail and one hundred dollars fine. He however does not seem to be in so much fear as the lightning was when it struck a magazine with twenty-two tons of powder in it. P.

Two great enemies—Hood's Sarsaparilla and impure blood. The latter is utterly defeated by the peculiar medicine.

The Boston & Maine railroad station at Great Falls was broken into on the morning of May 28th by thieves who forced open every door in the building, drilled a hole in the safe but failed in an attempt to blow it open, ransacked the baggage room, and had a good feed in the restaurant, but got nothing of any amount for their labor.

Mrs. Luke Colburn of Nashua drowned herself in the canal, May 30th, while insane.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

The trouble at Breed's shoe shop in Rochester has been settled by mutual concessions.

We recommend Carter's Iron Pills to every woman who is weak, nervous and discouraged; particularly those who have thin, pale lips, cold hands and feet, and who are without strength or ambition. These are the cases for which Carter's Iron Pills are specially prepared, and this class cannot use them without benefit. Valuable for men also. In metal boxes at 50 cents. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. See advertisement elsewhere.

P. H. Watts, a storekeeper at Bowie, Ind., while rum crazy endeavored to burn the village. He destroyed four stacks of hay, set fire to his own and two other dwellings, and cut with an axe two citizens who tried to stop his destruction. The sheriff of an adjoining county finally knocked him senseless, and arrested him.

We call the attention of our lady readers to the advertisement in our columns of James Pyle's Pearline, for laundry and kitchen purposes. An article so popular and widely circulated, must possess merits that commend it to the favor of housekeepers.

Michael Connell, alias "Mike the painter," while crazy from liquor ran naked through the streets of Uxbridge, R. I., May 27th. He was locked up, but late in the evening was liberated, when he went to the railroad, laid his head on the track in front of a train, and was killed.

No Cooking.

Elastic Starch requires no cooking, yet it gives a beautiful and glossy finish to linen and other fabrics, which cannot be obtained by the use of any other starch.

Two men and a boy were killed by lightning in three towns near Saratoga, N. Y., May 27th.

For the cure of pain St. Jacobs Oil has no equal. Price fifty cents a bottle.

Prof. Byron Williams, a republican, aided in defeating John Little for Congress last fall in Ohio, and in giving James Campbell, the democratic candidate, his three majority; and the republicans now view with suspicion the appointment of Williams' son by Campbell to a cadetship at Annapolis.

Dakota counties are agitated over local option, with the chances generally in favor of prohibition.

Twelve hours use of the Athlophoros you sent me greatly removed the pain from my system, and rendered the muscles so supple that I could get up and down with ease, which I have not done for a long time. Rev. A. S. Cooper, Willistoq, Vt.

William O'Brien, the editor of United Ireland, was banqueted at the Parker house, Boston, May 30th.

Do Not Distress Yourself.

Brandeth's Pills cure eruptions, tetter, salt rheum, blotches, spots, pimples, pustules, boils, carbuncles, ring-worms, scald-head, sore eyes, erysipelas, itch, scurfs, discolorations. There is nothing more disgusting than a face and neck all broken out with pimples and blackheads. Make the blood pure and all such eruptions disappear. One or two Brandreth's Pills taken every night for a month never fail.

Sixty-two bodies have been recovered from the Udson coal mine at Blantyre, Scotland, and it is known that twelve more are in the pit.

You hardly realize that it is medicine, when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills; they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use.

Ninety-one bodies have been taken from the ruins of the Opera Comique at Paris.

Renowned Medicine.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age --A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

W. B. HATHAWAY,
Agt. U. S. Ex. Co.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS:—Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. REVENUES OF THE SHAH.

The System of "Farming"—The Turquoise Mines—The Fisheries.

The revenues of the shah come from many sources; estimates regarding some of these sources may be approximately made; of others it is impossible to form any correct idea. Thus no tabulated statement can be given concerning the revenues of the Persian government, and all estimates on the subject in the absence of data must be largely conjectural.

The land, live stock, customs, excise and mines and fisheries furnish the chief sources of revenue. The collection of some of the taxes is attended with considerable risk and results in not unfrequent riots and bloodshed.

Regarding some of his revenues the shah very wisely continues to follow a method common in Europe in former ages, that is farming. By farming the pearl fisheries, for example, the shah may receive less than if the tax on them could be justly collected and turned over to the government. But as that is practically impossible the shah makes sure of a given sum on which he can depend, and leaves it to the agent who farms them to make his profit from whatever surplus may accrue. But while the shah is advantaged by the system of farming, the people are much more heavily oppressed, as they are in the hands of the officer who farms that revenue. Nominally he may keep to the letter of the law in collecting only such ratio on the products as the law prescribes. But in reality great abuses grow out of the greed of the farmer.

The turquoise mines are farmed. They are less productive than formerly, while the manufacture of excellent spurious turquoise in Europe has tended somewhat to lower the demand for the genuine article. The difficulty of getting the stones is also excessive, as the mines are growing deeper all the time and the shafts are very dangerous. Many are killed in the Persian turquoise mines, which are found in the provinces of Kerman in the south; but the best ones are mined in Khorassan in the north.

The fisheries of Persia are farmed. They are chiefly in the Caspian sea and the mouth of the rivers emptying into it, and consist chiefly of salmon and sturgeon. The boxwood in the forests and adjoining that sea is also well farmed. This has been a considerable article of commerce, but the supply is now falling off.

The customs are farmed and form a very important source of revenue notwithstanding that by the treaty of Turkomanchai with Russia, all goods entered from nations enjoying its privileges under the "most favored nation" clause pay a maximum duty of 5 per centum. Turkey has an entirely different treaty with Persia which allows the two countries to claim a 10 per cent. duty. Abuses to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

VITIATED BLOOD

Scrofulous, Inherited and Contagious Humors

Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquained with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

SCROFULOUS ULCERS.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on each says: "In 1876 Scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

ONE OF THE WORST CASES.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofulous disease we ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. The Soap takes the "cake" here as a medicinal soap.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange notions? How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Bradstreet's Mercantile Agency at Montreal has been mulcted in the sum of $2000 each on two suits brought to recover damages for an alleged false report concerning the credit of a mercantile firm and of one of the partners; $50,000 damages was claimed, but that was more than the injury could be proved.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

There was an election in Norfolk, Va., last week, and the republican straight ticket was elected by a large majority over the citizens' or fusion ticket. Asbury (colored) was elected commonwealth's attorney, which is said to be the first time in the history of Virginia that a colored man has been elected to this position. Portsmouth city elected the democratic ticket by a large majority over the labor ticket.

New Hampshire Legislature.

The biennial session of the Great and General Court of New Hampshire will convene in Concord to-day. After organizing, the two houses will meet in convention and ballot for governor, and to fill vacancies in the senatorial and councillor districts in which there was no choice last fall. Charles H. Sawyer of Dover will be elected governor, and the other vacancies will be filled by republicans. The inaugural ceremonies will occur on Thursday forenoon.

Her First Race.

The scotch cutter Thistle won her first race May 28th, beating the Irex, Genesta and six or seven other crack yachts in a fifty-mile run from Southead to Harwick. The wind was very light, and the second boat, the Genesta, was five miles astern at the finish. She is considered a much more formidable boat than the Genesta or Galatea.

Rowing Races.

At Chicago, May 30th, Jake Gaudaur easily defeated Hanlan in a three-mile race for $5000 and the championship of America, the winner's time being 19:30, the best on record.

At Worcester, Mass., the same day, Ten Eyck defeated Laing; and at New York, Wallace Ross defeated Hosmer.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., May 31st.

The scholars of Dist. No. 1, assisted by their teacher, Miss Florence E. Sanderson, devoted Friday afternoon last to Memorial services. The room was tastefully decorated with national emblems and flowers, and a large chandelier of lilacs was suspended from the center of the ceiling, filling the air with their sweet fragrance. The programme consisted of recitations, declamations and music, all being pleasingly rendered. The exercises were largely attended by the parents and friends of the pupils, who were much pleased with the interest manifested.

Comments on the condition of some of our roads are frequently heard, and are not altogether uncalled for. Instead of removing the small, loose rocks with which the roadway abounds, cartloads of earth and rocks (mostly rocks) are dumped promiscuously about, without any regard to the eternal fitness of things. The consequence is, the roads are always bad, and people who ride over them are obliged to pound and jolt about and perhaps swear, without making them any better. The idea that rocks can be ridden down smooth is absurd, as they are constantly working up, and the damage of breaking a horse's leg would cost the town more than the work of repairs would. Last year the town purchased a road machine at a good round sum, but what good it has done we fail to see; better have bought a stone crusher, and utilized the rocks to advantage. One of our leading physicians recently told the surveyor of one of the largest districts in town that his road never was worse than now, and that he ought to be ashamed of it. The doctor is right, as he has occasion to pass over it once if not twice every day. Surely our highways sadly need the hand of a master.

Dr. Wm. O. Junkins of Greenland, N. H., and his brother-in-law, D. Ed. Hill of Kittery, have bought a very handsome Patchen colt, named "Lady Patchen," of L. Dunt'ey of Rochester, N. H. The colt is four years old, stands 14.3 hands high, weighs 850 lbs., and is a beautiful chestnut color with black points. Lady Patchen is a sister of Forest Patchen, by King Patchen, both having an excellent record, and we understand this colt is very promising.

FROM LIFE TO DEATH

is but a moment if rheumatism or neuralgia strikes the heart. These diseases are the most painful and the most dangerous of any to which human kind is liable. They fly from one part to another without a moment's warning, and liniments and other outward applications are in themselves dangerous because they are liable to drive the disease to some vital organ and cause instant death. Rheumatism and neuralgia are diseases of the blood, and can only be reached by a remedy which will drive from the blood the dangerous acids. Such a remedy is Athlophoros. It has been thoroughly tested and is a safe, sure cure.

Dover, N. H., March 28, 1886.

For the benefit of people suffering with rheumatism I write to make the following statement. For a series of years my wife has been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism, often lasting for several months at a time, suffering intense pains, and only found relief by injecting powerful remedies in the arm, receiving thereby only temporary relief. The last of December, 1885, it appeared in the right arm and had with it excruciating pains. I procured a bottle of Athlophoros and by the time she had taken the third or fourth dose the pain ceased, and now after having begun on the second bottle is much improved, and I think on the road to a complete cure.

DANIEL R. WARD.

Carlton House, Boston, Mass. June 21, 1886.

Last winter I was troubled with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which stuck to me with such obstinacy as to cause me much worriment, pain and misery. All of these troubles were speedily removed by two bottles of Athlophoros. That medicine cured me entirely. P. JOSEPH MONAHAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 50 degrees above zero.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The observances of Memorial day and evening were carried out successfully and smoothly in accordance with the published programmes, with the addition, in the procession, of Moses H. Goodrich Engine Co., Charles L. Hoyt foreman, and Col. Sise Engine Co., Willard M. Gray foreman. The day was most favorable, bright but not too warm, and the slightly muddy state of the streets was preferable to clouds of dust. The stores were closed at noon, and thousands of people were in the streets and the south cemetery in the afternoon. There were hundreds of graves, besides those of the soldiers and sailors, on which flowers were laid during the forenoon, the bestowal of these tokens of affectionate remembrance being more general than ever before.

RUN UP THE FLAG.

The flags over the Rockingham house, the United States building and the Rockingham national bank were displayed at half mast on Memorial day, while on the staff at Liberty bridge and over the city building the flags were at the mast head. We believe that some eight or ten years ago the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic resolved "that flags hoisted Memorial day be placed at half mast;" yet we consider it a mistake to do so. The day is not, and should not be, a day of mourning and gloom, any more than it should be the occasion of mirth and special jollity; it is a day on which to recall the memories of the men who lost or pledged their lives in the service of their country, to extol their patriotism, and to exult in their glorious deeds; and the half-masted flag, so appropriate an emblem of sorrow at the funeral of the soldier or sailor, to us does not seem appropriate to display on the day set apart for the nation to express gratitude to its defenders and do honor to their names.

AT MUSIC HALL TO-NIGHT.

This evening, at Music hall, what will probably be the last professional performance of the season will be given, by Duncan Clark's combination of female minstrels, acrobats and gymnasts, with Wood & Healey, "Shorty" the clown, Haines, Newton and others. A great entertainment is promised; see advertisement. Tickets at Goodrich's.

THE MIKADO.

The popular comic opera The Mikado will be presented in Music hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 14th and 15th, by a company of resident ladies and gentlemen who have been rehearsing it for some time, with new costumes, and several scenes painted expressly for this occasion. The chorus will number forty-five voices, and the opera will be produced under direction of Mr. Alfred N. La Brie, who has successfully superintended its presentation elsewhere. The cast is as follows:

The Mikado	John A. Cassidy
Nanki Poo	George Hutchinson
Koko	Newton Elmer
Pooh Bah	Charles H. Gray
Pish Tush	Thomas F. Flanagan
A Nobleman	Horace Montgomery
Nee Bun	Master Dudley Carpenter
Yum Yum	Mrs. Dr. Berry
Pitti Sing	Miss M. Montgomery
Peep Bo	Miss Fannie Carpenter
Katisha	Miss Flora Hayes

Chorus of nobles, attendants, school girls, etc.

BASE BALL.

At South Berwick, Me., May 27th, the Dover High school nine and the Berwick academy nine played a game of base ball, the South Berwick nine winning, score sixteen to eleven.

An interesting game of ball was played on Noble's island in the forenoon, May 30th, between the Summer Boarders and Electrics, the former winning, eleven to nine. The batting of Foley, 3d base, and the fine work of Moran and Harrington as battery, were the features of the game.

There was a considerable delegation of Portsmouth people in Dover Monday afternoon to witness the game on the grounds in that city between the Dovers and the Stars of Lawrence. Fully one hundred of our people went up by rail and in private conveyances. The game was an excellent one, and it was fully demonstrated that both clubs know how to play ball. The game was won by the Dover club, score eight to six. The Dover club is an excellent nine to a man, the pitcher and catcher having the game down to a science, and the manner in which the Lawrence men went out on strikes was an evidence of their proficiency.

National League games May 30th: Forenoon—Detroit 2, Boston 1; Chicago 12, New York 11; Philadelphia 2, Pittsburg 1; Washington 8, Indianapolis 1. Afternoon—Boston 4, Detroit 3; Chicago 3, New York 2; Pittsburg 6, Philadelphia 4; Indianapolis 6, Washington 5.

National League games, May 31st: Boston 3, Detroit 1; Philadelphia 6, Pittsburg 5; New York 11, Chicago 8. The Washington-Indianapolis game was omitted on account of rain.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wendell spent Sunday at their cottage in Newcastle.

Mr. Daniel S. Broderick of New York made a flying visit to his friends in this city, Memorial day, leaving for New York on the afternoon train.

Capt. Henry Marcy of Boston was in town Memorial day.

Mr. Daniel J. Spinney, formerly of this city, but for several years past a resident of Newburyport, was in town Monday.

Just before starting out for the parade, Memorial day, Storer Post was presented by the Woman's Relief Corps with a very handsome silk flag, which was carried in the procession.

The two fire companies, Nos. 2 and 4, made a very creditable appearance in their neat and trim new uniforms, in the Memorial day procession. The boutonnieres worn by the Col. Sise company were presented by the gentleman in whose honor the engine was named, on his learning that the company had voted to parade that day.

Mme. Janauschek will not appear in Music hall this month, as previously announced, the doctors having peremptorily ordered her to give up all her engagements for the present.

Mrs. T. A. Spinney, a lady ninety-six years old, fell last Saturday afternoon while at work about her house on Hancock street, and broke one of her hips, the injury, from the lady's great age, being a very serious one. Mrs. Spinney has been a very active and vigorous woman, of choice doing her own work up to the time of this accident.

Mr. Luther N. Hurd died at his home on Union street, May 31st, after a long sickness.

Prof. Brown, the optician, whose advertisement appears in another column, intended to be in the city this week, but on account of illness will defer his visit until next week.

Mr. George Stott has gone to Lowell, Mass., to visit his brother, Mr. John Stott, who was knocked down and run over on one of the streets of that city on Thursday last, and injured internally and about the head so that his recovery is doubtful. He is seventy-five years of age, and formerly lived in this city, but has been in the employ of Donovan & Stott of Lowell for thirty-three years.

At Hampton the Memorial day observances were under the management of Perkins Post, No. 78, of that town, the Odd Fellows, schools and citizens generally taking part; the memorial address was by Rev. George A. McLaughlin of Laconia.

David Welch, of Hanover street, has just received from the Abbott-Downing Manufacturing Co. of Concord a handsome new cart for the delivery of his bread about the city.

A very handsome salmon weighing about twenty pounds was taken in the weir off Pocahontas point on Monday, and sold to Geo. W. Randall & Son, who quickly disposed of it. This was the fourth salmon taken in that weir this season.

Capt. "Natty" Yeatop, the old-time ferryman and boatman, came down from Durham on the morning of Memorial day with two small vessels—pulling one and having the other in tow—and fifteen passengers intent on having a good time and enjoying themselves. The first place the party visited was Boynton's bottling establishment on Bow street, where they regaled themselves on fifteen bottles of pop beer. This was Capt. Natty's first arrival at Portsmouth for this season, and his next pull down the river will probably be on "circus day."

Leander Dennett, boat builder at York harbor, has been busily engaged the past winter in constructing a sailboat for Mr. John Struthers of Philadelphia, who passes the summer at the Marshall house; the boat is very handsome one, and has a patent centre-board of brass, made in sections which fit one within the other, so that when hauled up the centre-board is flush with the keel on the outside, but does not show above the level of the boat's flooring. Mr. Donnell has also during the winter built for himself a canoe, for lining, and which is said to be the first canoe built in York since the copper-colored former residents of Gorgeana went out of the birch-bark business.

Notice.

It having been voted by the S. & S. monument committee to ask the papers of the city to publish a list of the names of the subscribers to the monument fund on Monday, June 6th, all those who do not wish their names to appear in public print are hereby requested to notify the treasurer of the fund, Mr. C. M. Gignoux, previous to that date.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

The parasols shown by Lewis E. Staples this season cannot be beaten for styles and low prices. Ladies, call and look at them, and be convinced.

At the urgent solicitation of a number of my patrons I shall continue for a few months after May 1st to make those fine Cabinet Photos for $2.00 a dozen.

COOK, 5 Congress St., Portsmouth.

Ancient Portsmouth is to have an honor thrust upon it. An unselfish Boston man, who died recently, bequeathed $30,000 for the erection there of a bronze equestrian statue of Fitz John Porter. Query; If a general whose loyalty was in doubt for twenty years gets a thirty thousand dollars memorial before he dies, is it not time to pay tribute to the heroism of a dead Hancock, or a McClellan or a Grant?—Biddeford Journal.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. Another "Combine" Strike for $15,000.

The Quaker City has several times shown the falsity that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place." Not long ago a combination of Lombard and South Sts., Railroad conductors drew $15,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery, but the drawing on Tuesday, April 12th, has proven a still greater windfall in one-tenth of the $150,000 capital prize, to a combination of thirteen men employed by the firm of Goodell & Waters, machinery manufacturers, Hamilton, above Fifteenth Sts. Most of the members of the club, although not in want, are men of very moderate means, and the $1,153 which each will soon receive, will, no doubt, be put to good use.—Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer, April 18.

At a meeting of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railway company at Plymouth, May 30th, resolutions were adopted upholding the recent action of the directors in trying to break the lease to the Boston & Lowell, and directing them to use every honorable endeavor to break it; also to examine or cause to be examined the track bed and fixtures of the road to see if it is in good condition, and if not, to endeavor to have necessary repairs made. As soon as the directors secure control of the road—if they do get control of it—they are in favor of having an extension to Colebrook built, and such other extensions in Coos county and the Pemigewasset valley as the needs of the people require. This extension is an important one, as it would give the road a valuable connection with the Grand Trunk.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Indigestion, Acute and Atonic Dyspepsia, Chronic and Gastro-Intestinal Catarrh, Vomiting in Pregnancy, Cholera Infantum, and in convalescence from Acute Diseases.

Over 5,000 physicians have sent to us the most flattering opinions upon Digestylin as a remedy for all diseases arising from improper digestion.

For 30 years we have manufactured the Digestive Ferments expressly for PHYSICIANS' use, and for the past year DIGESTYLIN has been by them extensively prescribed, and to-day it stands without a rival as a digestive agent. It is not a secret remedy but a scientific preparation, the formula of which is plainly printed on each bottle. Its great DIGESTIVE POWER is created by a careful and proper treatment of the ferments in manufacture. It is very agreeable to the taste, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach. The Greatest Curative Success of the Age --A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

W. B. HATHAWAY, Agt. U. S. Ex. Co.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS:—Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Member of Canadian Parliament.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home. THEY GET NO REST.

CITY TOILERS WHO WORK SEVEN DAYS IN A WEEK.

An Army of Men at Work for the Surface Railroads—Seven Day Men of the Big Apartment Houses—The Typesetters.

How many men in the city of New York work seven days in the week regularly, ceasing only for a day or more when failing health or some other cause outside of personal inclinations or the rules of their employers compel it? The careful estimates of a number of men connected with various organizations and guilds of wage workers place the proportion at one-fourth of all. To begin with the kinds of employment most familiar to the general public, we have the thousands of employes of the elevated railroads. They work seven days whether they will or not, or leave their jobs. A great many of them, however, prefer to take only an occasional day's liberty, and would not welcome a different rule.

The surface roads of the city employ another army of men who work every day in the week. Drivers, conductors, stablemen, and starters may be found at their posts usually not less than 360 days in a year. The bosses say that plenty of substitutes are on hand, and that nothing prevents a man taking a day off every week if he wants to, but the men say that no man can take a day off regularly and keep his place. Besides, wages are not so high that many men live and raise families on less than $14 a week, they say.

There are other drivers than those on street cars who work seven days in the week, such as the cabmen, liverymen and private coachmen of the city. To these might be added the footmen and other male servants kept about the houses of the well to do. If there is any day in the year when these do not have work to do it is an extraordinary occasion. On Sunday, when perhaps a majority of the population cease from their daily toil, these servants have to work harder than on any other day.

THE SERVANT'S DAY OUT.

It is true that every servant is supposed to have a day out, but this usually means a few hours out on Thursday afternoon. With servants generally the rule is long hours and low pay. Waiters in hotels and restaurants keep right along as long as health permits. Cooks, porters and men of all work employed about these establishments, and some of the well dressed clerks as well, can be found day in and day out at their tasks. Every hotel has its night watchman. So, too, a great many business houses employ the same class of men. Every ship at the pier has its watchman. Every new building, while unfinished, must have its watchman, and he is generally kept about the new house until it is occupied. Night or day, and sometimes both, he is on hand for seven days in the week, and he is lucky if he gets $8.75 for his long vigil; the usual price is $1 a day.

The big apartment houses have developed a class of seven day men, including janitors, elevator and hall boys, and engineers and firemen. Every apartment house must have all of these, and they work right along, Sunday and all. In the down town office buildings the work gives the janitors a Sunday off as a rule, but there is usually a bit of tinkering and cleaning to be done, after all, on Sunday.

Many tradesmen, of course, must work on Sunday, and some of them work harder then than on other days. The avenue groceries usually stretch the penal code limit of 10 o'clock on Sunday or 11, and the meat markets do the same. Fish markets are open, too. The milkman's curious whoop warns the housemaid to come out with her pitcher on Sundays as well as on other days. The baker delivers his hot rolls and the ice cream man his frozen delicacy. The delicatessen man with his smoked and canned and cooked things is behind his counter on every day, and in many cases for fourteen hours every day. The candy store is always open, and so is the cigar store, although cigars were not contemplated as an article of diet or necessity by the framers of the penal code. There is usually one man in each store. The drug stores will average at least one seven day man. In the tenement house districts the stores that are open are not confined to those that sell food and luxuries; dry goods, caps, shoes and furniture dealers are to be found in their stores, while the undertakers are, of course, always subject to a call.

THE CITY'S EMPLOYES.

In talking of wage workers the city's employes are not often mentioned, but the entire force of the police is on duty every day, and so are the firemen. There are a lot of park employes so engaged, and the aggregate of all amounts to thousands of men, who, if they do not find the manual labor excessively hard, find it very confining.

The surface railroads terminating in the city employ a host of seven day men. Brakemen, conductors, engineers, firemen, baggage men, gatemen, porters, yard men and car cleaners are to be found at work as regularly as the sun rises. So are the men who work on the Brooklyn bridge. In the summer a tremendous lot of men must work every day in the week on the tugs and steamers that carry excursionists about the bay and river. With them the manual toil is severe. The ferry employes are another class. There are iron mills that cannot shut down, and other factories where the product would be ruined if a rest was taken on Sunday. Here the men seldom know a holiday. In the tenement districts the click and rattle of the sewing machine never ceases. Tailors, cloakmakers, and men employed in kindred industries bend over their work from daylight until midnight every day unceasingly. So they do in the tenement house cigar factories. There are typesetters who work every day in the week, but not many, for the esprit de corps of the union men makes them give some unfortunate "sub" a chance sometimes oftener than once a week.

Men need the barber on Sunday, or think they do, and a thousand men are thus kept at work for more or less hours every day in the week. Telegraph operators must sit at their tables, and line men must see that the wires are in order on Sunday as well as other days. Musicians must play their instruments when called on. Pawnbrokers were never known to put up the shutters. The slant-eyed Chinaman, reed in hand, is at his desk on Sunday morning, and at the ironing table or washtub every other day.

No special mention has so far been made of the women who toil seven days in the week.

Mr. JOHN W. FURBUSH,
An Army Veteran,
OF WAKEFIELD,

who has probably suffered more than any man or woman in America to-day. Taken sick while in the Army, he has endured untold agonies since. Describing at first symptoms he said: "My head ached and my appetite was poor. I felt a faintness at the pit of the stomach, and a bad taste in my mouth, while my skin was sometimes hot and sometimes cold. I next felt pains in my back and around the lower portion of my body, and noticed a peculiar odor and color in the water I passed, which was scanty at one time and free at others. Sometimes it pained me to void it, and again it was almost impossible to do so at all. Finally I began to pass clear blood accompanied with the greatest strain and agony."

No less than 20 eminent physicians attended Mr. Furbush at various times, but not one of them could help him. He was near death's door. And yet he says: "I am alive and well to-day, wholly through the wonderful power of Hunt's Remedy, which took me from the verge of the grave."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

New Hampshire Legislature.

The members-elect of the legislature arrived in Concord in large numbers on the afternoon trains on Tuesday, May 31st. Preceding the holding of caucuses the streets and hotels presented a lively appearance, the supporters of several candidates for nominations putting in active work for their candidates. The caucuses resulted as follows:

Republican Senatorial—For president, Frank D. Currier of Canaan; clerk, Ira A. Chase of Bristol; assistant clerk, Charles J. Hamblett of Milford; sergeant-at-arms, Edward H. Wason of Nashua; messenger, James W. Adams of Weare.

Republican Representative—For speaker, Alvin Burleigh of Plymouth; clerk, George A. Dickey of Penacook; assistant clerk, Stephen S. Jewett of Laconia; sergeant-at-arms, Lewis Jenkins of Pittsfield; doorkeeper, Hiram E. Currier of Littleton, Horace L. Ingalls of Concord and George W. Varnum of Manchester.

Democratic Senatorial—For president, Nathan C. Jameson of Antrim; clerk, William H. Paine of Berlin; assistant clerk, Fred J. Marvin of Alstead; sergeant-at-arms, W. M. Leonard of Gilford.

Democratic Representative—For speaker, George W. Stone of Andover; clerk, Jacob B. Whittemore of Hillsboro; assistant clerk, Anson S. Marshall of Concord; sergeant-at-arms, Charles Petit of Nashua; doorkeepers, Napoleon Dyer of Laconia, Charles W. Pike of Haverhill and Samuel Lovejoy of Conway.

Both branches of the legislature met at eleven o'clock A. M. on Wednesday, and organized by the choice of the republican caucus candidates, after which the two bodies met in joint convention to fill vacancies in the governship, and two councillor and three senatorial districts, on account of the failure to make choice at the polls in November last.

A Rebel Spy After Old Ben Once More.

The case of James H. Lester against General Benjamin F. Butler, for the recovery of personal property taken during the war, was called for trial in the United States Circuit court in New York May 31st, before Judge Wheeler. Mr. B. W. Huntington, counsel for Lester, asked that the case might be adjourned till the October term, stating that papers, which it was necessary for him to have before he could go on with the trial, were hidden away in the war department and were kept back by General Butler and his friends. Judge Wheeler took the papers and reserved his decision. Lester was a blockade runner and spy during the war, and was engaged in the manufacture of arms for the confederacy in Richmond, Va. He was arrested by General Butler and imprisoned over a year, when he was released by President Lincoln. In 1866 he commenced two suits against General Butler, one for false imprisonment and the other to recover personal property. After dragging along in the courts for years, the first suit was finally decided against him on the 11th of last February.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., May 31st.

Quarterly conference of the Methodist societies will be held Sunday, June 5th. Rev. W. S. Jones, presiding elder of the Portland district, will preach at the 2nd church in the afternoon at two o'clock, and at the 1st church in the evening at 7:30.

Miss Bertha Grovenor, who is teaching in Somersworth, N. H., passed Memorial day with her father, Rev. Francis Grovenor, at the village.

Many of our young townsmen living in other places came home to pass Memorial day; among them we noticed Benjamin Joy, Edward Parker, George Blackford, John Dean, Charles Chickering, William F. Bartlett and Ephraim Otis.

Mr. George F. Hayes, one of our most promising young men, was married Sunday to Miss Mary L. Philbrick, daughter of Wm. M. C. Philbrick. The couple will make their residence at the Hurd farm in North Kittery, which Mr. Hayes bought a short time ago. We wish them a long and happy life.

Memorial day was observed here with appropriate services. Sunday afternoon Parker Post in a body attended service at the 2d Christian church, and the pastor, Rev. Eugene E. Colburn, preached an impressive sermon from Jer. 4-6. The battle flag of the 32d Maine Volunteers was suspended in the rear of the pulpit, and the altar was draped with the American flag and ornamented with flowers. A large picture of the late Gen. Logan was directly in front of the altar, with an officer's sword above it and a G. A. R. cap below, the whole being very effective. There were present and participated in the exercises Revs. H. S. Ives and Lyman E. Hall of the Point, and Francis Grovenor of the village. The music rendered was appropriate.

Monday morning the Post met in the hall, and at 8:30 formed line and with a number of children from the Sunday schools proceeded to Orchard Grove cemetery, headed by the U. S. M. C. drum corps. At the cemetery a hollow square was formed near the base of the soldiers' monument, and exercises conducted as follows: Reading of general orders No. 11; prayer by Rev. E. E. Colburn; singing by choir; oration by Rev. Francis Grovenor; decoration of graves; firing of volleys; benediction. Line was then reformed and returned to the hall, where parade was dismissed. The monument was profusely decked with flowers contributed by the friends of Parker Post. J. H. Sweet was chief marshal of the day, and Abel Jackson of Storer Post, Portsmouth, had charge of the firing party. A large number of the towns-people were in attendance. In the afternoon the Post went to Portsmouth by invitation, to parade with Storer Post of that city. The graves of soldiers at North Kittery and the Point were decorated by a delegation from the Post in the morning.

Many people have visited John Rogers & Sons the past week, to look at their flower gardens. The large bed of pansies must have been a beautiful sight before so many had been removed to supply the great demand; as it is there are many left yet, and some of the most beautiful we ever saw, one variety, the "Mikado," being larger than a silver dollar, and of most brilliant colors.

FROM LIFE TO DEATH

is but a moment if rheumatism or neuralgia strikes the heart. These diseases are the most painful and the most dangerous of any to which human kind is liable. They fly from one part to another without a moment's warning, and liniments and other outward applications are in themselves dangerous because they are liable to drive the disease to some vital organ and cause instant death. Rheumatism and neuralgia are diseases of the blood, and can only be reached by a remedy which will drive from the blood the dangerous acids. Such a remedy is Athlophoros. It has been thoroughly tested and is a safe, sure cure.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

For the benefit of people suffering with rheumatism I write to make the following statement. For a series of years my wife has been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism, often lasting for several months at a time, suffering intense pains, and only found relief by injecting powerful remedies in the arm, receiving thereby only temporary relief. The last of December, 1885, it appeared in the right arm and had with it excruciating pains. I procured a bottle of Athlophoros and by the time she had taken the third or fourth dose the pain ceased, and now after having begun on the second bottle is much improved, and I think on the road to a complete cure.

DANIEL S. WARD.

Carlton House, Boston, Mass. June 21, 1886.

Last winter I was troubled with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which stuck to me with such obstinacy as to cause me much worriment, pain and misery. All of these troubles were speedily removed by two bottles of Athlophoros. That medicine cured me entirely. P. JOSEPH MONAHAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

PLEASANT CHURCH WEDDING.

In the Unitarian church on Wednesday afternoon, June 1st, Rev. Alfred Gooding, minister of the South Parish, and Miss Mabel Sise, daughter of Mr. John Sise, were married by Rev. James De-Normandie, former minister of the parish. The time set for the ceremony was five o'clock, and when that hour arrived the spacious church was two-thirds filled with the spectators, although the drenching rain had kept many away. A canopy extending from the porch to the kerbstone served to shelter the people from the rain in passing from the carriages to the church, and the path was carpeted. The church was darkened by the closing of the blinds, and the gaslights were burning. The platform was adorned with palms and tropical plants, and in front of the desk was a large and very beautiful triple arch of white lilacs, the whole being arranged with artistic taste.

A few moments before five o'clock the organ gave forth a wedding march, and the bride, leaning on her father's arm and preceded by the ushers, passed slowly up the main aisle to the altar, where the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Hoar of Brookline, Mass., were awaiting their arrival; and at precisely five o'clock the officiating clergyman began the impressive ceremony which made the contracting parties husband and wife. The organ had ceased its music on the arrival of the party at the altar, and the responses were distinctly audible to the intent spectators throughout the church.

The ushers were Andrew P. Preston, Dr. George Haven of Boston, J. Gooding of Brookline, brother of the bridegroom, Fred Sise, brother of the bride, Charles Rollins and Frank S. Preston; there were no bridesmaids. The bride's dress was white satin, en train, seed pearl front, white lace veil; boquet of orchids, tied with white satin ribbon. The groom was in conventional full dress. Many elegant toilettes were observable among the ladies, and the scene as a whole was very brilliant and pleasing.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the late residence of the bride, which had been beautifully decorated with flowers by her young lady friends; and in the evening the newly wedded pair took the train for Boston, to sail on a trip to Europe to-day, bearing with them the earnest good wishes of hundreds of friends and acquaintances.

NOTICE.

It having been voted by the Soldiers' & Sailors Monument committee to ask the papers of the city to publish a list of the names of the subscribers to the monument fund on Monday, June 6th, all those who do not wish their names to appear in public print are hereby requested to notify the treasurer of the fund, Mr. C. M. Gignoux, previous to that date.

PUBLISHING THE SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

Mr. Editor: I regard the publication of the names of subscribers to the monument fund as in very poor taste. It may possibly be that some persons are induced to give from the questionable motive of seeing their names paraded in print. There are persons of small means, and also those who do not approve of this mode of commemorating the memory of our fallen heroes but are willing to aid to a small extent, who do not care to see their names and donations heralded in the papers. To compel such persons to ask exemption from public attention seems like putting people in the papers unless they ask to be let off. I know it is a frequent way to parade names of doners, but while it incites some to give, it is the very reason which deters others from making moderate contributions. The fear of this has deterred many ladies whose means are small, from making subscriptions to this object. Again, it will of course be presumed that all whose donations are advertised desire to see their names in print, and this may not be a fair inference. X.

MARITIME NOTES.

The fishing schooner Rover's Bride went on the marine railway at Kittery on the 1st inst., for repairs.

The schooner Rambler, for some time past owned here, and engaged in fishing out of this port, has been sold to Gloucester parties, and was taken across to that place on Tuesday.

The schooner Clara B. Kennard, Freeman master, which arrived at this port on Tuesday, May 31st, from Rockland, with a cargo of lime for Converse & Hammond of Dover, was caught off Boon island in the blow of the previous Friday night, and the seas set on fire her deckload of 200 bbls. of lime, so that it had to be jettisoned to save the vessel.

Capt. Duncan, of the steamer James Sampson, has secured an addition to his landing at Newcastle, in the shape of a floating stage, which makes the landing and embarking at that point safer and more convenient. The trip to Kittery Point by this steamer is one of the most attractive river excursions in the country, for a short one.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, June 1st.

Robert Foster and Lawrence Stardy, for drunkenness, were fined $5, costs $6.90, each, and both went to the county farm to work it out.

The large beetles which fly by night at this season of the year, and which are quite harmless to human beings, are attracted in great numbers by the electric street-lights, against which they strike and kill themselves; on a recent morning Mr. John W. Stott gathered several hundreds of them from the grounds near the light at the corner of Hanover and Bridge streets. If the mosquitoes would only all break their necks against the lamp globes there would be great rejoicing, but they won't do it.

The annual picnic of the Riverside boat club, which was to have taken place on the 29th of May, was postponed on account of the weather to June 12th.

Mr. William B. Duncan of this city, brother of Capt. Duncan of the steamer James Sampson, is proprietor of the Forest Hill house at Kennebunk, which is to open on the 15th inst. The house is quite near the beaches and about ten minutes walk from the Boston & Maine railroad station. Mr. Duncan was manager of a hotel near the Forest Hill last season; he is well acquainted with the business, and has a large number of guests booked for the season.

John Hay is to be in London at the queen's jubilee. Loafing about the English throne, we presume.

The project of a rapid transit line of railway between Boston and New York is again before the public. It is stated that Gov. Bodwell of Maine is to be president, and Gen. Stark of Nashua and Wm. M. Thayer, formely editor of the Daily Times of this city, are upon the board of directors. The road is to be built from the proceeds of forty million dollars in bond at five per cent interest. The line is to be selected with regard to a direct route with easy grades, with the possibility of making time between the two cities in from three and a half to four hours. One consideration we will suggest to Gov. Bodwell. It would be better to have the terminus of the road in Boston on the northerly side of the town, so that the through travel from the east may proceed to and from the proposed line without the delay incident to crossing Boston through the public streets. If it can be arranged to have a station in connection with the railway stations on Causeway street, it will have the bulk of the eastern business, which will prove a source of income of no small amount. The managers must become convinced of our solid fact in railway economy; that is, that Boston is simply a way station to those who are travelling between New York and eastern New Hampshire, Maine and the provinces.

One of the contractors for construting a portion of the York Harbor & Beach railroad having sublet a part of it, the sub-contract was drawn up and signed in the office of a storekeeper at York Corner, and placed in his safe. Some time afterward, finding that they had got "stuck" on their bargain, one of the subcontractors thought it would be a brilliant stroke of generalship to secure their principal's copy of the agreement, so driving up the York man's store he asked to see the document, saying he could not enter the store as his horse was skittish and could not be left for a moment. The unsuspecting storekeeper obligingly carried out the paper, and was reading it to the man in the wagon when the latter suddenly snatched it, touched his horse with the whip, and was off like a shot. The storekeeper telephoned to Portsmouth for the arrest of the marauder should he cross the bridge, and then chased him with another team, finding him at the railroad, and receiving from him the coveted paper, his partner having warned him not to destroy it, but to return it as soon as possible. The storekeeper immediately made out a bill of $10 for expenses, and it was at once paid.

General Freight Agent W. J. C. Kenney of the Boston & Maine railroad, says that his lines are carrying almost no freight to the towns and cities on the Maine coast. "The week before the interstate commerce bill went into effect," said he, "our northern freight house was filled with merchandise. The week after, it was empty."

New Hampshire lost over $900,000 by fire during the past four months, while the annual loss for the past ten years has been but $875,000. This seems to spoil the "law of averages," as laid down by insurance companies.

The only National League game played June 1st was between the New York and Boston clubs, New York winning, score 8 to 3.

It has hitherto been supposed that the highest mountain in the world was Mount Everest, one of the Himalayan range, which is 29,000 feet high, but this honor is now claimed for Mt. Hercules in New Guinea, which soars to the tremendous altitude of 32,786 feet, or five times that of Mt. Washington in New Hampshire—one mile.

SALEM, MASS., May 13, 1887.

No mention is necessary. Except the wives and daughters of the well to do, a few saleswomen and factory girls, perhaps, and the dissolute, all are obliged to work seven days. The sorrows of the seamstresses and others who must work for a bare pittance are known to all and unheeded by most. The present social system, than which no better has yet been developed, bears with unequal severity on both sexes.—New York Sun.

The rain was very welcome to the farmers. Corn and beans planted last week are now two inches high.

Molly Miles' avenue is quite a pleasant walk just now. It is shaded on both sides, for some distance, with fruit trees in full bloom. Near the main road is a cosy cottage surrounded with flowers. Here you find blossoms in the garden, from April until December. Just now a scarlet-flowered cactus attracts much attention; also a bed of double tulips. The crocuses and hyacinths, that have bloomed so freely, are now gone by. If you extend your walk you may cross the railroad. It is said that about fifty railroad employes sleep in an old house near the track; they cook by camp fires, and Sunday morning you may find them washing their clothing in a neighboring pond.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

A reporter, typesetter and proof reader on a Chattanooga newspaper succeeded in thus describing two dresses worn at a recent ball there: "Miss Davis wore a beautiful dress of black satin, decalette, gold-embroidered flounces, and morchal neal roses. Mrs. L. S. Colyer looked lovely in a handsome costume of sophire blue velvet, entwaine, trimmed with indescent possomentries."

We call the attention of our lady readers to the advertisement in our columns of James Pyle's Pearline, for laundry and kitchen purposes. An article so popular and widely circulated, must possess merits that commend it to the favor of housekeepers.

It is said to be likely that Hanlan will not go to Australia to row Beach, the champion oarsman of the world, his defeat by Gaudaur having dampened the ardor of his backers.

The Trailing Arbutus.

A good specimen of trailing arbutus is one of the loveliest objects of nature. The blossoms are tube-shaped, with mouths like a five-pointed star, deepening in hue from a pearly white to a rose pink. They are exceedingly fragrant, which would be enough to disprove the common assertion that our wild flowers are not sweet-scented. The leaves are broad, oval, and evergreen, and the woody stems creep over the ground. The trailing arbutus generally blooms on wooded hillsides, under the laurel bushes. With the laurel, azaleas, and rhododendron, it belongs to the great heath family, characterized by brilliant flowers and broad, evergreen leaves.

The "epigea repens," as the plant is scientifically called, is a native of North America, and is found along the Allegheny mountains and eastward from Canada to Tennessee. So far as known it has never been found elsewhere, and it has always steadily resisted cultivation. It was first discovered by the Pilgrims in Massachusetts, who named it the Mayflower, not, as some suppose, because it blooms in May, but after the ship which had brought them to this country. In some localities the flower may be found in May, but, generally speaking, it belongs to March and April.

A slight difference may be noticed in specimens, according to the locality in which found, the difference consisting principally in the size and tint of the flower. In some places it is small and pale, particularly as one goes farther north, though this does not always follow. By general consent the finest known grows in the neighborhood of Philadelphia, especially on the hills near the Schuylkill and in the New Jersey pine barrens. The Wissahickon, Mill creek, and the valley hills are noted localities. The arbutus blossom, with which Philadelphians are most familiar, is often as large around as an old-fashioned 3-cent piece, with a pink tint as deep as that of a peach blossom or clover. What would they think of a little flower no bigger than a chickweed-star, so pale as to be almost white, such as is found in some places?

When a native flower gets into the hands of the florist it is almost sure to be spoiled. The latest innovation is a mass of trailing arbutus mingled with maidenhair fern. This is altogether wrong. The florist's maidenhair is a foreign plant. Our native maidenhair, which is just as beautiful, does not appear until midsummer, long after the trailing arbutus has gone. This latter should never be arranged with anything but its own green leaves, or with the evergreen fern, partridge vine, or club moss, which are always found at the same time or places in which the arbutus blooms. No other flower of any kind whatever should be placed with it—the arbutus is beautiful enough in itself, in its own way precious as pearls. Place another flower with it and its own delicate, unique beauty is sure to suffer. True, the partridge vine sometimes bears a red berry. It is allowable to use this in a loose decoration in which the trailing arbutus enters, provided plenty of dark, glossy green, be made to separate the red and pink.—Philadelphia Times.

Took it Back.

It was 10 o'clock p. m. In the friendly shadow of the veranda stood Cornelius McStab and Samantha Cracraft. The cool and refreshing breeze that wafts inward from the lake and makes existence a perpetual delight in this favored locality toyed with the ringlets of Samantha and fanned the agitated brow of Cornelius. He was trying to control the wild-beating of his heart and hide the tremor in his voice.

"Samantha," he said, as he swallowed something that seemed to be a cannon-ball in his throat, "many years ago, when you were a little girl, you made me a present. It was but a trifle, perhaps, in your estimation, but, like a corner lot in a Chicago suburb, it has increased in value a thousand-fold, and I now treasure that little present as the most priceless thing in the world. Its possession all these years, Samantha, has become a burden on my conscience. I feel that I am doing wrong to keep it any longer. It belongs to you. You may not have missed it. You may never have realized its worth, but I feel it to be a duty to give it back to you and ease my conscience of the load it has carried for so many years. You will receive it, will you not, and forgive me for having kept it so long?"

"Certainly, Cornelius," replied Samantha; "if it is a burden on your conscience I will take it back, though I don't remember of ever having given you any such present. What was it?"

The conscience-stricken Cornelius McStab swallowed another cannon-ball and said with deep contrition:

"It was a kiss, Samantha!"

The wandering breeze, as it swept softly through the veranda, bore on its voiceless way the widening waves of the scarce audible sound that marked the impact with which Samantha Cracraft took the little gift back, after so many years, from the repentant young man.—Chicago Tribune.

The California viticultural commissioners have been notified that the thrips-fly, or vine-hopper, a pest that has made great ravages in past years, has made its appearance in several localities, particularly in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, and is likely to do much damage to vineyards. The coast valleys may escape the pest.

Mr. JOHN W. FURBUSH,

An Army Veteran,

OF WAKEFIELD,

who has probably suffered more than any man or woman in America to-day. Taken sick while in the Army, he has endured untold agonies since. Describing his first symptoms he said: "My head ached and my appetite was poor. I felt a faintness at the pit of the stomach, and had a bad taste in my mouth, while my skin was sometimes hot and sometimes cold. I next felt pains in my back and around the lower portion of my body, and noticed a peculiar odor and color in the water I passed, which was scanty at one time and free at others. Sometimes it pained me to void it, and again it was almost impossible to do so at all. Finally I began to pass clear blood accompanied with the greatest strain and agony."

No less than 20 eminent physicians attended Mr. Furbush at various times, but not one of them could help him. He was near death's door. And yet he says: "I am alive and well to-day, wholly through the wonderful power of Hunt's Remedy, which took me from the verge of the grave."

New Hampshire Legislature.

The popular vote for governor, as canvassed by the legislative committee, was as follows:

Whole number of votes,	77,391
Necessary for a choice,	38,696
Charles H. Sawyer had	37,796
Thomas Cogswell	36,554
Joseph Wentworth	2,137
Thomas H. Coggswell	784
George Carpenter	104
Scattering (twelve names)	16

And there was declared no choice. On a ballot in convention, Charles H. Sawyer received 178 votes to 146 for Thomas Coggswell, and Colonel Sawyer was declared elected governor for the ensuing two years.

For senators, in Dist. 9, Edmund E. Truesdale had 182 votes, Benjamin C. Flanders 144; in Dist. 12, Charles H. Looney had 176, John F. Hall 146; in Dist. 17, Edward O. Blunt had 172, Nelson S. Whitman 146; and Messrs. Truesdale, Looney and Blunt were declared elected.

On Thursday, in convention, Nathaniel H. Clark of Plaistow was chosen councillor for the first district, and John C. Linehan of Concord for the second district.

Owing to the stormy weather the parade was dispensed with, although preparations had been made for an extensive military display. Gov. Sawyer was sworn in at noon by Gov. Currier, and delivered a quite long inaugural address.

Turned Out.

The charters of National Carpet Workers' district assembly 126, and of the eighteen local assemblies attached to it, have been revoked by the general executive board of the Knights of Labor for insubordination, and steps have been taken to secure the property in their possession belonging to the order. The action affects about 10,000 carpet workers in New York, Philadelphia, Yonkers and Amsterdam, none of whom are hereafter to be recognized as Knights of Labor.

Naval Intelligence.

Lieutenant-Commander George F. Wingate has been ordered to examination for promotion.

Surgeon John F. Brassford has been ordered to special duty at the Smithsonian Institution.

Commodore William K. Mayo (retired) has been granted leave of absence for six months with permission to visit the British provinces.

Captain Henry Wilson has been granted leave of absence for six months with permision to leave the United States.

The vessels of the training squadron, now at Newport, R. I., will start in a few days on a cruise to Europe. They will take out a relief crew for the Quinnebaug and bring back her present crew. The cruise will last several months.

Double Suicides.

At Union Hill, Jersey City, N. Y., May 31st, Professor Charles Siedhorf and his wife Matilda, ninety-one and ninety-two years old, respectively, committed suicide by taking cyanide of potassium. They were very poor, and lived in two scantily-furnished and filthy rooms. They were to have gone to the poorhouse that afternoon, but when the poormaster called for them Siedhorf begged for and obtained a little more time, during which the poison was taken. Siedhorf was once a professor of chemistry at Heidelberg university, it is said. With his wife he came to Union Hill about thirty-five years ago. He earned money by teaching, lecturing and writing for the newspapers and making translations. These means of support gradually fell away, and then he lost his little savings by investing in a patent cooking utensil. Professor Siedhorf had quite a collection of books, which he leaves to Columbia college.

About a year ago Professor Siedhorf sheltered a young German named Dessendorf until he learned the art of typesetting. Dessendorf was subsequently employed by Dr. Edmund I. Koch, proprietor of the New Jersey Freie Presse, a German paper published in Jersey City. The young compositor, it will be remembered, eloped with Mrs. Koch a few months ago, and committed suicide with her in Central park, New York city.

At Reading, Pa., May 31st, Pearson Kline and his wife committed suicide together by drinking water in which had been steeped a box of blue match heads. Kline had been out of work for some time, and poverty had made him and his wife hopelessly despondent.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Commodore Wm. P. McCann on the 1st of June assumed command of the Boston navy yard, succeeding Commodore L. A. Kimberly, recently promoted to be rear-admiral. Commodore McCann is a Kentuckian, with an excellent war record. In politics he is an ardent democrat, and in political circles his appointment to the command of the Boston yard is looked on as an administration move in the interest of Congressman Collins, and an intimation that the federal patronage is to be worked for all it is worth in the next election in Massachusetts.

William Hichborn, general foreman of the naval construction department at the Boston navy yard, was dropped from the rolls on the 1st inst., Congressman Patrick A. Collins of Boston, it is said, wanting the place for one of his personal supporters. Mr. Hichborn has been employed on that yard about forty years; he served his apprenticeship there under the government, and was promoted successively to be leader, quarterman, foreman, general foreman and acting naval constructor, for merit alone; during the war especially his services were invaluable. No more efficient an official has ever filled such a position under this government, and no more efficient one is likely to appear; but unluckily for him, just at present, he does not vote with the Reform (big "R") administration which holds that merit alone, and not political service, should be the only test in appointment to or removal from office.

THE EDITOR IRATE.

There must be somebody pretty mean living down in Kennebunk, when the ordinarily urbane and mild-spoken editor of the Eastern Star is stirred to wrath and talks as follows:

It may probably surprise many to be informed that we print the Star to make a living, the same as the carpenter, blacksmith, painter or any other man. It is our trade; if any one runs on an idea that a local paper is public property and a free advertising sheet, it is time they were gently informed to the contrary. We are always happy to append to the notice of a good job the name of the party doing it, if he patronizes the Star in any way, but if he is so small he won't even pay the small sum of one dollar to help support a town paper, nor pay for several years which he has taken it in the past, it must require a powerful amount of cheek to expect us to give a free blow to such work as he may turn out.

It is officially announced that the crown prince of Germany will attend the coming jubilee ceremonies in London.

FROM LIFE TO DEATH

is but a moment if rheumatism or neuralgia strikes the heart. These diseases are the most painful and the most dangerous of any to which human kind is liable. They fly from one part to another without a moment's warning, and liniments and other outward applications are in themselves dangerous because they are liable to drive the disease to some vital organ and cause instant death. Rheumatism and neuralgia are diseases of the blood, and can only be reached by a remedy which will drive from the blood the dangerous acids. Such a remedy is Athlophoros. It has been thoroughly tested and is a safe, sure cure.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

For the benefit of people suffering with rheumatism I write to make the following statement. For a series of years my wife has been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism, often lasting for several months at a time, suffering intense pains, and only found relief by injecting powerful remedies in the arm, receiving thereby only temporary relief. The last of December, 1885, it appeared in the right arm and had with it excruciating pains. I procured a bottle of Athlophoros and by the time she had taken the third or fourth dose the pain ceased, and now after having begun on the second bottle is much improved, and I think on the road to a complete cure.

DANIEL S. WARD.

Carlton House, Boston, Mass.

June 21, 1886.

Last winter I was troubled with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which stuck to me with such obstinacy as to cause me much worriment, pain and misery. All of these troubles were speedily removed by two bottles of Athlophoros. That medicine cured me entirely. P. JOSEPH MONAHAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. FROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

MARITIME NOTES.

Capt. Frank P. Coleman, of the schooner Emily C. Dennison of Kennebunk, was in this city on the 2d inst., his vessel being in the lower harbor, weatherbound on the trip from Boston to Saco.

Handline fishing continues quite good at the Eastern railroad wharf, Noble's island. Thomes E. O'Kelley and Clarence Foote caught a half bushel of cunners and small pollock there on the 1st inst.

Mr. William C. Caswell came in from Smuttynose island, Isles of Shoals, on the 1st inst., with 500 lobsters of good size, which were bought by George Woodworth for the local trade. Mr. Caswell was about two and one-half hours from wharf to wharf, the wind being east-northeast and the fog thick. Two large schools of mackerel were seen off the islands a short time before he left.

The schooner Unison, Henderson master, at Boston on the 1st inst. from Gardiner, Me., reports that between Seguin and Portland she picked up James Hinckley, one of the crew of the fishing schooner Edith L. Couley, who had been in his dory four days without food, having lost the vessel in a fog. He was landed at Gloucester.

The fishing schooner Jamestown sailed from Gloucester for the Western banks March 31st, with George Curtis as captain, and a crew of twelve men all told; she has not been heard from since sailing, and is supposed to have gone down with all hands in the gale of April 26th. Four of the men lost leave wives, and three of them leave children. The schooner registered about sixty-six tons, was built in 1876, and was insured $4125 on vessel and outfit in the Gloucester Mutual Fishing Ins. Co. She was a fine vessel, and her crew were all picked men.

The Scotch cutter Thistle raced over the Royal Thames fifty-mile course June 1st, against the Irex, Genesta and Sleuthhound. There was a fine breeze, and the Thistle covered the course in six hours, beating the Irex twenty-three minutes and the Genesta twenty-five, the Sleuthhound being far in the rear.

WHAT WAS THE MATTER?

The following items we take from the Dover Democrat of June 1st:

Yesterday a runner by the name of Carter, belonging in Providence, came to this city from Portsmouth with a lady and one of Stoddard's best teams. They drove about the city, he transacted his business, and they left for Portsmouth at six o'clock. When across the Dover Point bridge the horse became frightened, and they were thrown out, but managed to hold the horse and prevent him from running away. A few minutes later both were thrown out again, the man striking on his head; the horse, clearing himself, went on to Portsmouth. The young lady was badly frightened when she found that her companion did not move; she started to walk to Portsmouth without giving any alarm at the first house, and left him by the side of the road. About eight o'clock two young men from this city were passing, and, seeing the man by the roadside, investigated, and soon brought him round all right. In their carriage they took him to Portsmouth, and just as they entered the city on Christian Shore they came up with the lady. She was greatly surprised to see her companion alive and very much bruised. The horse arrived at the stable this morning, the carriage being badly broken. Wonder what was the matter?

Two Dover men went to Portsmouth with a team last night, got lost on their way home, and were five hours getting from Portsmouth to this city. That Portsmouth stuff is awful.

The Concord railroad corporation, through its directors, intends to rely, it is asserted, upon the deep interest which the people of New Hampshire have in its control never passing into the direction of a foreign corporation. If this is the ammunition to be used in June, the advocates of a through line between Lake Champlain and the Atlantic will have an easy victory. Legislators are to-day more practical than sentimental. The administration of the Concord road is noted for its obstinate conservatism. This is not a trait which commends itself to the progressive ideas of the day. An illustration of this is seen in the way the line between this city and Concord is operated. There are but two passenger trains each way daily, just as they were run thirty years ago, while the travel between the eastern sections of the state and from the manufacturing cities of Maine to Manchester, Haverhill and Concord, would warrant a permanent third train, which is only run as a beach train in the summer months, and then not in connection with trains on the Boston & Maine road.

W. L. Douglas $3 Shoe.

Gentlemen who desire a stylish, comfortable, well made shoe, unequalled for wear, should get the W. L. Douglas $3 Seamless Shoe. This shoe now has the upper cut in one piece, thus doing away with the old-style seams at each side, making it much neater in appearance and more comfortable to the foot. No other $3 advertised shoe in the world has this improvement, nor is any other made of as good material. But no expense has been or will be spared to make every possible improvement in the manufacture of this shoe, and those who wear them testify that it is just what it claims to be, "the best $3 shoe in the world."

An Amateur Lion Tamer's Escape.

Mr. Cross, the naturalist, was good enough to recount the following incident which took place in his establishment a short time since:

I received from a young Frenchman of good family several letters in which he requested to enter the lions' den at my receiving house in Earle street. He assured me that his vocation was that of a lion tamer, and one fine day he paid me a visit, in company with three of his compatriots, whom he had brought with him in order that they might be witnesses of his intrepidity. He asked me if I could give him a situation, and, pointing to a cage in which there were three fine African lions, he entreated me to allow him to put them through a performance. I had just time to tell him that he might enter at his own risk when I was called into the office.

After the lapse of a quarter of an hour a man rushed up to the desk where I was writing and exclaimed excitedly: "Mr. Cross, one of the lions is out!" "Where?" I asked, to which he replied. "Loose in the building!" On hurrying to the spot I found the door of the den open, and the Frenchman inside with his back against the wooden partition, and two of the lions staring him in the face, while the escaped lion had made for the end of the narrow passsage, where it was meditating mischief to the other Frenchmen, who had taken refuge on the top of a pile of boxes, their faces as white as a sheet.

The first thing I did was to close the door leading to the yard, and next to get the amateur lion tamer out of the den. It was well for him that one of the lions had gone out of the cage, because the other two were so amazed at the fact that they remained for a minute or two perfectly still. We had great difficulty in making the third lion re-enter the den, but at last we succeeded, not, however, without some danger.

After this had been done I myself went into the cage with no weapon and simply smoking a cigar. My entrance was the signal for tremendous bounding backward and forward on the part of the beasts, which were evidently not a little terrified at one of their companions having escaped. As I stood calmly within the den with my eyes fixed on the excited animals, I said: "You see there is no art in lion taming, but it requires nerve." I think the result of that afternoon's adventure quite cured the young Frenchman of his mania for being a lion tamer.—Pall Mall Gazette.

President Garfield in Congress.

When I went into congress the war was still raging. I wanted to go back into the army. After Rosecrans' removal, Thomas, who was a very dear friend of mine, was exceedingly anxious to have me come back, and tendered me in a private letter the command of an army corps if I would go. He had become the head of the whole army, you know. I very much wanted to go back, but Mr. Lincoln made a personal point [of my taking my seat in the house of representatives]. In the first place, he said that the Republican majority in congress was very small, and there was great doubt whether we could certainly carry the necessary measures; and, in the next place, he was greatly lacking in men of military experience in the house to regulate the legislation about the army. So I went in, and was immediately put upon the military committee.

In time of peace ways and means and appropriations are the most important of the committees, and the military is rather a decoration than an influential committee. But in the war the military committee was way up above any others in importance, and my position on it, as practically acquainted with the wants of the army, called me into immediate requisition, giving me a prominence in the house in the beginning that I could not possibly have had in any other way. The first speech I made was on the 26th of January, 1864, on a bill for the confiscation of rebel property. There are portions of that which you will probably think it best to print, enough, at least, to show the swing of my mind and the character of my speaking. I was the youngest member in either branch of congress at that time, as I had been the youngest member of the Ohio legislature, and the youngest brigadier general in the army.—North American Review.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

Secretary Whitney's plan for providing for a naval reserve of merchant seamen has been strongly endorsed by the New York chamber of commerce.

Captain Jack Hussey of Castle Garden, New York, the savior of thirty-four persons from drowning, and the proud possessor of a number of medals of honor from Congress, the New York legislature and other bodies, was fatally shot through the body by Policeman C. Hanus in front of his own house, shortly after eleven o'clock on the night of June 2d. The policeman was drunk.

A rowing race between Hanlan and Gaudaur has been arranged to take place July 23d on Lake Calumet at Pullman, Ill., three miles, for $1000 a side, with the option of increasing to $2500. A plant has been discovered in India which is said to destroy the power of tasting sugar. It will be useful in counteracting a morbid appetite for sweetmeats, which is an active promoter of indigestion. Another plant found in Madras destroys the relish for cigars and tobacco. Thus two important curatives are added to the materia medica.

With the exception of two, which are entered in Norfolk county, these suits are entered in Suffolk county, Mass.

SHE KEPT THE GOLDEN RULE.

Having Been Benefitted a Lady Tells the Good News to Her Friends—Why Everybody Should Read the Papers.

By chance I saw Rev. Mr. Hall's letter in the New York Sun relating to his wife's case and her cure of nervous dyspepsia and malaria by the use of Kaskine. The symptoms there given were almost exactly like my own, and I thought I would try Kaskine. I had been afflicted in the same way for about eight years, and taken quinine until I was almost crazy from its effects. I would have severe pains at the pit of my stomach on eating more than usual, and was very nervous and underwent great mental depression. My head troubled me a great deal with terrible pains through the eyes and the back of the neck. I also suffered much from sickness at the stomach.

In reply to a letter from me Mr. Hall said that his wife took, in all, half a dozen bottles of Kaskine, and it cured her. This decided me and I began using it. Up to the present date (March 15, 1887) I have taken several bottles within two month's time, and I feel very much better. The bad sensations in my head are entirely gone; my stomach troubles are very slight to what they were, and I expect to be perfectly cured before the warm weather sets in.

Of course I could not keep this good news to myself, and so told my lady friends, several of whom are using this remedy with the same good results as I experienced myself. I need hardly tell you how glad I am that so excellent a medicine for such common yet distressing ailments as mine, has been discovered, and when a good word from me will point out Kaskine, the new quinine, to those who may suffer in the same way, you may be sure I shall not fail to speak.

Yours very truly,
MRS. WALTER M. MITCHELL,
Whippany, N. J.

Kaskine, the new quinine, allays the inflammatory conditions, regulates the bowels, promotes the assimilation of food, and subdues the nervous derangements which attend and are often the cause of dyspepsia. It has the exceptional virtue of being easily borne by the most delicate stomachs, and is especially adapted to the use of women and chronic invalids. It effectually destroys malarial poison and never leaves behind it any deleterious effects.

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application.

VITIATED BLOOD

Scrofulous, Inherited and Contagious Humors Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

SCROFULOUS ULCERS.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on oath says: "In 1876 Scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not move in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

Sworn to before U. S. Com. J. D. CRAWFORD.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint we receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of Scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. The Soap takes the "cake" here as a medicinal soap.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Those Old Gardens.

Were not those old gardens far easier to take care of than the modern ones? It does not seem to me that we heard very much about a "sunny exposure" for this and "partial shade" for that. The contents of the little brown papers went straight into the warm soil without intervention of "hotbed" or "cold frame," with a comfortable faith that in due time they would appear and make the garden gay. And meanwhile there was always something in bloom, to cut and give away or bring into the house. The yellow jonquils were always on time and the "Daffies"—how glad we were when "Daffy-Down-Dilly came up to town, in a yellow petticoat and green gown."

It was warm then and the grass was green, and the feeling of summer was in the air. Moss pink never forgot to spread its rosy carpet, nor flowering almond to hold up its blossoming rods, and we knew just where to look for the tulip's scarlet and yellow cups. We were perfectly sure the great crimson peonies would be in their appointed place, and the columbines, canterbury bells, sweet williams, and clove sweet grass pinks would all come along in their proper order. And there was another fragrant thing we called "Vanilla," with finely cut foliage and tall stems and white heads of bloom.

And the roses! We didn't know anything about "Shy Bloomers," nor go into raptures over the wonderful fact of two blossoms on one plant. Our mother's roses were never "disbudded" until the buds became blossoms, and somebody wanted them. Baltimore Belle thrust its pinky white clusters into the bedroom window; queen of the prairie with its great scentless cups of changing colors climbed up the trellis at the side of the front door; blush rose, white, and deep-red Michigan, and yellow with its exasperating prickles covered themselves with glory in the garden, and our mother told us over again the old story of the moss rose, which, not satisfied with color and fragrance, begged for one grace more, and obtained it in the covering of the lowest thing that grows.

We knew nothing of carpet beds and ribbon beds planted merely for show. Those flowers entered into our lives, and were familiar friends. We helped to plant them, handled them, and smelled them, and broke them off to carry to school, or to play with and we were happy.

And in the fall when nothing was left but marigolds and the china asters with their flat rows of pink, blue and white petals (the German quilled ones were quite new then), and the broad, velvety dahlias, there came a time when, just at twilight we went into the garden with our mothers and held the basket while they cut off everything in blossom, "because there was going to be a black frost." We shivered a little in the cold wind and were glad to scamper back to the bright fire and warm our fingers. And then we filled every vase in the house with the bright hued autumn flowers and in the morning everything was black and withered, and the garden was over for that year. To be sure, there were bright sunny days after that, when we helped dig up the bulbs, and gathered a few more seeds and raked up the dead stalks.—Mrs. H. Annette Poole, in Good Housekeeping.

Bold Children.

It is surprising how bold young children become. They practice their boldness so frequently that it often leads to the commission of crime. A friend related a story to me the other day about a bright, handsome little miss of ten summers, who visited a Broadway bakery and told the clerk that a lady near by had sent her for some cakes, and that she would call and pay for them that evening. The accommodating clerk rather reluctantly gave the child the goods after relating her story to the proprietor. The girl ran across the street to a convenient doorway, and, to the surprise of the clerk, who had been watching her, the young miss opened the paper and, taking out the cakes, proceeded leisurely to devour them, casting the paper in which they were wrapped into the street. The lady whom the child said had sent her for the cakes was surprised and indignant when told what had taken place. She said she had not sent the child, and knew nothing about such a transaction. In fact, the lady did not live where the young thief claimed she did, having removed from the locality several days previous. The young criminal's audacity is astonishing and somewhat remarkable. The clerk, who, by the way, is a young lady of several years' experience in her business, was completely taken back. To think that a child of that tender age should impose upon her credulity completely unnerved her. Hereafter her customers will be served for spot cash. She will not listen to even the innocent pleadings of schoolchildren.—Albany Argus.

"Orange hash" is the name of a lately-invented fruit dish now popular in Charleston, S. C. Orange hash is made of that fruit; also bananas, lemons, apples, raisins, and pineapple, cut into little bits and served with sugar and nutmeg. The manner of its serving is as peculiar as the dish itself. A hole is cut in an orange large enough to admit a spoon, and after the inside has been scraped out the orange is filled with the hash and a little champagne or other wine—just enough to fill in the chinks—and the whole is frozen.

The Greatest Curative Success of the Age —A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvelous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses are offered to prove this:

What it Did for an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884.

GENTS:—A number of people have been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, has been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

Gorham, N. H., July 15, 1886.

GENTS: — Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (?) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady friend, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had had similar experience and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home.

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. New Hampshire Legislature.

At the conclusion of the governor's address, Thursday afternoon, both branches of the legislature adjourned to Friday morning, and a large number of the legislators left for their homes by the late trains, with the understanding that no further business (except to meet and adjourn) would be done until Tuesday forenoon, the 18th inst., by which time the committees would be ready for announcement.

Governor Sawyer's Inaugural.

Gov. Sawyer's inaugural address was quite long—longer than we can make room for in our columns; the following is an abstract:

The address opens with a financial statement for the fiscal year just closed, showing that the finances of the state are in a good condition. The total receipts of the year were $108,044.84; cash on hand June 1, 1886, $84,353.06; total disbursements during the year, $931,831.79, leaving cash on hand, $240,616.11; net indebtedness in June, 1886, $2,998,541.97; reduction of debt during the year, $167,241.18. One hundred thousand dollars of the state's indebtedness matures July 1st of the present year, and will be paid from cash now in the treasury.

As a consequence of the insurance laws enacted by the last legislature, forty-eight foreign fire insurance companies combined together and simultaneously withdrew their agencies from the state, refusing to continue to insure New Hampshire property under those laws. The sudden withdrawal of such a large amount of insurance capital threatened for a time to seriously embarrass and cripple the industries of the state, as it affected all business enterprises depending upon fire insurance as a basis of credit. That the disastrous results that were predicted did not follow was due largely to the promptness and enterprise of citizens in organizing new companies within the state. New Hampshire has to-day, in successful operation, three joint stock companies which transact a general fire insurance business throughout the country. It has five companies with capital of from $25,000 to $50,000 each, and sixteen mutual companies, whose operations are confined to the state, all of which, with a single exception, it is understood are at present in good standing and have been generally successful. There are also twenty-one town mutuals. I am not aware that any litigation has arisen under the new laws. He recommends that the laws be so amended that it shall be the duty of assessors in valuing property for the purpose of taxation to value buildings and the lands on which they are situated separately, and that the limit of the insurer's liability, when there is a total loss, shall not exceed three-quarters of the assessors' valuation, except by special agreement between the insurer and insured.

The savings banks exhibit a steady growth in deposits and the number of depositors. In 1869, as appears by the bank commissioners' report, there were in the state twenty-six savings banks, having 30,838 depositors, the amount of deposits being $4,860,024.86. By the 1887 report it appears that the number of banks had increased to sixty-seven, with 134,945 depositors and $30,406,434.77 of deposits, or an average of $373.53 to each depositor, as against $157.65 in 1860. Additional safeguards for depositors are recommended.

The railroad question, which is expected to take great prominence at the present legislative session, was only briefly referred to in the message. After stating that the report of the commissioners will give full information in regard to the railroad interests of the state, the governor adds: "In any legislation that may be enacted at this season in reference to railroads, great care should be taken that the interests of the people are securely guarded."

Among the questions that assumed prominence in the late election were those affecting the interests of labor. While it would be unwise and contrary to the spirit of our institutions for the state to make laws that would interfere with the freedom of individuals in the transaction of a lawful business, to buy and sell when and where, with whom and upon such conditions as may suit their own will and convenience, yet it is right and proper to establish such limitations by general and practical laws and regulations as will serve to protect the worker from undue hardships, which often result from business competition. In this direction, however, legislation must not only be confined within constitutional limits, but great care should also be exercised that it may not be in violation of natural laws which govern and control business. Otherwise there is danger of aggravating the evils that it is sought to remedy, without practical benefit to any one. Among the recommendations for remedying existing evils are the judicious regulation of hours of labor, the weekly payment of wages, the establishment of a board of labor arbitration, and also a bureau of statistics.

Should a constitutional convention be called, in accordance with a recent vote of the people, the question of a prohibitory amendment will undoubtedly come before that convention, and if the convention so decides, will be submitted to the people for their approval. Any legislation that promises to secure a better enforcement of the present prohibitory laws will receive the governor's approval.

A careful reading of the New Hampshire school reports leads to the conclusion that the schools are generally under good care and management, and under the new school law, known as the town system, must soon show a marked improvement in scholarship and attendance. The object of the law is to give every child in the state, as nearly as possible, equal school privileges; that the poorer and more remote country schools may have the same advantages that accrue to those in more densely settled localities, and that the wealth which is concentrated in the more favored sections shall help bear the burdens of educational expenses in the poorer districts. The consideration of the question of free text books is recommended. The results attained by the State Normal school have not met the expectation of its friends. There appears to be no good reason why New Hampshire should be an exception to other states in successfully maintaining at least one good and efficient normal school. It is claimed that the principal cause of its non-success is inadequate financial support, and that the annual appropriation of $5000 made by the state is not sufficient for the needs of the school.

The agricultural interests of the state should continue to receive the legislative care and attention deserved by their importance. The farmers of New Hampshire in organizing societies for mutual benefit and improvement have taken a step which promises to infuse new life into their industry and to restore their calling to the leading and influential position which it should naturally occupy.

A fire-proof building for the State Library is recommended.

A renewal of military uniforms will need to be commenced at once, to replace those that are becoming unserviceable from age and long continued use. The governor suggests the propriety of making a specific annual appropriation by law of a sum, which, being cumulative, would be sufficient to keep the uniforms in good condition, and could be drawn upon as wanted by the requirements of the service.

There has been a decrease in the number of state prisoners during the past year. There are now in the prison 121 convicts as against 132 in 1886. The discipline of the prison appears to be good, and its affairs well ordered and economically managed. A deficiency of $3576.68 is reported, the receipts falling short of disbursements by that amount. There are certain repairs and improvements which should be provided for by this legislature, and which are specified in the report of the warden of the prison, that will involve an estimated outlay of $6500.

With the growth in popularity of the White mountains as a resort for health and pleasure, the state has for a number of years appropriated money to aid in the construction and repair of mountain roads. It has been suggested that the appropriation made for this purpose should be in a gross sum to be expended under the direction of the governor and council, and that the money could in this way be more judiciously and economically expended than by the present plan of making specific appropriations for each locality, to be expended through the employment of agents.

It is recommended that New Hampshire take steps for placing a marble statue of Gen. John Stark in the hall of the National Capitol. As the Bennington monument is now approaching completion, it seems a fitting time to make a proposition that the services of that distinguished officer and citizen of New Hampshire, who commanded the patriotic forces in the important and decisive battle of Bennington, should be so commemorated.

In closing, the governor recommends the requisite measures to provide for the holding of the constitutional convention.

David O. Terry of California, who shot Broderick in the famous duel just before the outbreak of the rebellion, has moved from Stockton, where he has made his home for thirty years, to Fresno. It will be remembered that he was the leading counsel for Sarah Althea Hill in her divorce suit against Senator Sharon, and after its close he married the plaintiff.

The queen, in commemoration of her jubilee, will order the release of all military prisoners confined for petty offences.

FROM LIFE TO DEATH is but a moment if rheumatism or neuralgia strikes the heart. These diseases are the most painful and the most dangerous of any to which human kind is liable. They fly from one part to another without a moment's warning, and liniments and other outward applications are in themselves dangerous because they are liable to drive the disease to some vital organ and cause instant death. Rheumatism and neuralgia are diseases of the blood, and can only be reached by a remedy which will drive from the blood the dangerous acids. Such a remedy is Athlophoros. It has been thoroughly tested and is a safe, sure cure.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

For the benefit of people suffering with rheumatism I write to make the following statement. For a series of years my wife has been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism, often lasting for several months at a time, suffering intense pains, and only found relief by injecting powerful remedies in the arm, receiving thereby only temporary relief. The last of December, 1885, it appeared in the right arm and had with it excruciating pains. I procured a bottle of Athlophoros and by the time she had taken the third or fourth dose the pain ceased, and now after having begun on the second bottle is much improved, and I think on the road to a complete cure.

DANIEL S. WARD.

Carlton House, Boston, Mass. June 21, 1886.

Last winter I was troubled with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which stuck to me with such obstinacy as to cause me much worriment, pain and misery. All of these troubles were speedily removed by two bottles of Athlophoros. That medicine cured me entirely. P. JOSEPH MONAHAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney disease, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled. 2

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

LUTHER N. HURD.

Mr. Luther N. Hurd, whose funeral took place last Friday from his late home on Union street, was born in Limerick, Me., but lived in this city forty years or more. He was a superior workman in his business, which was that of a mason and stucco worker; he built the big chimney of the Portsmouth Steam Factory, now used by the machine company, laying the last brick himself, and much of the stucco work in the federal building was done by him. He was a member of the common council shortly after the city charter was adopted, but we believe never held any other public office. He was a member of Piscataqua Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., and when a young man was quite active in the order. He leaves a wife, three sons and two daughters; one of the sons live in Newburyport, but the others and the two daughters reside in the west, where they are all comfortably settled in life.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, June 3d.

Charles Thomas, a commercial traveller, was fined $3, with costs taxed at $6.90, for drunkenness, and paid it.

MARITIME NOTES.

The owners of the schooner Chilion, stranded at Rye, on Thursday decided to try and float the vessel, and Mr. William F. Fernald has been engaged to do the job, which will be accomplished by jacking her up, and laying ways under her for launching. Work was commenced Friday morning, and with good weather the schooner will probably be gotten off the beach in a short time.

The barque Quickstep, which was run down and sunk in New York lower harbor about two weeks ago, was rolled over during a heavy storm on Tuesday night, May 31st, and has become a total wreck. It is thought she will have to be blown up to remove her.

Some of the North End Charmer boat club are moving to get their boat off the navy yard, where she has been lying over a year, so they may make summer excursions on leisure days. The boat belonged to the U. S. S. Kearsarge at the time of her fight with the Alabama.

The cutter Thistle made another fine race over the new Thames yacht club course on the 2d inst., against seven other crack yachts, including the Irex and Genesta. The Thistle behaved splendidly, and made much the best time over the course of fifty miles, but was given third place on time allowance, the Wender taking first and the Irex second. The British yachtmen consider the Thistle the finest racing yacht afloat, and say she will almost surely beat either the Puritan or the Mayflower.

The dwelling houses belonging to the estate of John H. Grant will be sold at auction at half-past twelve o'clock today, under a license from the probate court.

Dr. C. D. Hinman, dentist, has rented the Bradford house on Court street.

Samuel Rutterfield, cashier at the Quincy house, Boston, closes his connection with that hotel this month, and takes a similar position at the hotel Wentworth, Newcastle. At the close of the season there, he will come to the Rockingham house in this city.

The train from Bangor due in this city at 2:50 P. M. on Friday did not arrive until seven minutes past five. It did not leave Portland until three P. M., the delay being occasioned by a bad washout which caused an injury to one of the locomotives on the Maine Central railroad.

Mr. C. H. Hobbs, formerly foreman teamster at the navy yard, took charge of the Eastern railroad wharf at Noble's island on the 1st inst. Edward W. Voudy is the engineer there. On Thursday twenty men were employed at the wharf, and 200 tons of coal were emptied from the pockets into the cars of the Boston & Maine railroad. One vessel left the wharf and dropped down to the lower harbor to await a favorable chance to go to sea, and another was discharged and ready to sail. The engines there take out 300 tons of coal a day from a vessel alongside the wharf.

Miss Maud Banks made her first appearance as a professional actress in her native place, Waltham, Mass., on the evening of June 1st, in Music hall, as Parthenia in "Ingomar, the Barbarian," the character in which she appeared at her debut on the stage of Music hall in this city. She received an ovation, the hall being crowded with 1100 of the leading people of Waltham, who greeted her with generous applause, calling her before the curtain at the close of every act; and she was presented with many floral tokens, one of them being from the Waltham Charity club, with which she was formerly actively connected, and at whose entertainments she often appeared as an amateur actress, with such success as to determine her to adopt the stage as a profession.

Rear Admiral Alfred Taylor, U. S. N., and family, are at the Rockingham house.

Tickets for the Mikado, to be given at Music hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 14th and 15th, will go on sale this (Saturday) morning at Goodrich's bookstore. Secure your seats early.

John H. Childs is reported as having left his home, No. 58 Bow street, on May 24th at four o'clock in the morning, being then intoxicated, and as not having returned; his wife and friends fear he fell overboard and was drowned.

Persons who are troubled with ill-fitting boots will find at Mr. J. C. Carr's store, Market street, boots made on common-sense lasts, giving real comfort as well as good style.

The free delivery system, to be extended July 1st to all towns and cities having a population of 10,000 or more, or whose post-offices have returned a revenue of $10,000 or upward, will add Portsmouth, Dover and Nashua to the list of free delivery cities. Newburyport also comes in for the benefit of the system.

Hugh W. Green of this city was on the 2d inst. granted a pension.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard having informed the department that the cement for use in the repairs of the stone dock will not be delivered for two weeks, the chief naval constructor has ordered that the Nipsic be placed in the dock at once, and that all work on her bottom be pushed with the greatest energy, so that no detention shall occur in the repairs to the dock.

The naval board of inspection and survey, of which Admiral Jouett is president, met at the Brooklyn navy yard on Friday morning to appraise the New York, the Minnesota, the Intrepid and the Alarm, which were ordered to be sold by the last Congress. The board also inspected the ironclad Nantucket.

A New Volcano.

A Mexican gentleman who has just arrived at Tombstone, Arizona, from Nacosari, Mexico, states that at the time of the first of the recent earthquakes a volcano broke out on the Chihuahua side of the Sierra Madre mountains, near Piedras Verdes, and about thirty miles west of Casas Grandes. Different parties numbering thirty persons in all, have gone from Casas Grandes to inspect the volcano, but owing to the intense heat they have been unable to approach nearer than within three miles of the mass of molten lava which pours down the mountain side, and which is estimated to extend fully ten miles from the crater of the volcano.

The Presbyterian says: "It seems but yesterday since it was thought an anomaly for a lady to go to the mission field except as the wife of a missionary. Now there are 2,400 of them, besides probably an equal number of married ladies. The results have dispelled fears and dissipated doubts."

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

It is stated that Secretary of the Navy Whitney has recently sold for $37,500 one-fourth of the estate which he purchased two years ago on the Tenallytown road in the suburbs of Washington. This is said to be $17,500 more than the secretary paid for the entire land.

We recommend Carter's Iron Pills to every woman who is weak, nervous and discouraged; particularly those who have thin, pale lips, cold hands and feet, and who are without strength or ambition. These are the cases for which Carter's Iron Pills are specially prepared, and this class cannot use them without benefit. Valuable for men also. In metal boxes at 50 cents. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. See advertisement elsewhere.

This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

The second number of Ticknor's Paper Series is the brilliant new romance by G. de Montauban, entitled "The Cruise of a Woman Hater," and filled with piquant and entertaining incidents and situations. Just what their attempt will amount to, if successful, is not apparent; if unsuccessful, it will amount to the funerals of two fools—in case their bodies are recovered.

Testimonial from Assemblyman Edward A. Darragh.

State of New York, Assembly Chamber, Albany, April 16, 1884.—Some years ago I was thrown from a wagon and fractured two ribs. I was so badly hurt that I had to sit up in a chair for four days and nights. The fourth day my mother placed two Allcock's Porous Plasters over my broken ribs. The next day my sufferings diminished and I was able to lie down. I continued to improve every day. Two weeks after the accident I got up and attended to business. I renewed the plasters twice, and found myself almost entirely well in a month, when I sailed for England.

My wife is subject to periodic pains in the back that give her rest neither day nor night, but in two hours after applying two Allcock's Plasters she experiences relief, and in two or three days she is well. She also finds them effective in neuralgia and rheumatism.

EDWARD A. DARRAGH.

During the continuance of the great dairy and cattle show, held in New York city in the second week of May, the American Agriculturist (monthly) issued a daily paper on the grounds every morning at ten o'clock, of eighteen pages, describing the scenes and incidents from day to day, and presenting illustrations of the various cattle and farm implements as premiums were awarded them. Every number contained from thirty to forty engravings of cattle, etc., etc. It was rather of a novelty for the veteran American Agriculturist, now not far from its fiftieth birthday.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

Charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty have been drawn up against Capt. Williams, of the New York police force, and he will be tried on them. He has long been the terror of evil-doers in his district, and has been regarded as the most efficient officer on the force.

Wm. Buchanan, engineer, Cunard S. S. Co., says: "St. Jacobs Oil saved my life."

Franklin J. Moses, ex-governor of South Carolina, who was sentenced in the Suffolk county (Mass.) criminal court in October, 1885, to three years imprisonment in the state prison for forgery, has been pardoned by Governor Ames. The reason assigned for the pardon is that Moses is in such poor health that he will probably not live long.

This refers to my case.

For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most

Excruciating pains,

"And the only way I ever got"

"Relief!"

Was by throwing up all my stomach contained ! ! No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until

"At last?"

I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and

My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain.

Their efforts were no good to me.

They Were Knowing Beasts.

During the month of May, 1845, if memory be right, on the passage from Boston to Charleston, says a writer in the Swiss Cross, Mr. Drinkwater, mate of the ship, told me this story:

"My father owned a horse and a dog between whom there was a warm affection. The dog slept in the stable. The horse had a troublesome habit when in harness of getting the reins under his tail and then holding them tightly. To cure this habit the sinews under the tail were cut, and when the horse was in the stable the tail was strained up by means of a cord passing over a pulley in the ceiling overhead. In this manner the horse was secured the night after the cutting and the stable was properly closed. In the morning the cord was found cut, the tail free, and the horse at his ease.

"Who had meddled? Who had cut that cord? Diligent inquiry was made, but no one knew anything about it. The tail was roped up again, and at evening everything was right in the stable; but in the morning again the cord was found cut and the horse at his ease in the stall. No one could explain the matter. The third night before closing the stable my father hid himself where he could see the horse, determined to solve the mystery. When the stable had been closed and all was quiet, the dog rose, looked around, jumped on to the back of the horse, and with his teeth cut the cord that kept his friend in pain."

A gentleman in Massachusetts once told me the following story, and the style of the man should be mentioned as a part of the scene. The narrator was tall and muscular, of manly, almost noble, presence. He said:

"I once owed my life to the good will of a horse, and it was thus: I was farming in Vermont. It was winter; the ground was covered deep with snow. That snow was coated with a hard, sharp crust. I was driving in a sleigh a pair of horses. At a place in the road where but a single track had been broken and where to turn out into the cutting ice crust would give pain to horse and trouble to man I met an old gentle driving a single horse in a cutter. I tried to turn my horses out into the crust. They would not turn out. I jumped out and took them by the bits to compel them. One of them sprang upon me, threw me down in the deep snow, and knelt on my breast. I was helpless, I could not stir. I thought my end had come, when my other horse seized her mate by the cheek with her teeth, pulled him off from me, and held him till I got up and was safe. Then with voice and movement she showed joy and delight as plainly as ever did man or woman.

Preserved in Sea Water.

The capability of sea water as a preservative is shown by the fact that among the articles recovered from vessels sunk in the harbor of Vigo, Spain, in 1702, there have been recovered specimens of logwood and mahogany that, notwithstanding their 184 years' submersion, are in the most perfect state of preservation. Dyers who have experimented with the logwood state that it is even better for dyeing purposes than the wood now imported. The mahogany, too, is very fine and solid, one log twelve feet long and twenty-two by thirty-two inches square being subsequently worked up in the shape of furniture and walking-sticks as mementos. The chief object of interest, however, is an ancient pulley block four and one-half feet high and three feet broad, with four solid copper sheaves eighteen inches in diameter. It is of solid oak, and was probably used in hoisting heavy articles of merchandise on the anchors. The wood is perfectly preserved, but an iron band is completely corroded away, while the copper wheels are but slightly oxidized.

The Secret of Sighting.

I have traveled a good deal over the country, and have met some of the finest shots in the world, and without exception they have all acknowledged that they sighted the rifle or revolver before shooting. Many of them, when talking with what they call a "Tenderfoot," will tell him that they do not sight—that they "can't tell how they do it, seems to come natural to them," and all such bosh, but let them get to talking among themselves, or to a man who can shoot a little himself, and they tell a different story. A man has plenty of time to take sight at a swift-moving object if he handles his gun right, and that is where two-thirds of the secret of the snap shooting lies. A man should practice with his rifle until, when he brings it to his shoulder it will be almost where he wants it. Sometimes it will be exactly right the instant it touches his shoulder, but that will not do to depend on. A little practice of this kind, and you will find that when the gun strikes the shoulder your eye will be aligned with the sights, and all you have to do is to change it the fraction of an inch to get it where you want it. It is all done in a quarter of a second, and a man is just as sure of his sight and can call his shot with as much certainty as he would it shooting at a still target. There is one feature about it that I wish to call your attention to particularly, and that is the absence of the noise and smoke and recoil that there is about shotgun shooting. In the field, of course, one doesn't mind it, but at the trap it gets monotonous. With the 22-calibre there is, of course, no recoil, scarcely any smoke, and very little noise.—Des Moines Register.

AN ANSWER DEMANDED.

Is There a Hidden Cause for Most Suffering? A Careful Investigation.

The inhabitants of Boston and New England have been considerably exercised the past week over some important facts which have come out in articles in the papers as to the real cause of most modern diseases. Every one has known that there has been some mysterious cause for unexplained suffering, that even the doctors could not account for. A hidden disease has been shown to be the real cause of most so-called pneumonia, convulsions, apoplexy, etc. If this is true, it is of the greatest importance that we understand it thoroughly. With this end in view, a representative of this paper has collected facts from various sources which are given herewith:

REPORTER AND DOCTOR.

Dr. J. H. Cutler, who resides at 20 Poplar st., said: "I believe, in common with all physicians, observed the alarming increase of kidney diseases leading to that fearful scourge, Bright's disease, and have been constantly seeking for the proper means of meeting it. I have been prescribing Hunt's Remedy for a great many of my patients and with great success. I also administered it to my mother, and with much benefit."

Mr. Samuel Littlefield, 1482 Washington street, said: "I was troubled with kidney disease for years, which finally turned to gravel. I would be free from suffering for a long while, and then have the most terrible pains in my back. I also had inflammation of the worst kind in my bladder, and I was altogether in a fearful condition. I went to several physicians, but all to no purpose, and I found I was growing very feeble. A friend in Malden urged me to use Hunt's Remedy. He had been cured of gravel and liver complaint by its use, and believed it would help me. Well, its effect was wonderful, and I cannot too highly thank my friend for the timely recommendation he made. I wish I could make every one know and understand what a valuable medicine it is."

Mrs. William Gray, 1416 Tremont street, said: "I was troubled with kidney disease for a number of years, at times being so bad from swollen limbs and pains in the back, that I was completely under the doctor's care. I received only temporary benefit until I began using Hunt's Remedy, which cured me entirely, and I cannot say too much in its favor."

Captain Joseph L. Hayden, connected with the Walworth Manufacturing Co., residing at 924 East Fourth street, South Boston spoke in the highest terms of Hunt's Remedy. "Many of my friends in Enfield Mass., have used it with unusual results, and would not be without it. I employed it in my family when other remedies had proved wholly useless, and it was remarkable in its results. It completely cured my wife of pain in the back."

WELL WITHOUT; DYING WITHIN.

Mr. H. Barney, baggage master of the Eastern railroad, declared that he had used Hunt's Remedy in his family for a long time, and would not be without it. He had not only found it good for kidney complaints (a trouble with which all railroadmen are more or less afflicted) but his wife had used it successfully in a severe case of what was, apparently, dyspepsia.

The uniform testimony which was given to the worth of this Remedy in Boston was born out by equally strong statements from residents in the suburbs.

Mr. Joseph G. Bicknell of Cambridgeport asserted that he had been a great sufferer. The fluids he passed were thick with brickdust sediment, and were voided with the greatest pain. Within four days from the time he began using Hunt's Remedy he passed a gravel stone larger than a pea, followed by other smaller ones. A speedy cure was the result, and he cannot recommend the Remedy too highly.

Mr. George P. Cox, proprietor of the last factory at Malden, had seen such wonderful effects of Hunt's Remedy among so many of his relatives and friends that he was enthusiastic in its favor. He had not only used it himself with the greatest benefit, but two cousins, William W. and John F. Cox, had experienced untold relief. He would not be without it if it cost $5 a bottle.

Such statements lead us to the inevitable conclusion that, while Bright's disease of the kidneys is the concealed and actual cause of many complaints which bear other names, it can be both met and cured. Let all readers look to their condition at once, and thoroughly convince themselves whether they are or are not in perfect health, and then use that means which has been proven, and is known to be both pure and efficient and good.

New Hampshire Railroad Commissioners' Report.

The report of the board of railroad commissioners to the legislature, being the 43d annual report, makes a book of 413 pages. It has an excellent map of the state, showing the railway lines and their connection with other states. The report treats of the advance in the prices of railway securities; earnings and expenses, giving aggregated results; mileage, accidents, rails and ties, grade crossings, car heating and lighting, whistling, etc., short railways, special rates, and the interstate commerce act. Part two gives the history and condition of the various railway lines in the state. Part three is devoted to a history of the complaints made to and hearings given by the board. Part four has tables of statistics of verious kinds, and part five gives the tabulated returns of railroad corporations. The appendix gives extracts from the general laws of the state, of all laws applicable to railroads, together with the interstate act, and has also an index showing dates of charters of various railroad corporations.

The commissioners assert that all New Hampshire roads lead to Boston, and maintain that it should not be a misdemeanor for a railroad corporation to coax business upon its line by offering special inducements to locate there.

The typographical execution of the book by the state printer is excellent.

Although two of the three commissioners have had legal education, they seem to have used the "District" and "Circuit" courts synonomously in speaking of the Portland & Ogdensburg Railroad Co., which is still under the receivership of the United States Circuit court for the New Hampshire district.

The Doctors (Outsiders)-Disagree.

The New York Sun, which has long been one of the bitterest opponents of William E. Chandler, and not outdone by any paper in the virulence of its abuse of him, remarks:

Inasmuch as the senator elected this year in New Hampshire must be a republican, would Mr. Chandler's success be a public misfortune? We should be far from regarding it as such. He is not a fool; he is not a crank; he is no dummy. As a lively, interesting, and stimulating individuality, he would be a great accession to the senate. And what republican in New Hampshire is knee high to Chandler in ability, or what republicans have ever done one-tenth as much as he for the party which he loves and serves?

Per contra, the New York Times in alluding to Mr. Chandler's possible election as United States senator says:

Whatever happens it is to be hoped that the republican majority of the legislature will not discredit the party in that state or humiliate it in the country at large by foisting again into national prominence this disreputable and unscrupulous politician.

Now, both the Sun and the Times are democratic papers—the only difference between them being that the Sun is an open and avowed enemy of the republican party, while the Times sneaks behind the mask of "independence," though opposing every principle and every candidate of the republicans, and supporting everything democratic through thick and thin. It is not likely that the republicans of the New Hampshire legislature will seek inspiration from either of these sources.

The general drift of the talk of the political experts in Concord last week was favorable to Mr. Chandler's nomination by the republican legislative caucus, and his consequent election, unless (as is suggested) enough republicans should bolt the caucus nomination to elect Gen. Gilman Marston with the aid of the democratic vote. We do not believe Gen. Marston desires to be a democratic senator; and in any event it is the duty of the republicans to act as they may deem is best for the public interest, without regard to the "claims" of any candidate, or the possible action of any one who may be unsuccessful in the caucus.

Vice-President Wheeler's Death.

Hon. William A. Wheeler, vice-president of the United States during the administration of President Hayes, died at Malone, N. Y., on the night of June 3d.

Naval Intelligence.

Assistant Surgeon James G. Fields has been ordered to the receiving ship Vermont.

Ensign D. P. Menefee has been detached from the branch hydrographic office, San Francisco, June 30th, and ordered to the Adams.

Ensign James H. Oliver is detached from the Mohican and ordered home.

Passed Assistant Surgeon Henry B. Fitts is detached from the Vermont, and ordered to the Pinta.

Assistant Surgeon William Martin is detached from the Pinta on reporting of his relief, and ordered home.

Surgeon J. Rufus Tryon is detached from the Quinnebaug on the reporting of his relief, and ordered home.

Chief Engr. G. W. Hall is detached from the Yantic, and placed on waiting orders.

The navy department has just published an exhaustive report on a series of tests that have been made to demonstrate the value of anti-corrosive and anti-fouling paints for the protection of ships' bottoms. These tests, which have been going on for two years past, have cost between $8,000 and $9,000, and over 200 samples of paint have been tried. The result, as summed up by the construction bureau, is that pure white zinc is the best paint that can be generally applied to vessels' bottoms, while a mixture of two-thirds red lead and one-third white zinc is next in order of merit. The paint recommended by the naval advisory board for use on the cruisers came out ninth in the competition.

The Fisheries Dispute.

The following was given out at the state department, Washington, on the 4th inst.: "It is understood on undoubted authority that the prospects for an early settlement of the fisheries trouble are very brigit. For some months Secretary Bayard has been bestowing close attention upon this subject, and has been in constant correspondence with Lord Salisbury. All points at issue have now been settled satisfactorily, with one exception, and this, it is confidently hoped, will also be agreed upon in a comparatively short time. The point upon which Secretary Bayard is now resting, is that American fishing vessels shall be permitted to touch at Canadian ports, with the privileges of shipping crews and purchasing bait, and, indeed, any other purpose, but not to fish within the three-mile limit. Lord Salisbury, so far, has only conceded the right to put in for wood, water, supplies and repairs. Probably there will be some compromise on these points."

A Dangerous Customer.

Bob Fitton of Bellows Falls, Vt., an alleged wholesale firebug, was arrested at Walpole, N. H., June 4th, on charges of forgery, perjury and contempt of court. It is said that insurance companies have for many years had a wholesome dread of him, as he recently testified before the United States court that nine different buildings owned by himself or members of his family had been burned within a few years, and a careful estimate of the amount of insurance paid under these fires placed the total at between $90,000 and $100,000. For years insurance companies have refused to insure him or any member of his family, but by strategy and in various ways he has succeeded in getting insurance, and the property has immediately been burned.

In the Thames yacht club race from the Nore to Dover on the 4th inst. the Thistle was a quarter of an hour ahead when she ran into a calm, while the other yachts kept a strong breeze, and went ahead. The Genesta won the race, with the Irex less than half a minute behind, and the Thistle five minutes behind the Irex. The race showed that the Thistle is a wonderful sailer, her defeat being due to a "fluke."

The ultra democratic New York World remarks: "One of the bondsmen of Mr. Hyatt, the new treasurer of the United States, is Elbert A. Woodward. One Mr. E. A. Woodward figured prominently in the old Tweed Ring, and was an active participant in the work of raising warrants in Comptroller Connolly's office. He was a fugitive from justice, was found in a western city bearing a fictitious name, and disgorged some $200,000 of the plunder that had fallen to his share. Surely this cannot be the same E. A. Woodward now figuring on the bond of the treasurer of the United States?"

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease is in the blood, and any remedy to reach it must deal with the causes which poisons and infuses it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

A party consisting of Nathaniel Danielson, Robert W. Danielson and the latter's son, a boy ten or twelve years old, and Emmanuel Charlesworth, Jr., on Sunday forenoon hired a small row boat of Mr. Alfred R. Goodwin, and proceeding to the narrows, anchored near the edge of the eddy just above the point of Seavey's island, and went to fishing for cunners or whatever else might come along. About half-past ten o'clock the boat was capsized—just how we cannot say, as there are several stories related, one saying that the boat was rolled over in an attempt to pull up the kellick, and others giving other accounts of the cause of the accident. Major David Urch, who was at the time in his boat near the second Newcastle bridge, saw the other boat go over, and pulling to the spot took the three Danielsons ashore on Seavey's island; and then being informed that there was another man in the water, went off and found him floating, and landed him at the same place. The body was quite warm when taken ashore, and word was at once sent to the navy yard; and the surgeon of the yard hastened to the point and for nearly an hour worked to resuscitate the unfortunate man, but life was extinct. The deceased was about twenty-two years old, and a cooper by trade; he was unmarried. He was a brother of John Thomas Charlesworth, who shot himself dead last fall in the yard of his father's place on Congress street.

"CONTENTMENT."

"Contentment" was the subject in the Universalist church yesterday, the text being: "But Godliness with contentment is great gain;" I Tim., 6-6; and "For I have learned in whatsoever state I am to be content;" Phil. 4-11.

The disconted ones of earth are usually the very conservative, those who cling to the wornout ideas of things, and grumble about them. Being in a state of mind concerning the church, and science and morality, that the world has outgrown, they are discontented about those three great moving elements, yet they are so conservative that they will not move themselves. They keep in their minds certain old memories labelled years ago as "church" and "state" and "society," and these they drag out and pommel on every opportunity, and yet are not contented. Again, contentment is wrecked on the rocks of apathy and indifference. Contentment is not an idle acquiescence to anything that may be improved. It is not accepting any situation until it is mastered. Contentment is accepting all of Nature's conditions of growth; be they ever so harsh, they are the very school of culture and discipline.

God is the great fact; to that we must conform; and He is Infinite, so contentment must know no limits of progression. Contentment makes all situations indefinitely expansive. However small the imitation, it must be linked to this highest of principles. A Godlike ambition with contentment is great gain.

PORTSMOUTH HORSE RAILROAD.

Notice was given the legislature on Thursday by Mr. George E. Hodgdon of an act to incorporate a horse railroad in this city. The bill has not yet been drawn. This is a scheme long talked of, but until the present time no action has been taken, and it is hoped that now a move has been made, it will be carried through.—Penny Post.

The long talk about a horse railroad in this city cannot have been very general, for we never heard any intimation of any such scheme until we saw it mentioned in the despatches from Concord in the Boston papers of last Friday evening. And as to where the tracks are proposed to be laid, or where any such accommodation is needed or would pay in this city, we are yet in the dark. The city government will do well to consider carefully whether a horse railroad in Portsmouth would or would not be a public benefit, before consenting to allow our streets to be cut up by its tracks.

MARITIME NOTES.

Two loads of heavy planks and blocking were transported to Rye beach from this city on Saturday by team, to be used in removing the stranded schooner Chilion from the beach.

The schooner Franklin S. Schenck, Capt. Thomas Jameson, sailed from this port on Sunday on a fishing trip to the banks.

Among the charters reported last week were two schooners with coal from Baltimore to Boston at $1.15 and discharged; a schooner from South Amboy to Newburyport with coal at $1 and discharged; and a schooner from New York to Portsmouth with coal at ninety-five cents and discharged.

The steamer James Sampson, Capt. Duncan, is making regular trips to Newcastle and Kittery Point daily, and although so early in the season she is well patronized.

There were about 100 schooners, a large paoportion of them three-masters, at anchor in the lower harbor on Sunday, waiting for favorable weather to continue their voyages.

The steam launch Gypsey, belonging to the Wentworth house, is at the steamboat wharf, this city, undergoing an overhaul preparatory to engaging in the summer's work.

The sloop boat Ripple, belonging to Lewis Holmes, got across the bows of a schooner at anchor near Whale's-back while being sailed by Harry Gardner and Fred Danielson, last Saturday afternoon. Her mast was broken off at the step, but partial repairs were effected and she continued up the river, but when off Clark's island she lost her rudder, and was towed the rest of the distance by the steamer James Sampson, through the kindness of Capt. Duncan.

The Army and Navy Register of June 4th says: "It has been decided to remove the old machinery from the Kearsarge, now undergoing repairs at Kittery, Me., and replace it with engines which were designed for a vessel of similar class during the war, and to furnish boilers considerably less in size than those which were formerly thought necessary. The present engines of this vessel are quite worn out, and have arrived at the stage when repairs are no longer practicable."

Carpenter Joseph E. Cox, U. S. N., of Kittery, is detached from duty at the naval war college, and ordered to duty in connection with the erection of a naval hospital at Widow's island, Me., which is to be constructed under the supervision of Passed Asst. Surgeon Arthur C. Heffenger, U. S. N., of this city.

Mayor Eldredge, chairman of the committee on the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument, who was authorized at the last meeting of the committee to appoint a sub-committee of five to obtain and recommend plans for the monument, has appointed the following-named gentlemen as that committee: John H. Hutchinson, Frank Jones, Andrew P. Preston, Edmund S. Fay and John W. Parsons.

The street commissioner on Saturday commenced making some repairs on the new portion of Vaughan street—and not a day too soon, either.

A young man employed in the shoe factory had the ends of both his fore-fingers smashed on Friday of last week by getting them caught in a box-making machine.

Mr. Nathaniel Hanscom last week sold his house, No. 24 Dennett street, Christian Shore, to Mr. Ira C. Seymour, for $2000; also about an acre of land to Mr. George W. W. Gove, adjoining the latter's premises. Mr. Hanscom will immediately build another house for himself, on the lot on Dennett street formerly his orchard.

Capt. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., and family, are visiting in Portsmouth.

It is reported that Pepperell's wharf at Kittery Point has been leased to a Gloucester firm, who will purchase fresh fish on a large scale during the next cold season.

Prof. Brown, the optician, being prevented by illness from visiting this city at the time intended, his advertisement is withdrawn for the present.

The Newport (R. I.) Journal of May 28th says: "Captain and Mrs. A. R. Yates entertained about a hundred guests on board the New Hampshire on Monday afternoon, between five and seven o'clock. The upper deck, where the lancing took place, was handsomely decoraied, and well-dressed marines were on duty. All the officers of the training ships were present in uniform. A collation was provided."

Many strangers and some local capitalists are looking over the Dow farm at Rye with a view to purchasing, should that valuable property be for sale, as it is rumored it may be in the near future.

We would say to the editor of the Portsmouth Gazette that we were not "stirred to wrath," but simply highly pleased at the superabundant check shown by some persons who want the earth and a fence around it, and are not willing to pay for even a title deed.—Kennebunk Star.

Patrick Dailey of Dover, thirty-two years old and having a wife and six children, was fatally injured on Friday last while assisting to put up gear for discharging the schooner James L. Malloy at that place, by being struck on the head by a heavy block which fell from aloft through the parting of a rope.

The parasols shown by Lewis E. Staples this season cannot be beaten for styles and low prices. Ladies, call and look at them, and be convinced.

The Cunard steamer Umbria arrived at New York on Saturday last from Queenstown, Ireland, having made the passage in 5 days, 23 hours and 40 minutes, the quickest on record.

Prayed too Vigorously.

Rev. Mr. Griffiths of the Episcopal church at Kent, Conn., prayed long and fervently for rain. The following Thursday rain came, and with it lightning. A bolt struck the church, and damaged it to the extent of $100.

This recalls to mind the old story of the Methodist preacher who was riding on circuit in a thinly settled country during a season of severe drouth, and about noon arrived at a house occupied by an old lady who had a large patch of potatoes planted on the side of a steep hill near by. The old lady was a staunch Baptist, and to the preacher's request for food for himself and his horse she replied that he could have it only on one condition, namely, that he would pray for rain to come at once. The good brother prayed earnestly for the desired blessing, ate his dinner, and went his way greatly refreshed. Hardly had he departed when a tremendous thunder shower arose, and the torrents of water rushed down the hillside, and washed the old lady's potatoes all out of the ground; and as she ruefully surveyed the havoc created she remarked, "There! That's just like them Meihodists. They ain't got no discretion; they always over-do everything."

"I have sold and am selling Athlophoros. In several cases I have recommended it for rheumatism and have found it to be a good thing," says C. W. Wells, a druggist of Maynard, Mass. No remedy can be recommended more conscientiously.

The parliament of Canada has voted £20,000 toward the erection of the Imperial institute in London, projected as a memorial of the queen's jubilee.

Will positively cure sick headache and prevent its return. Carter's Little Liver Pills. This is not talk, but truth. One Pill a dose. See advertisement. Small pill. Small dose. Small price.

The Boston common council last week, by a vote of thirty-six to twenty-four, passed an order asking the mayor to receive as a guest of the city T. V. Powderly, chief of the Knights of Labor. That vote was a piece of demagogism of the worst kind.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

The Free Baptist Association has just announced the date of its annual campmeeting at Ocean park, Old Orchard. The assembly will open August 1st, and be in session nineteen days. Rev. E. L. Townsend will deliver lectures, and Professor E. Bundy will have charge of the musical services.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

Every nervous person should try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. They are made specially for nervous and dyspeptic men and women, and are just the medicine needed by all persons who, from any cause, do not sleep well, or who fail to get proper strength from their food. Cases of weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous and sick headache, etc., readily yield to the use of the Little Nerve Pills, particularly if combined with Carter's Little Liver Pills. In vials at 25 cents.

Sensible O'Brien.

Editor O'Brien declined to attend a mass meeting and parade of the Henry George labor party in New York on the evening of the 4th inst., not caring to identify the cause of Irish rights with the wild theories of the levellers. The property distributionists are as mad as hornets over his action, but the cause to which he is devoted is undoubtedly much strengthened by it.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

Listen to Your Wife.

The Manchester GUARDIAN, June 8th, 1883, says: At one of the "Windows"

Looking on the woodland ways! With clumps of rhododendrons and great masses of May blossoms ! ! ! "There was an interesting group.

It included one who had been a "Cotton spinner," but was now so

Paralyzed ! ! !

That he could only bear to lie in a reclining position.

This refers to my case.

I was first attacked twelve years ago with "Locomoter Ataxy"

(A paralytic disease of nerve fibre rarely ever cured)

and was for several years barely able to get about.

And for the last five years not able to attend to my business, although

Many things have been done for me.
The last experiment being Nerve stretching.
Two years ago I was voted into the Homes for Incurables! Near Manchester, in May, 1882.

I am no "advocate;" "For anything in the shape of patent "Medicines!

And made many objections to my dear wife's constant urging to try Hop Bitters, but finally to pacify her—

Consented ! !

I had not quite finished the first bottle when I felt a change come over me. This was Saturday, November 3d. On Sunday morning I felt so strong I said to my room companions, "I was sure I could "Walk!

So started across the floor and back.

I hardly knew how to contain myself. I was all over the house. I am gaining strength each day, and can walk quite safe without any "Stick!"

Or support.

I am now at my own house, and hope soon to be able to earn my own living again. I have been a member of the Manchester "Royal Exchange"

For nearly thirty years, and was most heartily congratulated on going on the room on Thursday last. Very gratefully yours,

JOHN BLACKBURN.

MANCHESTER, (ENG.) Dec. 24, 1883.
Two years later am perfectly well.

One Experience of Many.

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble!" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!

My trouble always came after eating any food—

However light,
And digestible,

For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most

Excruciating pains,
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief!"

Was by throwing up all my stomach contained ! ! No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until

"At last?"

I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and

Could eat nothing ! ! !

My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain.

Their efforts were no good to me.

At last I heard a good deal
"About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."

Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of

One ! ! ! !

Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a

"Sick!"

Hour, from the same cause, since.

I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such

"Advocate as I am."

MARRYING FOR MONEY.

Some Unorthodox but Common-sense Views on the Subject.

For lovers, who love because they love this paper is not written. They are what they are. They do not reason and cannot be reasoned with. Their passion is a blind force which attracts them together as Saturn's moons are attracted to Saturn—by an occult and invisible compulsion which can neither be seen, nor felt, nor tasted, nor described. They are a theme for poets and dreamers, and not for common, sensible, workaday people like the writer and reader. Have done with them.

But there are people who get married as they join the church, or choose a vocation, or enter upon a hazardous undertaking. They look around them and examine into the condition of holy wedlock as it is among their acquaintances, friends, and kinfolk. Having "cut their eye teeth," they brush the bloom from the cheek of the peach before they eat it, because they know the bloom is bitter. For good people of this strain a profitable word may be said about marrying for money.

I have often thought that the circumstances under which a man or a woman might justifiably marry for money could be readily tabulated. If, for instance, there should be a rich man who had no moral or physical defect to make an allowance with him repulsive, his health would be a proper inducement to any woman of the following list to whom he might offer his hand:

A woman older than himself and dependent.
A widow with children to care for.
A widow with no one to care for her.
An invalid, maid or matron.
An accomplished poor girl.
A beauty.
An equal in wealth and position.

So, also, throwing love out of the question, but insisting upon regard, respect, and good character, a rich young woman might probably marry:

A man of equal or larger fortune.
A poor man of talent.
A clever artist, or mechanic, or farmer, or preacher, or soldier.

Any man the weight of whose intelligence, capacity of one sort or another, would be a balance for the weight of dollars brought him by his wife.

Throwing out of consideration the phosical conditions which are necessary under all circumstances of the married state, if money be an inducement the man who marries for money should be able to bring some set-off to make the match an even one. It is the more necessary for the reason that the man is the proposing party. That a proper woman would be an angel indeed who, having put her fat purse into the hand of a poor husband, would not upon some of the emergent occasions of married life taunt him with "the odd shilling."

On the contrary, the rich husband who marries a wife of a slender fortune is his own chooser. However much he may rue his bargain he cannot reproach his helpmate for self-imposed conditions. Having made his bed he must lie in it. If his wife be accomplished or beautiful she may fairly claim that the dowry she brings her husband is something better than gold can buy.

Marrying for money in some cases is altogether advisable, if the opportunity offer. It is not a merely sordid view of the married relation to take care at the outstart of assuring bread and butter. There may, indeed, be some doubt of the propriety of bringing a brood of children into the world for the world to care for. The philosophy of Tennyson's Yorkshire farmer in his advice to his son Sammy:

Doant thou marry for munny,
But goa where there munny is—is full of the wisdom of this world. We advise as many of the Tommys and Susans as possible not to marry for money, but to go where money is and take the chances. If money can be found in the hands of a fairly good man or a tolerable girl, or a beaming and buxom widow, and the incumbrances be not greater than the inducements, marriageable bodies should not let an opportunity that offers slip from their grasp. Money not only makes the mare go; it buys oats for the mare so that she can go.

Sentimentalists who are disposed to find fault with these wordly-wise words may rest their criticism. Lovers who from time immemorial rushed blindly into matrimony, regardless of the fact that love and squalid poverty are incompatible, will continue to rush. The more far-seeing and better balanced ones will weigh the pros and cons and marry according to their judgment if they marry at all, and no man or woman will marry for money because of our advice—unless they get the chance. Nevertheless, "goain' wheer munny is" is not the greatest vice for which modern society is accountable—Philadelphia Record.

The Test of Christianity.

If you wish to know whether Christianity is superseded try to live out some of its cardinal virtues. Try forgiveness, for instance. See if you find it a trite, threadbare, overused habit in your own life; see if it is something that comes to you naturally and easily; see if it is a capacity that you have so fully attained that you can mote it out seventy times seven to the one who has persistently wronged you. Try and see; and then, perhaps, it will appear that the man who could forgive the enemies that crucified Him lived on a moral plane of life to which the world, with all its intellectual and material advancement, has not yet risen. —Boston Christian Register.

JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH,

SELMA, N. C., Feb. 11, 1887.

Gentlemen—Yours inquiring whether or not I had been benefitted by Kaskine, and if so to what extent, &c., to hand. In reply will say that my health has not been as good in twenty years as now. I suffered with chills from malarial poison contracted while serving in the Confederate army on the Peninsular Campaigns in Virginia. Did not miss having a chill at least once in twenty-one days, and more frequently once in seven days, for more than fifteen years. The result was very poor health and a general letting down of the system which only those similarly affected can appreciate.

In this condition I visited New York in November, 1885, on business. While there I stopped with Mr. E. D. Barker, of the University Publishing Company. I told Mr. Barker of my condition. He called my attention to your Kaskine and procured for me a bottle. After my return home I took the pellets as directed and found much relief afforded thereby. Of this change I wrote Mr. Barker, who sent two or three bottles during the past year. My health greatly improved. I increased in weight from 165 pounds to 200 pounds, my present weight. I believe the Kaskine did it. Quinine had failed, as had other remedies usually administered in such cases.

Now, unless in case of exposure to extra bad weather, I do not have chills, and my general health is quite good. I turned over half a bottle to a young lady friend a few weeks since. I learned from her mother that she was much benefitted by it while it lasted.

I trust you may be able to introduce Kaskine generally in this country, in which many suffer from diseases consequent upon malarial poison in the system. From my own experience I can emphasize its excellence for such diseases. If I can serve you call on me.

I am very truly yours.

JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH.

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

The city of Boston recently went into the money market with a loan of $800,000 at a reasonably low rate of interest. The proceeds of the loan were intended for the payment of the cost of erecting a new court house. To the surprise of the saloon keepers who manage the finances of the city, there was no apparent struggle to obtain the bonds. In fact, there was no haste upon the part of the money bags to exchange their ducats for the city's promises to pay. It is not difficult to perceive why this was thus. Boston has a democratic "reform" city government, which means that the gin shops run the town, and from the way its municipal affairs are conducted, capital will not loan money to the modern Athens except upon higher rates than are paid by cities with less alcoholic control in their municipal conduct. The owner of real estate or bank stock or any taxable property in Boston is simply at the mercy of an irresponsible set of men in the city government, because the mugwump element of Boston determined that the democracy were more honest in politics than the republican party could be!

An illustration of the modes in which the modern Bostonians disburse the funds of the city, notwithstanding the law prohibiting expenditures for wines, liquors, cigars and refreshments for the municipal palate, is seen in the lavish outlay for the recent entertainment of Queen Kapiolani at the Parker house, etc. The bill for flowers for the queen's parlor, chamber, and other rooms, including the mayor's breakfast, etc., was $4,570. Of this sum the florist considerately knocked off $570, perhaps for flowers taken and paid for by the queen from which could be made the garlands which decked the brows of the honest councilmen at her departure. It cost the taxpayers $2800 for a journey by a few members of the city council to Washington to invite the queen to come to the Hub and help spend the people's money; $3854.58 were expended in refreshing those who attended the reception, and $2028 for printing and engraving the invitations to the reception and to the mayor's breakfast. A little dinner at the Victoria cost the good city $782, and so on. Now all this because the solid men of Boston have allowed the municipal control to pass from the republicans to the democrats, who in turn have surrendered it to the keepers of the Irish groggeries. No one apologizes for this. The vulgar display of flowers in such massive quantity, the almost unlimited "refreshments," must have been as disgusting to the royal guest, assuming that royalty and refinement go hand in hand, as it now appears to those who have not by the first of May gone into their country legal residences for sanitary and exclusible purposes. The fact is that Boston has become a city entirely controlled in its political features by the Irish democracy, who having entered into possession, revel in their acquired power without stint, and as the guest remarked when he saluted the wife of the landlord of his hotel, "have it put in the bill!"

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., June 6th.

On Saturday last there were more than seventy sail of vessels in the lower harbor. Those who have a harbor view beheld the unusual sight of twelve three-masted vessels at anchor at one time. It was a grand sight to see the vessels, like great white gulls, come flying in past Whale's-back into the harbor during the day.

The proprietor of the Hotel Park-Field is having a pier built from the hotel to the steamer's landing. It commands a fine ocean view, and avoids the dust of the road. It will be a favorite promenade, as well as a great convenience.

The new road to Gerrish's island is the prettiest drive in the town, when the tide is up. Coming from the Goodwin bridge toward the village, you have a view straight down the leafy banks of Chauncy's creek, of the harbor, and the shores of New Hampshire in the distance; while on either hand the pine trees nod and whisper, the barberry bushes swing their yellow bells, and clumps of sweet-fern fill the air with perfume.

Hotel Pepperell will open June 7th. Mr. Starr and party from Litchfield, Conn., are among the first arrivals. The shady avenues approaching the Pepperell, and the green lawns surrounding it, impress the tired city worker with a sense of calm and quietness that is refreshing.

Mrs. Sarah Mitchell has returned to Boston after a flying visit home last week. Her health has greatly improved in the climate of our modern Athens.

Mr. Frank Fuller has moved his family from Kittery, to a farm on Blossom avenue.

Mr. Jefferson T. Lewis is getting out timbers for a new barn, which he proposes to erect soon.

Mr. Joel Norton has removed to his old home, in the upper part of the town, near the main road.

Miss Violet Seaward, daughter of Capt. Richard H. Seaward, is spending a few days at Boon island.

Miss Bertha Paul is visiting her aunt in Haverelli, Mass.

The Freewill Baptist people observed Whitsunday by appropriate afternoon services, and a concert in the evening. The choir was composed of children, and a young girl officiated as organist. The altar was tastefully decorated with flowers.

Rev. Henry S. Ives was slightly indisposed on Sunday, and Rev. O. H. Holmes, who is settled with the Congregational church, filled the pulpit at the chapel. Mr. Holmes' hair is whitened with the snows of eighty years, but he still preaches the gospel with vigor.

AUNT MOLLY.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, June 6th.

Memorial day was celebrated in Hampton with patriotic interest, the town treasury furnishing the "quid pro quo."

Rev. Mr. Smith of Sharon, Mass., is preaching for a few Sabbaths at the Congregational church. Some of the society wish the arrangement with him continued longer—perhaps permanently. "Now-a-days" there seem to be parochial difficulties in many churches, from a liberal estimate of their own position, socially and ethically, if not æsthetically, in the cities, villages, country, and on the prairies alike,—all think they ought to get big preachers, on little salaries.

W. L. Drake, Esq., has obtained a patent for a folding-frame bed-clothes supporter. It promises popular use and usefulness. Mrs. Drake kindly showed us an elegant miniature bed, combining the simplicity and perfection of the invention.

Our hotels and boarding houses are "shining up" for summer immigration, and putting up the "bars" and fences at the watering places. Many of the former guests have re-engaged rooms at De Lancey place.

One of our local matrons made complaint of connubial abuse, and had her liege lord arrested and imprisoned in Exeter jail, but declined to appear against him with the main point in law (good evidence,) so he was discharged, and has returned to the "felicity" of his matrimonial home! **.

The Biddeford Journal says: "The action of the Maine Central road in putting up its freight rates when the interstate commerce act went into effect is proving a serious blunder for the road. Almost the entire local freight business is now transacted by water. The statement that the road was obliged to increase its rates under the new law is being disproved by the facts. It is alleged that Manager Tucker has been in Bangor recently, and said to the business men that his road would soon restore the old rates to that city, which is a tacit acknowledgement that the raise in rates was uncalled for. The interstate commerce law was never intended to increase the people's burdens, but to lessen them."

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease has its seat in the blood, and any remedy to be successful must deal with the obstructive acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

MARITIME NOTES.

The fishing schooner Mary E. Smith, Capt. Short, carried away a topmast on Sunday afternoon while working into the lower harbor, and came up to town Monday to repair damages.

The large fleet of coasting vessels gathered in the lower harbor for shelter during the recent long spell of unfavorable weather, nearly all put to sea on the 6th inst.

The cutter Thistle won the forty-four mile race at Dover, Eng., on the 6th inst., leading the Genesta, which finished second, by eleven minutes. The Thistle won by five minutes, on time allowance; and the Genesta beat the Irex a half minute, counting the time allowance.

"MAKE THE PARK LARGER."

Will the Chronicle object to reprinting an article which appeared in its issue of Feb. 8th, entitled "Make the Park Larger," ostensibly written by one of the boys of the past, who remembers vividly the old "slides" on Mason's hill?

Like Mr. C. C. Melcher—in reference to the monument—many of the sons, at this season returning home, may desire to help carry out the suggestions in this article, provided the lots mentioned can be purchased; and now is the time. Few cities as large as Portsmonth are without a park; and the ground now fixed upon would be made far more attractive by a little variation from its dead level, and the pleasant sunset view from the high point in the vicinity. NATIVE.

Editors of Chronicle: As it seems to have been decided that the ground for the monument is to be a "public park," the selection could not have been better, particularly as it is accessible from both streets. It commemorates the character of one of our best and most liberal citizens; and the munificence of the Eldredge family, with the mayoralty of the present excellent incumbent, will be fitly and permanently associated with the place. We would congratulate all parties, especially the present owners of the land, as they will not only secure a beautiful prospect from their windows, but an increased value to their own homestead.

And now, while the subject is warm and glowing in the patriotic hearts of the citizens, another suggestion occurs to us: As this ground is a gift to the city, is there not money enough, and interest enough in the community, to make it more extensive and more beautiful, by the purchase of the two adjoining lots on the eastern side. This would include the whole slope toward the west, and make, by its undulations, a much-needed variety to the perfect level of the present location. It would be none too large to compete with the parks of neighboring cities, and every improvement would "tell," on this elevation which slopes on every side. On the highest point a pretty kiosk, or some other tasteful little structure, might be erected, adding much to the beauty of the surroundings; while winding gravel-walks would add to the apparent extent of the park.

Many of the sons of Portsmouth, who come in the summer to their well-remembered and beloved New England home, would, we doubt not, be glad to aid in purchasing the spot so near their old "coasting-ground" on Mason's hill, where they—as well as the writer—will remember the red noses, the fur caps, the blue and red mittens of those early days; with the grand and lofty tumblings, connected with them.

Portsmouth is now emphatically a Summer Resort, and a Public Park has became a public necessity. Many a pilgrim from the hot cities will enjoy the cool and delightful retreat that is to be, and on the ground associated in the minds of many of them—especially the "coasters," with the happiest memories of free and frolicking boyhood.

ONE OF THOSE WHO REMEMBER.

PERSONAL.

Officer Ozro J. Hobbs, captain of the night watch, on Monday went on his annual ten days vacation.

Rev. Charles D. Hainer, pastor of the Court street Christian church, went to Moultonboro' on Monday, in hope that the change of air will benefit his health. He was accompanied on the trip by two of his brothers, Rev. W. J. Vance Hainer of Lubec, Me., and Rev. L. W. Hainer of New Jersey; also by Rev. Lewis W. Phillips of Rye.

Rev. Alfred Elwyn and family, of Philadelphia, will arrive at their summer residence on Lafayette road on the 8th inst.

Mr. J. Willard Titcomb of York died on Sunday morning at 5:45 o'clock, after an illness of about ten months, during which he has been a great sufferer. He was in the 25th year of his age, and leaves a wife, and one child aged two and one-half years.

John G. Loud of Greenland has contributed one dollar toward the soldiers' and sailors' monument.

In the supreme judicial court of Maine for York county, at Alfred last week, one of the cases tried was Goodwin vs Goodwin, a dispute as to the ownership of a piece of land in York. In this case there was no issue of fact for a jury to pass upon, so the matter was heard by the court. Thomas Goodwin, by his warranty deed of January, 1831, conveyed to Elizabeth Goodwin of York a tract of land, the deed not being recorded till July 14th, 1884. In 1884, said Thomas Goodwin conveyed by his quitclaim deed the same tract of land, and this latter deed was recorded April 29th, 1884, nearly three months prior to the record of the warranty deed. The point in contest was to see which deed would hold. The judge held that the fact that the quitclaim deed was recorded first did not carry any weight, for at the time the quitclaim deed was given the devisor had no right, title or interest in the property.

Wholesale Lynching.

It is now announced that William Killam, father-in-law of the two Davis boys who were last week hung by a mob at Eckert, Ind., for criminally assaulting Miss Flannagan, twelve years old, under most atrocious circumstances, was also hanged by the same mob; also that a younger brother of the Davises was dragged from home by the mob and has not been seen since, and was probably lynched, making (with Enlow, the cousin of the Davis boys) five victims of the lynchers in all.

"Wide Awake," one of the best of young folks' periodicals all the world over, begins its 25th volume and celebrates June with a number of singular richness and promise. Charles Egbert Craddock (Miss Murfree) begins her second young folks' serial, "Story of Keedon Bluffs." Mary Hartwell Catherwood begins the first instalment of "Secrets at Roseladies." Lizzie W. Champney begins an Indian story, "Lost Medicine of the Utes." Harriet Prescott Spofford gives a poem, "A Splendid Fire," and "The Little Maid of Chamouni." Edwin Lasseter Bynner writes a scare-story on a runaway railroad train, and Grace Denio Litchfield tells how the earthquake shook Mentone last winter. Selden R. Hopkins takes "A Young Prince of Commerce" into what goes on inside the railings in banks. "Ways to Do Things, chapter fifty-six, For the Summer Cottage" by Susan Power, is worth reading by those who have to furnish cottages. C. F. Holder tells of sentinel birds that watch over animals. J. M. Parsons tells a grandmother story of how she began her fortune in Denver by blanketing cabbages to keep off grasshoppers. And that isn't all. We haven't mentioned the pictures which add a great deal to the pleasure of reading. Such treasure of civilization without any mixture of barbarous stuff is not to be found in any other way we know of, except in wisely chosen books, and then is only got by systematic reading. "Wide Awake" for June can be got by sending twenty cents to D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Subscription, $2.40 a year. A sample copy sent for five cents.

Will positively cure sick headache and prevent its return. Carter's Little Liver Pills. This is not talk, but truth. One Pill a dose. See advertisement. Small pill. Small dose. Small price.

Cornelius Putman of Nashua, who disappeared two weeks ago, returned home June 4th. He says he has been wandering in Connecticut, but cannot remember anything clearly.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

It is claimed by the Panama canal promoters that all the money needed to insure the completion of the big ditch has been assured, and the work will now be driven to its completion.

Every nervous person should try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. They are made specially for nervous and dyspeptic men and women, and are just the medicine needed by all persons who, from any cause, do not sleep well, or who fail to get proper strength from their food. Cases of weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous and sick headache, etc., readily yield to the use of the Little Nerve Pills, particularly if combined with Carter's Little Liver Pills. In vials at 25 cents.

Secretary Whitney has taken a cottage at Bar Harbor.

The soldiers' monument, at Guilford, Conn., was formally unveiled last week.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

True Estimate of Value.

Remember when we assert the value of Brandreth's Pills we at the same time refer you to the thousands of testimonials we have published supporting all and even more than we claim. We never heard complaint of them. They are harmless, being vegetable, and always do their work well.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

Listen to Your Wife.

The Manchester GUARDIAN, June 8th, 1883, says: At one of the "Windows"

Looking on the woodland ways! With clumps of rhododendrons and great masses of May blossoms ! ! ! "There was an interesting group.

It included one who had been a "Cotton spinner," ! at was now so

Paralyzed ! ! !

That he could only bear to lie in a reclining position.

This refers to my case.

I was first attacked twelve years ago with "Locomoter Ataxy"

(A paralytic disease of nerve fibre rarely ever cured)

and was for several years barely able to get about.

And for the last five years not able to attend to my business, although

Many things have been done for me.

The last experiment being Nerve stretching.

Two years ago I was voted into the Home for Incurables! Near Manchester, in May, 1882.

I am no "advocate;" "For anything in the shape of patent "Medicines!

And made many objections to my dear wife's constant urging to try Hop Bitters, but finally to pacify her—

Consented ! !

I had not quite finished the first bottle when I felt a change come over me. This was Saturday, November 3d. On Sunday morning I felt so strong I said to tuy room companions, "I was sure I could "Walk!

So started across the floor and back.

I hardly knew how to contain myself. I was all over the house. I am gaining strength each day, and can walk quite safe without any

"Stick!"

Or support.

I am now at my own house, and hope soon to be able to earn my own living again. I have been a member of the Manchester

"Royal Exchange"

For nearly thirty years, and was most heartily congratulated on going on the room on Thursday last. Very gratefully yours,

JOHN BLACKBURN.

MANCHESTER, (Eng.) Dec. 24, 1883.
Two years later am perfectly well.

One Experience of Many.

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble!" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!

My trouble always came after eating any food—

However light,
And digestible,

For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most

Excruciating pains,

"And the only way I ever got"

"Relief!"

Was by throwing up all my stomach contained ! ! No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until

"At last?"

I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and

Could eat nothing ! ! !

My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain.

Their efforts were no good to me.

At last I heard a good deal

"About your Hop Bitters!

And determined to try them."

Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of

One ! ! ! !

Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a

"Sick!"

Hour, from the same cause, since.

I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such

"Advocate as I am."

The Dreaded Greek Fire.

The great use made of Greek fire in the middle ages, so graphically described by Gibbon, shows an intimate knowledge of one of the objects to which crude petroleum could be applied. This compound, says Murray's Magazine, enabled the Greeks of the eastern empire to hold their own against the Saracens for some hundreds of years, and during two sieges of Constantinople gave the victory to the Christians over their Moslem enemies.

The terror and devastation caused by the Greek fire seems to have been almost as great as that caused by artillery. It was blown through long copper tubes, which were fixed in the fore part of the imperial gallies or on the walls of the Greek towns. Sometimes at the moment of the attack on the besieged place great cauldrons containing the seething mixture were tilted on the walls and the contents poured upon the assailants with terrible effect. It could be projected through a considerable space, and has been described as rushing through the air like a winged dragon, with the report of thunder and the velocity of lightning. It was launched also in red-hot balls of iron, which fell within the walls of a besieged city.

It can be understood what alarm such a combustible would cause, especially when thrown upon and among ignorant and half-naked opponents, on whom the noise and flame would have a terrifying effect. Even in modern battles the results obtained by artillery fire, especially the fire of shells, is out of all proportion to the number of men killed. Later when the secret of the Greek fire had become known to the Saracens, and it had been adopted by them, its effects were equally dreaded by the Crusaders. The fact that it could not be extinguished by water added to the terror caused by the noise, smoke, and flame. The secret of its composition was carefully guarded by the Greeks, and retained for their exclusive use for about four hundred years. Fables were invented to hide from other nations so valuable an adjunct to the art of war, and the barbarians were informed that it had been revealed by an angel to Constantine the Great, and that to communicate the secret of its composition would provoke the vengeance of the God of the Christians. After the invention of gunpowder it was no longer of much value. I have a formula for the making of Greek fire, and in it petroleum is one of the chief ingredients.

Women in Sleeping-Cars.

It is amusing to watch some women get ready for bed on a sleeping-car, or it would be if we could penetrate the curtain's screen. They unbutton their shoes, unhook their dress, and unfasten petticoats and corsets. Then, armed with a big fan, they lie down outside the cover and worry through a miserable, sleepless night. In the morning they refasten their garments, "slick up" tumbled locks, and look as hot, feverish, and uncomfortable as they feel. To undress decently and comfortably and go to bed is the best plan. At least remove corset, shoes, stockings, and dress. Roll or remove clothing into a neat, compact bundle, put trinkets or articles easily forgotten or mispiaced into your shoe. A woman dressing in a hurry may forget her watch or pocket-book, but she was never known to forget her shoe. Have a pretty colored wrapper made with yoked front, Watteau back, and a ribbon belt, to sleep in, then in the morning you can slip on your shoes, take your elephant and bundle of clothes and go the entire length of the car to the dressing-room in pleasing contrast to the lady who prepared for the night by merely unfastening her dress.—New Orleans Picayune.

Newspapers for Wall-Paper.

In his autobiographical sketch in the Youth's Companion, Mr. W. D. Howells, writing of the family's pioneer life in Ohio, says: "Perhaps it was my father's love of literature which inspired him to choose newspapers for wall paper; at any rate he did so, and the effect, as I remember it, was not without its decorative qualities. He had used a barrel of papers, bought at the nearest post-office, where they had been refused by the persons to whom they had been experimentally sent by the publisher, and the whole first page was taken up by a story, which broke off in the middle of a sentence at the foot of the last column, and tantalized us forever with fruitless conjectures as to the fate of the hero and heroine. I really suppose that a cheap wall paper could have been got for the same money, though it might not have seemed so economical. I am not sure that the use of the newspapers was not a tributary reminiscence of my father's pioneer life; I cannot remember that it excited any comment in the neighbors, who were frank in their opinions of everything else we did. But it does not greatly matter."

In London, recently, a workingman asked Mr. Saunders' advice as to how he could recover 50 cents to which he was entitled. He had a dispute with a man as to whether a bird was a cock or a hen. The argument ended in a bet of 50 cents as to the sex of the bird. It was afterward settled the applicant had won, and the man now refused to pay the money which he had lost. Mr. Saunders told the applicant that the only way to recover his money was through the county court.

VITIATED BLOOD

Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

SCROFULOUS ULCERS.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on oath says: "In 1870 Scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

Sworn to before U. S. Com. J. D. CRAWFORD.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of Scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. The Soap has the "cut" here as a medicinal soap.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange notions! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It has terrible diseases, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Last Friday the dead body of a man about forty-five years old was found in Powow creek in the town of Newton, on the Boston & Maine road. The body had on a checked suit and new bosomed shirt, and had a soft felt hat and No. 16 collar in one pocket, besides several dollars in money. A ticket on the Boston & Maine road from Amesbury to Lowell was also found in one pocket, and a card, the writing on which appeared to be "John Monagha, 15 Briggs street." The body was much decomposed, and the features were unrecognizable.

Senator Blair's Views.

United States Senator Blair is reported in a Sunday paper as saying that he is standing entirely aloof in the senatorial contest at Concord, not especially caring who wins, as all the republican candidates are good men, and his personal friends. "The indications," he is reported as saying, "at present are that Chandler will be elected, but I don't wish to be understood as taking sides or having a preference for one candidate more than another." He argues strongly that two senators should be elected at the present session of the legislature, and suggests that the democratic advocacy of the postponement of the election of one senator is grounded on the hope that the next legislature may posibly be democratic—of which, however, he has not the slightest fear.

Frightful Loss of Life.

It is now proved beyond hope that the East Indian steamer Sir John Lawrence was lost in the recent cyclone. She had 730 passengers, mostly Hindoo ladies of high caste and of the best native families. There were 150 persons in the crew.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Chilion, ashore at Rye beach, was floated off her blocking by a very high tide on Monday night, parted her lines, and grounded again about 150 feet to the eastward of where she first went ashore. Anchors were laid out on Tuesday, and it was hoped to haul her afloat on the top of high water Tuesday night.

The steamer Mystic goes on the marine railway at Kittery to-day, to have a new shoe put on and her bottom painted. The steamer James Sampson, Capt. Duncan, will run the Mystic's trips in addition to her own until the latter comes off the ways, which she will probably do on Monday.

Capt. Symonds with a large gang of men commenced dredging in the lower Cocheco river on the 6th inst., and will continue about three months before the present contract is completed. S. F. Burroughs, a surveyor in government employ, assisted by Mr. Jenkins, a civil engineer of Dover, is engaged in surveying the Piscataqua river near Little bay, preliminary to an attempt to get an appropriation from Congress for the improvement of the river at that point.

At Pigeon Cove, Cape Ann, June 5th, George Frost, a fisherman about fifty years old, went out in a dory to set trawls, and did not return. His dory was picked up adrift by a fishing schooner, and taken into Boston.

A salmon four feet three inches long, and weighing fifty-three pounds, was taken in Bay Chaleur on the 2d inst. It is believed to be the largest salmon ever caught.

Jones, presiding elder of the Portland district, preached an able and instructive sermon from the 4th chapter of the 1st epistle of Paul to Timothy, 8th verse, in the 1st Methodist church, North Kittery, on Sunday evening last, before a good sized congregation. A liberal contribution was taken. The business meeting of the societies was held in the vestry of the 2d Methodist church on Monday evening, the 6th inst.

Mr. George A. Lambert arrived home on Saturday, the 4th inst., from Pasadena, Cal., where he has been engaged the past winter in the Raymond hotel. Mr. Lambert is much pleased with the winter climate of California, and thinks it much preferable to that of Bermuda, where he has passed several winters. He goes to Boston this week on businss.

Mr. John Steele is employed as engineer of the hoisting engine that is doing the work at the new overhead bridge of the York Harbor & Beach railroad in Rice's hollow.

Probably nearly every member of Parker Post, G. A. R., is capable of commanding a firing squad. Comrade Isaac H. M. Gray was detailed by Comdr. At no place along the seashore in Rye are the people more actively engaged in improving and making ready for summer boarders than at Foss' beach and Concord point, the successful season of last year encouraging them to increase their facilities for boarding. A large addition has been made to the Ocean Wave house, furnishing room for an amusement and billiard hall, with smaller rooms above. Mr. Knox, proprietor of the Ocean Wave, has by giving his personal attention to the business succeeded in making his house a popular resort for those who wish to spend the summer months at the seashore. At this beach there is an increasing demand for cottages to rent. Mr. T. J. Parsons is fitting up a nice cottage for which he has had numerous applications. Mr. Cate has moved his house nearer the shore, and enlarged and in other ways improved it. Mr. Daniel M. Foss, whose house is located on one of the finest sites along the beach, has been painting and improving his buildings and beautifying his grounds. Mr. Adams E. Drake is building a large stable, with carriage house attached, to accommodate his largely increasing business. This beach being so easily reached from Portsmouth, it has been selected by a number of her business men as a summer home.

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease is in the blood, and any remedy to be effectual must deal with the impurities and acrid poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

WARDEN, JONES & Co., Druggists.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

Having suffered for some time from rheumatic difficulty I was induced to try a bottle of Athlophoros, and am happy to recommend the same as a sure relief for rheumatism. ARTHUR B. SMITH.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' REPORT.

The 17th annual report of the Rockingham county commissioners is printed, and the correctness of the figures being vouched for by County Commissioner-elect Frank Magraw, they are of course to be presumed to be all right.

The appropriated sum was $80,000 for expenses; the expenditures, $83,403.62. This excess was due to the cost of the new wing to the insane asylum at the county farm—a very proper outlay, by the way. The funded debt in 1877 was $109,100, and this, with the exception of $20,000 due in 1891, has been paid. The ordinary expenditures have been much less the past year than previously, which reduces the weekly cost of supplying the inmates at Brentwood.

The various reports of the retiring county officials beam with mutual compliments, and are cheerful considering the coming change. The solicitor acknowledges that he could not have attained any success except by the aid of the sheriff and his efficient deputies. We hope that Edward will be able to have as good an endorsement from the new solicitor. The commissioners recommend appropriations of $55,000 for the next two years, of which $12,000 will be for interest, against the sum of $1995 paid, as by this report.

There was expended for the county farm, and support of paupers, etc., $18,219.35; paupers off the farm cost $15,293.06; and $1010 for insane paupers at Concord asylum. $21,500 of bonded indebtedness was paid.

The county may be congratulated upon the diminution of the debt. The outgoing commissioners turn over the administration of the affairs of the county in good condition.

Personal property on hand at the farm May 1, 1887, was	$18,216.27
Expenditures	18,219.35
Interest on valuation	3,000.00

Receipts from Superintendent and Treasurer	2,053 44
Board of workmen in asylum	801.50

Balance	$19,463.27

With an average of 189 inmates, the commissioners figure the cost of supporting prisoners and paupers at $1.98 per week, each.

ASSESSED VALUATION OF PORTSMOUTH.

THE MIKADO.

All persons intending to witness the presentation of the Mikado at Music hall next week by local talent had better secure seats at once. The sale of tickets commenced at Goodrich's on Saturday, and before noon on Monday over $225 had been taken for the first evening's entertainment alone. New scenery is being painted expressly for this presentation of the popular comic opera, and competent critics who have witnessed the rehearsals say the excellence of the performance, both musically and dramatically, will be an agreeable surprise to all who attend, however high their expectations may be pitched.

THE LAW TERM.

The Supreme court law term met at Concord on Tuesday. All the judges were in line except the chief justice, who was confined to his room at his hotel by illness.

Sheriff-elect Coffin was in court, and occupying a seat near Sheriff Norton. The bond of the sheriff of Rockingham was filed with the clerk of the court. The term of the new official begins July first, after which date he will of course be known as "Colonel" Coffin, while correspondents in addressing official communications will be careful to use the prefix "Hon." Edward's snow white moustache received nearly as much attentive admiration as does Gen. Banks' when he attends the federal courts in Boston.

BASE BALL.

A good game of base ball was played at the Plains on Tuesday afternoon, 7th inst., between the "Freshmen" and "Varsity" nines of the High school, the Freshmen winning, twenty-five to twenty-one. The pitching and catching of Hector and Smith, of the Freshmen, was excellent, and the nine talk of challenging the Dover High school club.

The only National League games played on the 6th were between the Boston and Washington clubs at Washington, and the Philadelphia and New York clubs at Philadelphia, both resulting in ties, the score at Washington being 7 to 7, and at Philadelphia 6 to 6.

National League games, June 7th: Philadelphia 15, New York 14; Detroit 6, Pittsburg 1; Indianapolis 5, Chicago 3. At Washington, rain.

The Woman's Relief Corps of this city, auxiliary to the G. A. R., has been disbanded by the president of the New Hampshire organization on account of same alleged irregularity. There is much feeling in consequence of this action, among the Grand Army men and their wives.

The flags on the custom house and at the navy yard were displayed at half mast on Tuesday, June 9th, as a mark of respect to the late William A. Wheeler, ex-vice president of the United States, whose funeral took place that day.

Clark's female minstrels, which combination played to a moderate audience in Music hall not long ago, had considerable trouble in Nashua last week and the first of this week, in the shape of disputes over claims of outsiders for bills, and claims of members of the company for salaries due and unpaid.

In the legislature on the 7th inst. the standing and joint standing committees were announced. In the house, Gilman Marston is chairman of the committee on judiciary; in the senate, Langdon of this city is chairman of the committee on insane asylum. McLane of Milford is chairman of the joint standing committee on insurance, of which Conn of this city is a member. Pike of Cornish is chairman, and Hodgdon of this city a member, of the committee on railroads.

Charles Moran, P. Hennessey, Wm. Sullivan, P. J. Donovan, John Foley, Timothy Cronin and Wm. Thompson left this city on Tuesday for Williamsburg, N. Y., under engagement to work during the season at a summer hotel there.

Councilman Michael J. Griffin has been called to the navy yard, but only in a private capacity. He has been employed in renovating the national cemetery there, and has nearly completed his work.

ELIOT ITEMS.

SOUTH ELIOT, ME., June 7th.

Mr. John Tobey, employed by Mr. F. J. Paul, was on Wednesday last driving the blind horse belonging to Mr. Paul from Herbert Spinney's blacksmith shop down the lane leading to the foreroad, when by accident he dropped one of the reins, and the horse falling to pay due attention to the driver's earnestly-expressed verbal advice about stopping or keeping in the middle of the road, the consequence was that John was soon seen to sail gracefully over the stone wall into Daniel P. Spinney's field, while the wagon and its contents were capsized. The wagon was soon righted and its cargo restowed, and John, after brushing the soil from the crown of his hat and the knees of his trowsers, possessed himself of both reins and went on his way singing like a nightingale—for everybody knows that John is very musical.

The Golden Cross commandery will give an entertainment in Brooks hall on Friday evening, the 10th; vocal and instrumental music, a farce, and refreshments.

Mr. George Fernald has recently moved into the house owned by Levi M. Brooks.

Simeon Emery is having a large new barn erected.

Mr. E. K. Goodwin has the coach and pleasure carriages belonging to Mr. Charles A. Grant, of the Sea Cottage, York beach, to paint before July 1st.

Mr. Everett J. Paul has during the past week gained considerable strength, and seemed much brighter than previously.

Mrs. Francis Clark is slowly recovering from a dangerous attack of pneumonia.

Our postmaster, Mr. Nowell, who has been confined to his house for some ten days or two weeks past by a carbuncle, is reported as convalescent. HARRY.

Doubts are expressed by able lawyers whether the appointment of the board of interstate commissioners, and consequently their acts under it, are legal. There is no doubt that the enactment causes more annoyance than benefit, and that as soon as Congress meets it will be materially modified.

Rt. Rev. Woodruff W. Niles, Episcopal bishop of the diocese of New Hampshire, and wife, were given a reception on Monday, June 6th, at their home in Concord, by the Episcopal parish of that city, on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of their wedding, invitations being extended to their friends throughout the state. A purse of $1200 was presented.

The ladies of the Christian society of Rye are to give a strawberry supper and entertainment at the town hall on Thursday evening, the 16th inst.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. A Story of Raymond.

One day in Chicago the comedian chanced to pass a new, large, and very pretentious hardware store, and among the clerks noticed a very green-looking youth, apparently just from the prairie. Intent on fun at any one's expense save his own, Raymond entered the establishment, and, taking the youth aside, asked him in his dry, serious way if he had for sale a copy of "Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress." The astonished clerk gasped. "'Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress! I—a—you're sure you're in the right store?" glancing wildly at the hammers, saws, and metallic implements around him.

"Yes," says Raymond, "I was directed here. I want the edition of 1704, with the original plates by Hogarth."

"Why this is a hardware store," replied the astounded youth.

"I don't care for the price," remarked the comedian; "get me the books quickly."

"I—I'll go and see the proprietor. I—I hardly understand?" With this the juvenile hardwareman hurries to the back office, and in a minute the proprietor comes to Mr. Raymond and asks him what he wants.

"I want some No. 6 augers; but your clerk hardly seems to understand me," innocently says John T. R.

"No. 6 augers, certainly," replies the proprietor, and he shouts in a savage voice to the clerk modestly standing in the background: "Get what this gentleman wishes at once!" and goes back to his ledger, angry at being interrupted for No. 6 augers.

In a dazed way the youth approaches the comedian.

"Well, why don't you get that 'Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress?" says Raymond; "didn't you hear what your boss said?"

"Yes—but I—I think the boss must be drunk. This isn't a book store."

"But your master says to get it. The edition of 1704—Hogarth's plates. I'm here for that book, and I mean to have it!"

"I'll—I'll go and ask him again. Perhaps he wants me to send out for the cursed book," gasps the clerk, and disappears once more into the private office.

After a moment the proprietor comes out and is about to speak, but Raymond suggests:

"Isn't he getting them yet? If you have no No. 6 augers I'll try another store."

"We've all the No. 6 augers in the country!" cries the hardwareman, with Chicago business modesty. "That boy must be out of his head!"

"Yes, he does seem a little queer," replies Raymond.

"Curse him, he's drunk!" says the proprietor, and he yells at the clerk: "If you don't fill this gentleman's order in thirty seconds I'll discharge you!" and bolts into his private office.

The country clerk is now in appearance a jibbering idiot, as the comedian mildly remarks to him: "You'd better do what your boss tells you, sonny, and get me that 'Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.'"

"This is the devil!" gasps the victim, the perspiration standing on his forehead. "The boss must be crazy. He can't have heard you—I'll——"

Here the proprietor pokes his head out of the private office, and ejaculates, in a voice of thunder, "What are you gaping there for, you drunken fool. Get that gentleman the No. 6 augers he wants, or I'll bore a hole in your salary;"

"No. 6 augers! Why, you asked me for 'Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.' I'll wipe the floor up with you," yells the clerk, turning upon Raymond, but that genial comedian is already upon the sidewalk and waving and bowing a polite and hurried adieu from the other side of the large glass front-door.—New York Tribune.

She Was Ready for Him.

It is an error as old as poverty to suppose that the rich are happy. Last Monday evening, for instance, Miss Goldlace, the beautiful and talented daughter of Colonel Silverbrick Goldlace, the millionaire, was sitting in the drawing-room of her father's Nob hill mansion, reading Mr. Royce's "Feud of Oakfield Creek." But this was not all. A liveried servant entered with his embossed silver tray and bowed six times. Miss Goldlace ignored the menial, but picked the card from the salver. She blushed vividly, started up, glanced around in a rattled way, and then began pulling bell ropes like the pilot of a steamboat.

Servants trooped in.

"James," she cried to one, "turn that picture of Andromeda to the wall. Jennie," to another, "turn that 'Alone at Last' quick. William," to a third, "throw something over that statuette of Venus, and push the 'Greek Slave' behind the curtain. There, that will do."

Then she sat down on an olive plush lounge and composed her countenance. "Show him in," she said in her queenly fashion to the liveried menial. And he came in.

It was Mr. Bennett, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, who staid and spent the evening.—San Francisco Post.

Miss Helene de Rothschild, only daughter of the late Baron Solomon de Rothschild of Paris, will soon marry Captain Van Smesseir, a young officer of the Belgian army. Mlle. Helene will ultimately possess about $30,000,000, and has already purchased the splendid mansion of the late Baron Lucien Hirsch, near the Champs Elysees, as the future residence for herself and her husband.

In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

The Favorites Beaten.

The races of the Atlantic yacht club at New York on the 7th inst. were faithful in surprises. The sloop Atlantic, the "rule o' thumb" boat, beat everything in her class, leading the Priscilla nearly seventeen minutes at the end, and beating the Galatea by twenty-four minutes. The Shamrock, a new second-class sloop, beat the Gracie and Stranger, hitherto the champions in their class, and also the new steel sloop Titania, designed by Mr. Burgess of Boston; and not only that, but she beat the Priscilla five minutes and a half and the Galatea nearly eleven minutes, actual sailing time, and would have beaten the Atlantic nearly ten minutes on time allowance had they sailed in the same class.

Profit-Sharing.

The great soap manufacturing firm of Procter & Gamble, of Cincinnati, have entered into an agreement with their employes by which the latter are to share in the profits of the business in addition to their wages. This action was voluntary on the part of the firm and without solicitation on the part of the employes. The Evening Post of that city refers to the new departure as follows:

The firm of Procter & Gamble, their employes, the city of Cincinnati and the toilers of the whole world are to be congratulated upon the inauguration by the firm above mentioned of a practicable and mutually beneficial scheme of profit-sharing, which includes all the small army of employes of this great soap-making firm.

Procter & Gamble are to be congratulated because they have bound their employes to their interests; * * and because every lover of his race, as he uses a cake of Ivory Soap, will give an approving thought to the firm which has joined hands with its employes in the profit of its production.

The employes are to be congratulated, because, with no responsibility for the losses of the enterprise and no capital at stake, they will first surely get their wages, and will thereafter get a suitable share in the profits of the undertaking.

The city of Cincinnati is to be congratulated, because it is to have an opportunity to witness the practical operation and results of profit-sharing on a very large scale; * * and the toilers of the whole world are to be congratulated because this example shows that the old heathen doctrine of "let alone" is being demolished, and that an era of mutuality and fair-dealing is at hand. It is better to share profits as we go along than to hoard them till we die, and then bequeath them to the public; and infinitely better than to transmit them uncarned to our family descendants.

It is called from London that "the queen is anxious to hear Dr. Phillips Brooks, and it is possible he may be commanded to preach in the private chapel of Windsor chapel, or at Whippingham church, after the queen arrives at Osborne." Who in the world can this woman be, who is to "command" an American citizen to preach?

Over 1,000,000 Copies Sold.

BOSTON, June 8.—It is universally conceded that Rev. E. P. Roe is the most popular American novelist. Over 1,000,000 copies of his books have been sold. He has just completed a new and thrilling war story, which is his best work. It will be begun in the Boston Sunday Globe next Sunday, June 12. It is entitled "The Earth Trembled," and treats of the Charleston earthquake as well as the war.

Prof. E. F. Clark, superintendent of schools at Henderson, Ky., was shot three times by Prof. Thomas Posey, principal of the high school there, in the school room June 7th. Posey evidently means to teach the Kentucky young idea how to shoot in good style.

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of gratuitous testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease is in the blood, and any remedy to cure must act through the blood, with the destructive acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It renders the liver and kidneys cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

WARNER, JONES & CO., Druggists.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

Having suffered for some time from rheumatic difficulty I was induced to try a bottle of Athlophoros, and am happy to recommend the same as a sure relief for rheumatism. ARTHUR B. SMITH.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

The publication of the full list of committees of the New Hampshire senate and house of representatives shows that in the senate Dr. Langdon of this city, senator from the Portsmouth district, (composed of wards one, two and four,) is on the committees on revision of laws, on banks, on education, and on asylum for insane (chairman of latter committee.) Jenness of Rye, senator from the Newmarket district, is a member of the committees on revision of laws, on claims, and on towns and parishes.

In the house Representatives French of this city and Randall of Newcastle are on the committee on asylum for insane; Philbrick of Hampton and Hazel of this city, on banks; Hodgdon of this city, on elections; Sheehan of this city, on claims; Shea of Greenland, on education; Leavitt of Stratham, on military affairs; Lamprey of North Hampton, on military accounts; Tuttle of Newmarket, on mileage; Brown of Hampton Falls and Hodgdon of this city, on railroads; Philbrick of Hampton and Conn of this city, on insurance; Coleman of Newington, on normal school; Beal of South Newmarket, on unfinished business; Morrissey of this city, on towns and parishes; Savage of Newmarket and Cronin of this city, on retrenchment and reform; Jenness of Rye, on revision of statutes. Mr. Hodgdon of this city was appointed one of a committee of five to adopt a code of rules for the government of the house, and as a member of a committee to act with a senate committee in adopting joint rules for the government of both branches of the legislature.

In the house, on the 7th inst., Mr. Hodgdon of this city gave notice of a bill to amend an act entitled "an act to incorporate certain persons by the name of the Portsmouth academy," and of a bill in relation to seine fishing in the Piscataqua river and its tributaries.

THE OCEANIC.

The Oceanic hotel at Star island, Isles of Shoals, since last season has had the office enlarged and rearranged, and other improvements made in anticipation of a rushing business this year—which anticipation is likely to be realized, from present indications, the number of applications for rooms being unprecedented, a number of parties having desired accommodations on the 1st of June. The staff of the Oceanic this season will include the following: J. T. Cunningham of Portsmouth, (Dartmouth, '87,) room clerk; Edward E. Shapleigh of Kittery, bookkeeper; T. L. Cleaves of the Parker house, Boston, steward—his third season at the Oceanic in that capacity; Mrs. Mary J. Williams of Portsmouth, housekeeper, with Miss Millie H. Williams as assistant. The steamer Oceanic will not only make four round trips a day between the islands and this city, instead of two trips as in previous years, thus giving opportunity to spend a long day at the Oceanic instead of only about three hours as heretofore, but on Mondays and Thursdays, which will be known as "excursion days," will carry passengers at half rates, namely, fifty cents for the round trip.

MARITIME NOTES.

Among the arrivals at this port the first part of this week were the schooner Ida, from Hoboken with a cargo of pig iron for the foundry at South Newmarket, the schooner C. Matthews, with coal to E. F. Sise & Co. and the sloop Samoset, from Boston to load bricks at one of the Dover point brickyards. The British schooner Alta, from St. John, N. B., with 500,000 cedar shingles, 100,000 laths and 30,000 feet of long lumber to John H. Broughton, and the J. P. Auger, from South Amboy with 277 tons coal to J. Albert Walker, arrived on the 7th; and the Emma L. Gregory, with 1000 bbls. Newark cement to John H. Broughton, and the Eva B. Douglass, from Newport News with 1727 tons coal to J. Albert Walker, were among the arrivals on the 8th. Also arrived on the 8th, schooner Mary Willey, Williams master, from Bangor to John H. Broughton, bringing timber for C. E. Boynton's new house on the corner of Lincoln and Miller avenues, for Charles E. Walker's new house on Cabot street, and for the new stable to be built on Chestnut street for Dr. Richter; also a quantity of roofing slate, shingles, clapboards and laths.

The steamer James Sampson on the 8th inst. towed from Bra' Boat harbor to York harbor the schooner Mystery, and from York harbor to Bra' Boat harbor a floating pile-driver to be used in the construction of the railroad bridge across the latter-named stream.

The schooner Chilion, ashore on Rye beach, was hauled about twice her length toward deep water on Tuesday night of this week, and it was expected that she would be floated off at high tide last night.

The steamer Achilles, bound from Philadelphia for Newburyport with 1027 tons of coal, went ashore on the southeast side of Block island at half-past nine o'clock on the night of the 7th inst., striking on rocky bottom, and sinking in ten minutes. The crew escaped. The wrecking tug of the Merritt company left New York for Block island on the 8th to assist the wrecked steamer, which was reported as being in a very dangerous position. The Achilles registered 571 tons net, and was built in 1870 for the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

Albert Hatch of Wells, boss tracklayer on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, on the 4th inst. with a large gang commenced to lay the iron on the Kittery end of the York railroad. All the side tracks at the Kittery depot have been taken up, and a switch put in about 100 feet to the eastward of the station.

The railroad fare from Portsmouth to Concord and return, for Thursday, June 16th, on the occasion of the dedication of the New Hampshire Odd Fellows' Orphan's Home, will be $1.70. Special trains will be arranged.

The directors of the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad Co. held a meeting in Boston on the 8th inst., and organized by choosing Walter Hunnewell president, F. R. Barrett of Portland clerk, and N. G. Chapin treasurer. The directors of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Railroad Co. organized on the same day at Boston, and elected Mr. Hunnewell president, N. G. Chapin treasurer, and Wallace Hackett of this city clerk.

Mr. A. Brackett Trefethen is putting in the foundation for the new Catholic school building at the corner of Austin and Winter streets.

Dr. E. B. Hammond of Nashua, the oldest practising physician in the city, died on the 7th inst., in the 72d year of his age. He was president of the York Harbor & Beach railroad at the time of his death.

Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury was in town on Wednesday, the 8th inst. He remained long enough to visit the paternal mansion, make a bet with Asa as to the hay crop, and enjoy a political reminiscence with his old friend Samuel Spinney, Esq., at the railroad station. The judge looks as fresh as the daisies which grow upon his acres in visiting which he derives so much pleasure.

Mr. Conn is expecting a carload of lard this week, direct from the west, which he will sell at the car at the lowest rates.

Mr. David J. French of Stratham, the aged farmer who was badly injured in the woods a week or two ago by a runaway yoke of oxen, died on the 7th inst. of lockjaw.

De Witt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templar, will attend divine service at Christ church on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock.

Eugene L. Blaisdell of Dover, assistant superintendet of the Metropolitan life insurance company of New York, was in town on Wednesday, June 8th, to adjust the claim for insurance of Emmanuel Charlesworth, who was drowned on Sunday, the 5th.

Prof. Moses G. Farmer is erecting a very large house on the Goodwin farm in Eliot, recently purchased by him. The frame is already up and boarded, and being situated on a high elevation, above the Bartlett place, commands an extended view and can be seen a long distance away. It is intended for a summer home for the Little Wanderers of the Baldwin Place Home, Boston.

John F. Haines of Biddeford, a widely known horse man, has been suspended for a year from the National Trotting Association, for entering horses under false names in races where they were not entitled to take part.

The Pepperell house at Kittery Point opened on Tuesday for the reception of visitors. Landlord Safford and the landlady, with the assistance of the gentlemanly clerk, Mr. Grace, know how to make things agreeable to their company. The steamer James Sampson furnishes easy conveyance to the hotel, and when the York railroad is finished there will be a station near by.

The Adventists are holding a grove meeting this week in East Eliot, near the residence of Mr. Jeremiah Goodwin; it will close on Sunday.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

The Revere House, Boston, has more parlors and more public rooms open to guests than any other hotel in Boston.

A year ago John Schimmel of Peoria, Ill., had eight children in his house. On the 7th inst. the funeral of the 7th child to die inside of the year took place, and the horse drawing the family ran away, throwing them all out, breaking the father's arm and dislocating his shoulder, and fatally injuring the last remaining child.

Another shocking revelation of the wholesale ruining of girls from ten to fourteen years old has been made in London. All the parties belong to the humbler ranks in life.

John Meehan, aged nine years, and William Klotaberger, aged eleven, have been held for murder in New York for killing a very old Italian by knocking him down on their way home from school.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; fur upon the tongue; indigestion, and sick headace consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious, to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

Mme. Jane Dieulafoy, who received the cross of the Legion of Honor last fall for the help she gave to her husband's explorations at Susa, tells the story of their efforts and discoveries in Harper's Magazine for June. It is as interesting as a romance.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when its perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, editor of the Magazine of American History, is a member of thirteen learned societies, a life-member of the American Historical society, and a fellow of the Clarendon Historical society of Edinburgh. She is said to be a very modest and unassuming little woman.

True Estimate of Value.

Remember when we assert the value of Brandreth's Pills we at the same time refer you to the thousands of testimonials we have published supporting all and even more than we claim. The best evidence of their value lies in these testimonials. The Pills have been in use in this country for over fifty years and in that time have surely been well tested. We never heard complaint of them. They are harmless, being vegetable, and always do their work well.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

SHIVERING IN THE SUNSHINE.

A Short Story by a Steamboat Pilot—Why He Closed the State-room Window.

About twelve years ago I was master and pilot of the steamboat Sarah Brown, that ran between Peekskill and New York, carrying freight. At Peekskill we lay up at a dock near which one of the main sewers from the village emptied into the river. The bad air and gas from this sewer was fearful. It was so foul that I often slept in my bunk on the boat with the door and windows tight shut rather than breathe it; and that, too, in hot weather. I used to notice that the water set over night in a basin or bowl to drink, would in the morning be covered with a sort of slimy coating, if the sewer air could get at it.

It was in this way I had my first attack of malaria. Before that I had never been really sick in my life, and I could stand any amount of work, and sleep like a healthy child. But as the malaria took hold of me my appetite began to fail and my good sleep went with it. Sometimes I could eat heartily enough, and then again nothing seemed to tempt me or to taste good. And as to sleeping, I would often toss and tumble in my bed nearly all night, then fall asleep about daylight, completely tired out. This irregular and broken fashion of eating, drinking and sleeping pretty soon brought on indigestion and symptoms of dyspepsia. In fact after a while it came to be what is called—and very properly I think—nervous dyspepsia and exhaustion.

At the very start, as soon as I told my physician how I felt, he began giving me quinine, and I often took sixteen grains a day. It didn't cure me and so far as I know quinine never does really cure malaria. But as neither the doctor nor anybody else could tell me of anything better I kept on taking it. Then I commenced having severe headaches, or brownaches, and felt fagged out and low spirited. With the idea that quinine might possibly help me if I only took larger doses, I increased the dose from four to ten grains at a time.

This kind of thing went on for six years—and six very long years they were to me. You may be sure of that. Of course my business involved almost constant exposure to the weather, which greatly increased the severity of the attacks. I have stood in the pilot house, steering, with my overcoat buttoned to the chin, shivering in the hot summer sun.

All this time I kept on taking quinine in large doses, and as I had become very weak my physician told me that the malarial poison was making my blood thin and poor—abstracting the very life from it. After a few months I began to feel the effects of the large quantity of quinine I had used to break up the malaria. First I was troubled with ringing and buzzing in the ears, I began to grow hard of hearing, my eyesight became weak, and from enjoying the use of a pair of eyes clear and strong as anybody ever had, I soon had to help my vision with a pair of glasses—while yet a young man. This I was informed on medical authority was what is called malarial iritis, or a loss of the coloring of the iris due to malarious infection. My eyes watered easily at night on attempting to use them, and seemed to lose the deep, clear color which was natural to them.

Bleeding from the nose was about this time a common thing with me—so much so that the doctor plugged up the nasal orifice to stop it.

On my return from the West, where I had gone in hopes that a change of scene and air might do me good, I first saw an advertisement of KASKINE in a New York daily paper. It was called "The New Quinine." "That meets my idea," I said. "Anything to take the place of the old quinine, for between that and the malaria I shall be completely used up before long."

So I began on Kaskine, taking about fifteen pellets at a time four times a day, and in a few days I felt much better. I slept better, food tasted more natural and I digested it, and got my strength back by degrees; and, briefly, in the course of a reasonable time it worked a perfect cure of the malaria with all its symptoms and evils—the headaches, debility, &c.

I should not fail to mention that on beginning Kaskine treatment I threw aside the quinine and depended on Kaskine alone.

A Big Consolidation Scheme.

Advices from Concord say it is reported there that a bill is in course of preparation which provides for the taking by the state of the Manchester & Lawrence and Concord railroads under the foundation of a new corporation to be called the New Hampshire Railroad Company. To this corporation the two roads named will be sold at a price that will give the state a profit of $1,000,000. A gentleman who is spoken of as being thoroughly conversant with what is going on in the "inner circles," outlines the provisions of the bill in this wise:

"The new corporation is to be formed with a capital gauged by the estimated cost of the properties it is proposed to acquire, and the dividend on the same is to be limited to seven per cent. The stock is to be opened to general popular subscription, and the secretary of state and state treasurer are to be the commissioners to receive subscriptions to the stock. In case more than the capital is subscribed, the awards are to be apportioned. The new corporation it to have the right to take, and be obliged to take, all existing roads in the state, and build, within a reasonable time, to be limited, certain links needed, like the road from Bristol to Plymouth, or from Franklin to Tilton, or the Lake Shore. It is to be allowed to complete these and other improvements by issuing mortgage bonds at not over five per cent interest. It is not to be allowed to consolidate with, or to lease itself to, any foreign corporation. It is to be subject to the control of the legislature and the railroad commission, as provided by existing laws, as to fares and rates of freight, with the proviso that no passenger fares are to be over 2 1-2 cents a mile. There are to be no free passes issued except to persons actually engaged in operating the roads, except that the railroad commissioners, governor and judges of the supreme court are to have free passage on official business only. The value of the property taken from existing corporations, except that taken by the state, is to be determined by the railroad commissioners, with a right of jury trial in the county where the corporation whose property is taken has its principal place of business."

New Hampshire Legislature.

In the house, on the 8th inst., notice was given by Mr. Cone of this city of a bill to amend the militia law, and by Mr. Randall of Newcastle of a bill for freeing all toll bridges throughout the state.

The Rockingham county convention organized by the choice of George E. Hodgdon of this city as chairman, and D. W. Shea of Greenland as clerk.

In the house on the 9th, a bill relating to the Concord railroad introduced by Mr. Moore of Nashua provides that the Concord railroad shall not be leased or united with any other corporation; permits that corporation to lease the Manchester & Lawrence at ten per cent, and the Northern and the Boston, Concord & Montreal at six per cent, upon their respective capital stocks; provides that the Northern and the Montreal shall not be leased to or united with any other corporation; reduces the local passenger traffic to two cents a mile on the Concord and the Manchester & Lawrence, to 2 1-2 cents on the leased lines of the Concord, and to three cents on the Northern and the Montreal, when they are leased to the Concord; reduces the tariff on coal on the Concord and all its leased lines twenty-five per cent; permits the Concord to reduce the freight tariff fifty per cent in favor of any new manufacturing industry on its lines for a term not exceeding three years; provides that the railroad commissioners shall once in five years make an examination into affairs of the Concord railroad, and if the earnings warrant, may order a reasonable reduction in the freight and passenger tariffs, and for all proper connection with connecting lines.

A bill presented by Mr. Hazen of Whitefield is amendment of the Colby bill provides for the rights of minorities of stockholders in railroad corporations. It stipulates that one railroad can be leased to another by a vote of two-thirds of the stockholders, and specifies the manner for determining and adjusting the interest of the non-assenting minority. It further provides that it shall be construed as authorizing a leasing of the Northern and the Boston, Concord & Montreal roads to the Boston & Lowell under its provisions.

The introduction of these bills is the first open movement in what is expected to be a bitter railroad fight between the Concord and the Boston & Maine.

The funeral of the late Vice-President Wheeler took place at Malone, N. Y., on the 7th inst. It was attended by Ex-President Hayes and his son, who came on from Ohio for the purpose. President Cleveland was unable to attend, being engaged in the endeavor to catch a trout in the Adirondacks.

A little boy was instantly killed in South Boston a day or two ago, by accidentally touching an electric-light wire while playing. The electric light company should be mulcted in exemplary damages for placing their wire where it could possibly cause such an accident, without isolating it.

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward application is worthless. The disease is in the blood, and any remedy to be effectual must deal with the obstructive acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the sinews of the joints. It resolves the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

WARDEN, JONES & CO., Druggists.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

NEW HAMPSHIRE CLUB EXCURSION.

Forty or more gentlemen sat down to the New Hampshire club's dinner at the Revere house in Boston on the 8th inst., which is the last one until September. Among those present were George S. Todd, superintendent of the Northern railroad, H. E. Chamberlin, superintendent of the Concord railroad, G. F. Richards of the Manchester Union, and Geo. W. Weston, register of deeds for Rockingham county. It was decided to have an excursion by the club in July, the trip extending along the coast eastward from Boston, and including a short tarry at the Wentworth, Newcastle; a committee was appointed to make all needed arrangements for the excursion.

BARBEROUS PROCEEDINGS.

The Portsmouth Barbers' association had a meeting on the evening of the 9th inst., and voted to accept the invitation of the Dover barbers to visit that city on Monday, the 13th, to play a game of base ball; also to close the shops at twelve o'clock, noon, on that day, and to go to Dover by barge conveyance. It was also voted to have a picnic on Thursday, July 14th, at Wallis' sands, Rye beach, with a chowder, etc., and to issue 300 tickets for the same; committees were appointed to procure a large tent, and make all other needed arrangements.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Chilion came off the beach at Rye on the night of the 8th inst., and arrived in the lower harbor about two o'clock in the morning on the 9th, coming around under sail, and using a long plank to steer with, her rudder having been carried away when she floated off the blocking on the night of the 7th. She was towed up on the 9th, and berthed at Union wharf, her upper works looking all right, and but little pumping being required to keep her free of water. While she was on the beach Mr. Charles S. Drowne bought 11-32ds of her at the rate of less than $400 for the whole vessel, and will probably make a good thing of it.

The sloop John W. Caswell on the 9th inst. brought in 240 large mackerel taken off this port, which were sold to J. O. Downs & Co.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, of this port, Levi Downs master, went into Boston a day or two since with sixty barrels of mackerel.

Mr. Benjamin Carter, formerly of this city but for some years past a resident of Massachusetts, is passing the summer at Mr. Samuel Hanscom's place on Little Harbor road.

Dr. E. B. Hammond of Nashua, who died on the 7th inst. in that city, was proprietor of the Hotel Bartlett at York beach, of which Mr. H. E. Evans is and for several years has been the landlord. Mr. Evans is vice president the York Harbor & Beach railroad, of which Dr. Hammond was president, and his advice in matters connected with the road has been decisive with the president.

Orrin Hamilton, passenger conductor on the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad between Portland and Boston, who has been employed on the road more than forty years, and is one of the best known railroad employes in New England, resigned June 8th.

The annual reunion of the survivors of the original crew of the U. S. S. Kearsarge is to be held at the Quincy house, Boston, on Saturday, June 18th.

Coal was discharged on the extension of the Concord railroad wharf on the 9th inst. for the first time. A new discharging gang has been organized with Willis Hodgdon as engineer, and Andrew Geddie as stevedore.

Mr. E. B. Jarvis, of the Boston Courier staff, was in this city on Thursday.

Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, of Dover, will hold their annual picnic on the 4th of July at Pinkham's grove, Dover point; and Div. No. 3, A. O. H., of Dover, will hold their annual picnic the same day in Ford's grove, about half a mile below Pinkham's. Special trains will be run between Dover and the picnic grounds, at reduced rates of fare.

Children's Day will be observed by the Middle street Baptist Sunday school in the church next Sunday morning, and the superintendent extends a cordial invitation to all, to be present.

Frank L. Baker of Wells, Me., is acting as station agent of the Boston & Maine railroad at Madbury during the session of the New Hampshire legislature, the regular station agent, Mr. DeMerritt, being at Concord as representative from his town.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., June 9th.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters have put up, under date of May 25th, large posters offering a reward of two hundred dollars for the detection, conviction and punishment of the party or parties who may on trial be found guilty by the court of the crime of incendiarism or arson, in firing the dwelling house of Mrs. Prof. James P. Ames at York on May 13th last. Said reward expires by limitation in one year from date, unless otherwise ordered; and will be paid only on due proof being furnished the executive committee, as required by its rules, of the conviction of the criminal or criminals of the crime of incendiarism or arson, and of their incarceration under the final sentence of the court. Guess they had better have saved their ink and paper, as the chap who fired that building is "too old a bird to be caught with chaff."

Alvah Trafton of York, member of the first traverse jury for York county, is at home sick, having been excused from duty. Dr. Hazen has forwarded to the court a certificate of Trafton's inability to attend. P.

Those wool worsted suitings in plain and mixed colorings, are the very best. No. 6 Market street. J. W. Moses.

The Revere House, Boston, has more parlors and more public rooms open to guests than any other hotel in Boston.

The parasols shown by Lewis E. Staples this season cannot be beaten for styles and low prices. Ladies, call and look at them, and be convinced.

The secretary of the navy has given orders for the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron to proceed to New Haven, Conn., for the purpose of participating in the ceremonies incident to the dedication of the soldiers and sailors' monument at that place on the 17th inst.

James McDonald and Oscar Dauphine, seamen of the Gloucester fishing schooner Carrie & Annie, who were lost in a fog May 24th on the banks while tending trawls, were picked up by the Italian barque Entella after spending three days and nights in their dory without food or water, and landed at Chatham, N. B.

More than 100 years ago Congress ordered an inscription to be placed on the monument to Gen. Nathaniel Greene, and it has just been placed there.

The Boston Master Builders' association recently took important action in relation to the right to employ non-union men, demanding that that class of workmen shall be fairly treated. This is right; non-union workmen, who comprise the vast majority of the workingmen of the country, have been oppressed and ostracised by the trades unions quite long enough.

A lodge of bloodthirsty anarchists has been discovered in Columbus, Ohio. It numbers ninety men and women, and some of the circulars are of the most revolutionary character.

National League games, June 8th: Washington 6, Boston 2; New York 7, Philadelphia 4; Chicago 8, Indianapolis 3. The Detroit and Pittsburg clubs did not play.

The city councils of Dover have voted to rent the Sherman schoolhouse to the Catholics for a parochial school.

The Yellow Fever.

Acting Surgeon-General Stoner of the Marine Hospital service states that his office is in receipt of numerous applications from the lower counties of Florida, for government aid to prevent the spread of yellow fever, and for the stationing of physicians connected with the service at points where the fever is likely to break out. These applications are evidently based on the idea that the government may be called upon to act at any time, whereas, according to the terms of the appropriation for the prevention of the spread of yellow fever, the Marine Hospital service can only act in conjunction with and in aid of local authorities in case of necessity. No such necessity is deemed to exist at present in Florida, except at Key West and Tampa.

Secretary Fairchild of the treasury has issued a circular in regard to contagious diseases. Revenue cutters are directed to cruise actively on the outer lines of their cruising grounds, and to exercise special vigilance in speaking all vessels arriving from foreign ports or from infected parts of the United States. Should the information gained indicate a condition of contagion or infection in the vessel or crew, or that the vessel has left a port at which contagious or infectious diseases were prevailing, her master will be directed to proceed for examination to the outer quarantine station provided for her port of destination.

Miss Frances Helen Colenso, who has lately died, was a daughter of Bishop Colenso, and joint author with Colonel Edward Durnford of the "History of the Zulu War." She contributed the political chapters, and he the military narrative. Afterwards she published a work called "The Ruin of Zululand," and was intending to edit a number of her father's letters. Her early death will be lamented by the Zulus.

CANDOR, TIOGA CO., N. Y., June 6, 1886.—For ten years I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters in my family, and take pleasure in stating that in nearly all cases they have supplanted the family physician, having called a physician but twice within the last two years. I feel that I owe my present good health largely to Allcock's Porous Plasters.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; fur upon the tongue; indigestion, and sick headace consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious, to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

Lawrence Donovan was arrested on Westminster bridge, London, June 8th, while attempting to jump into the Thames, and was taken to the Bow street police court, charged with disorderly conduct. The magistrate cautioned him against again attempting to jump, and discharged him.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

By its action on the report presented by the committee on national affairs, the Republican club of New York on the evening of the 8th inst. pledged itself to support James G. Blaine in the canvass of 1888.

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smiling saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

While searching for cows in a forest in Killingworth, Conn., June 9th, a company of farmers discovered the dead body of a man which was badly decomposed and unrecognizable. A Rattlesnake in a Mail Pouch.

After the mail train on the Central railroad in Georgia had passed Morrow's station in Georgia one morning recently, Railway Clerk Milner unlocked the mail pouch handed on at that station. On turning back the flap of the pouch, out sprang a rattlesnake about twelve inches long, and struck at the clerk. This so surprised him that it is said he jumped backward the whole length of his car, so that for a while the snake had complete posession of Uncle Sam's mail. The commotion soon alarmed some of the passengers, who killed the reptile. How the snake got into the mail pouch is a mystery.

Listen to Your Wife.

The Manchester GUARDIAN, June 8th, 1883, says: At one of the "Windows"

Looking on the woodland ways! With clumps of rhododendrons and great masses of May blossoms ! ! ! "There was an interesting group.

It included one who had been a "Cotton spinner," but was now so

Paralyzed ! ! !

That he could only bear to lie in a reclining position.

This refers to my case.

I was first attacked twelve years ago with "Locomoter Ataxy"

(A paralytic disease of nerve fibre rarely ever cured)

and was for several years barely able to get about.

And for the last five years not able to attend to my business, although

Many things have been done for me.
The last experiment being Nerve stretching.
Two years ago I was voted into the House for Incurables! Near Manchester, in May, 1882.

I am no "advocate;" "For anything in the shape of patent "Medicines!

And made many objections to my dear wife's constant urging to try Hop Bitters, but finally to pacify her—

Consented ! !

I had not quite finished the first bottle when I felt a change come over me. This was Saturday, November 2d. On Sunday morning I felt so strong I said to my room companions, "I was sure I could "Walk!

So started across the floor and back.

I hardly knew how to contain myself. I was all over the house. I am gaining strength each day, and can walk quite safe without any

"Stick!"

Or support.

I am now at my own house, and hope soon to be able to earn my own living again. I have been a member of the Manchester

"Royal Exchange"

For nearly thirty years, and was most heartily congratulated on going on the room on Thursday last. Very gratefully yours,

JOHN BLACKBURN.

MANCHESTER, (Eng.) Dec. 24, 1883.
Two years later am perfectly well.

One Experience of Many.

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble!" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!

My trouble always came after eating any food—

However light,
And digestible,

For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most

Excruciating pains,

"And the only way I ever got'

"Relief!"

Was by throwing up all my stomach contained ! ! No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until

"At last?"

I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and

Could eat nothing ! ! !

My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain.

Their efforts were no good to me.

At last I heard a good deal

"About your Hop Bitters!

And determined to try them."

Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of

One ! ! ! !

Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a

"Sick!"

Hour, from the same cause, since.

I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such

"Advocate as I am."

A Pet Blue-jay.

Olive T. Miller in the Atlantic writes of her feathery pet as follows: When he has more of any special dainty than he can eat at the moment, as meat or bread and milk, he hides it at the back of his tray. And when outside nothing can be droller than the air of concern with which he goes around the floor, picking up any small thing he finds left purposely for him, a burnt match, a small key, stray pins, or a marble, and seeks the very best and most secluded spot in the room in which to hide it. A pin he takes lengthwise in his mouth, which he closes as though he had swallowed it, and at first I feared he had. He has no doubt about the best place for that; he long ago decided that between the leaves of a book safest. So he proceeds to find a convenient volume and thrusts the pin far in out of sight. A match gives him the most trouble. He tries the cracks under the grooves in the moulding of the doors, the baseboard, between the matting and the wall, or under a rocker; each place he puts in carefully and pounds it in, then hops off, attempting to look unconcerned, as if he had not been doing anything.

But if he sees that he is observed or the match is too plainly in sight he removes it and begins again, running and hopping around on the floor with the most solemn and business-like air, as though he had the affairs of the nation on his shoulders, the match thrust nearly the whole length into his mouth. The place usually decided upon is an opening between the breadths of matting. It is amusing when he chances to get hold of a box of matches, accidentally left open, for he feels the necessity and importance of disposing of each one, and is busy and industrious in proportion to the task before him. It is not so pleasant however, when in his hammering he sets one off, as he often does; for they are "parlor matches" and light with a small explosion, which frightens him half out of his wits, and me as well, lest he should set the house afire. The business of safely and securely secreting one match will frequently occupy him half an hour.

He finds the oddest hiding places, as in the caster between the wheel and its frame; up inside the seat of a stuffed chair, to reach which he flies up on the webbing and goes in among the springs; in the side of my slipper while on my foot; in the loop of a bow; in the plaits of a ruffle; under a pillow. Often when I get up a shower of the jay's treasures falls from various hiding places about my dress—nails, matches, shoe-buttons, and others; and I am never sure that I will not find soft, milk-soaked bread in my slipper. But the latest discovery and most annoying of his receptacles is my hair. He delights in standing on my shoulder, and he soon discovered several desirable hiding places conveniently near, such as my ear and under the loosely-dressed hair. I did not object to his using these, but when he attempted to tuck away some choice thing between my lips I rebelled. I never expect to find a keyhole that he can reach free from bread-crumbs, and the openings of my waste basket are usually decorated with objects half driven in.

Good Stone from a Queer Deposit.

A Chicago street paving contractor has just engaged $100,000 worth of Dakota paving stone. The prairie region of Dakota is about the last place we would think of going to for stone, and yet the deposit whence this stone is taken is said to be a most wonderful and magnificent formation. It is called a quartzite granite, soft when quarried and easily sawn out, but hardening into a mass flinty and indestructible and non-absorbent. It is pronounced by experts a perfect paving stone. But the strangest thing about it is the formation from which it is taken. This is found about two feet under the prairie soil surrounding Sioux Falls for miles and miles, and when the thin soil, with its stunted growth of grass, is stripped off, there lies the rock, as smooth and level as a floor. The tract contains something like thirty square miles, and the deposit is several hundred feet thick. Through the center of the tract runs the Big Sioux River, whose channel is merely a rift in the rock—a crack formed by the partial splitting of the whole mass. The channel is in shape just like the letter V, and the surface of the deposit extends back for several miles precisely at right angles with the sides of the crevice.—Chicago Herald.

Everything Has Its Uses.

Never let your energy and enterprise go for naught if you can help it. A California woman undertook to make a cradle for her baby. It wasn't a first-class success as a cradle, but it was a mighty good orange box, and now she has a big factory and makes nine-tenths of the orange boxes used in California. This reminds us of a friend of ours who invented a new kind of baking powder on scientific principles. He made up a big lot of it before having it tested practically. Unhappily it wouldn't raise bread at all, but it made first-rate concrete for sidewalks, and so was put where it would do the most good.—Springfield (Mass) Union.

We are told that Tecumseh Sherman carries his wife's sachel when the lady is shopping, and Philip Sheridan his wife's handkerchief under the same circumstances. It is such paragraphs as this that gives the South all the revenge it craves.

VITIATED BLOOD

Scrofulous, Inherited and Contagious Humors

Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apolio, Pa., I became acquainted with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

SCROFULOUS ULCERS.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on oath says: "In 1879 Scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief came in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

Sworn to before U. S. Com. J. H. CRAWFORD.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of Scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. The Soap takes the "cake" here as a medicinal soap.

SCROFULOUS, INHERITED.

And Contagious Humors, with Loss of Hair, and Eruptions of the Skin, are positively cured by CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, when all other medicines fail. Send for Pamphlet.

DRUGGISTS USE THEM.

We have obtained satisfactory results from the use of the Cuticura Remedies in our own family, and recommend them beyond any other remedies for diseases of the skin and blood. The demand for them grows as their merits become known.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all confess who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packer contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

The United States Senatorship.

The democratic and republican legislative caucuses for the nomination of candidates for United States senator were held on the evening of the 9th inst., and Hon. Harry Bingham of Littleton was given the empty honor of the democratic nomination.

The republican caucus was largely attended and earnest, but its harmonious action settled the talk, previously so common, about the possibility of a republican bolt of such proportions as to enable the democrats to name the senator and defeat the regular republican nominee. The withdrawal of Hon. E. H. Rollins from the canvass had simplified matters, and it was quite generally conceded that the caucus would nominate Hon. William E. Chandler. Hon. O. C. Moore of Nashua presented Mr. Chandler's name to the caucus, Mr. Sulloway of Manchester urging Gen. Gilman Marston's election; on a rising vote it was determined, 84 to 77, to elect but one senator at this term, and a ballot for a candidate resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes	156
Necessary for a choice	79
Charles H. Burns had	1
Person C. Cheney	2
James W. Patterson	11
Gilman Marston	24
William E. Chandler	118

And Mr. Chandler was declared to be the republican candidate for United States senator. On motion of Mr. Sulloway the nomination was made unanimous, and a committee having waited on Mr. Chandler, that gentleman appeared and accepted the nomination in a well considered address.

E. P. Roe's New War Story Tomorrow.

Rev. E. P. Roe's great war story, "The Earth Trembled," will be begun in the Boston Sunday Globe to-morrow. Tell your newsdealer today to be sure and leave you a copy.

—A woman woke her husband during the storm the other night, and said: "I wish you would stop snoring, for I want to hear it thunder."

—"Mamma," said Flossie, who had been to church for the first time, where she had listened with more or less attention to the sermon, "I know what the minister meant by 'children's children.'" "Yes?" said mamma. "Yes; he meant dolls."

—"Your papa and mama know what's best for you, Bobby," said his mother; "don't tease me any more." Bobby lay down on the rug and rolled over once or twice. Then he said from his recumbent position: "Ma, do you know that I feel like being an orphan?

—Bill Nye says he expects to make a good deal of money out of his last book, because it is "larger and thicker" than any he ever published before. "What the public wants," he adds, "is a big book—one that can be used to prop up the lounge with when its leg is broken."

—Boston young lady (in the country) —"And did you really paint the barn yourself, Uncle James?" Uncle James —"Yes." Boston young lady—"By hand?" Uncle James—"Sartin." Boston young lady (fetching her breath)—"Think of it—a hand-painted barn!"

—First patriot—"Say, why didn't you vote for my brother Bill?" Second patriot—"Because he ain't no statesman." "No statesman, eh! Why, he's kept a saloon in Omaha for ten years. No statesman, eh?" "He's no statesman, I say it agin. Right back of his bar he's got up a big, ugly sign: 'No Trust.'"

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease lurks in the blood, and any remedy to be successful must deal with the constitutional acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

The sale of Athlophoros is rapidly increasing with us and has nearly doubled in the last month; every one who has tried it seems very much pleased with its effects and recommends it highly.

WARDEN, JONES & CO., Druggists.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

Having suffered for some time from rheumatic difficulty I was induced to try a bottle of Athlophoros, and am happy to recommend the same as a sure relief for rheumatism. ARTHUR B. SMITH.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

Rheumatism
It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.
It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.
A Positive Cure.
"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

A special meeting of the Common Council was held Thursday evening. There were ten members present, with the president in the chair.

Notice was received from the board of aldermen of the passage of the bill (amended) providing for the sale of the city farm, which originated in the council. The council rejected the bill as amended by the aldermen, and sent the original bill back to the aldermen for concurrence. There was an extended discussion of the question; some members claiming that the bill as sent to the aldermen embodied all the conditions governing the sale which have heretofore been asked for by that body. It was also stated that the council had endeavored to meet the views of the aldermen in this matter, because it was the general opinion of both branches of the city government that the present farm buildings were unsuited to the needs of the poor of the city. They had done what they could and now they believe that the aldermen should concur in a bill which was good enough under any circumstances.

The bill providing for a loan of $30,000 for the purpose of erecting a new school building, was made the special order for the next meeting.

Adjourned to meet at the call of the presinent.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, June 10th.

Edward P. Philbrook, drunk, and Fred Murray, ditto, were each assessed $9.90, fine and costs, and both will board it out at Brentwood.

AN ELEPHANT BAND.

We have seen and heard a number of bands—good, bad and indifferent—but we confess to never having seen or heard a band composed of elephants, nor did we think of such a think of such a thing being in existence until we saw the advertisement of the Frank A. Robbins circus, museum and menagerie, which will exhibit in this city Friday, June 17th, and learned that one of the principal features of the show was a herd of those huge beasts which have been taught to perform on various kinds of musical instruments, and to march and drill like soldiers. This is an attraction that certainly has never before been exhibited in our city, and should be seen by every one. The following, taken from an exchange, will give some idea of the magnitude of the show:

The elephant band was a wonderful thing, and the antics of these animals in the ring under their trainer produced wonder on the part of the beholders, especially when drilled as a body of soldiers. The riding and other performances of members of the company in the two rings and on the elevated platform was all that could be desired in a circus performance. The management was gentlemanly, and the whole show is free from vulgarity or ruffianism in any shape or form. In fact, Mr. Robbins so far understands the business of a showman that he will not have in his employ any person who cannot under all circumstances act the part of a lady or gentleman.

MARITIME NOTES.

The old schooner E. A. Creed, which for several years past has been lying at the wharf at the southerly end of Liberty bridge with the tide ebbing and flowing in her, has been given by her owners, the Laighton Bros. of the Isles of Shoals, to Mr. Charles A. Benson. Mr. Benson and Capt. Raymond were looking the old boat over on Friday, with a view to having her patched up for further service. Capt. Raymond was formerly a resident of this city, and well known as master and owner of the schooner Elizabeth M. Smith, which was cut through by ice and went to the bottom six or seven years ago, somewhere off Long island. The E. A. Creed is an old craft, the United States treasury register having no record of when or where she was built, and has done good work in her day, sailing well and being a fine seaboat. She was a crack fisherman out of Newburyport twenty-five years ago.

Richard White and Archy McKinnon were lost from the Gloucester fishing schooner Rebecca Bartlett on the banks, May 23d, and drifted about in their dory until June 2d, when they were picked up. McKinnon died after being rescued, but White will recover.

Dartmouth has won the college championship pennant for 1887.

The dwelling houses belonging to the estate of John H. Grant will be sold at auction at half-past twelve o'clock today, under a license from the probate court.

The grass on the reservoir in Haymarket square was mowed on Friday morning, in anticipation of the return of Alderman Hodgdon from Concord. The counsel for the defence we understand has ordered a new suit, which he expects to wear when inaugurated as our next mayor.

The sale of tickets for the Mikado, to be given in Music hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, has been very large, but seats can still be procured at Mr. Goodrich's bookstore. The popular opera will be presented in excellent style.

The engagement of rooms by coming guests at the Wentworth is largely in excess of that of any previous season.

Summer hotel proprietors are reported to be very thick in New York city just now. Manager Hill of the Wentworth returns from that city to-day, after a long absence on business.

George and Edward Chesley, farmers of Lee, recently arrested and took to Dover Samuel A. Ward of Topsfield, Mass., for fishing in their private brook. They also charged that he fired shots to scare them. He was fined $10 and costs. On the 9th inst. Ward attached the property of the Chesleys for $2000, for alleged illegal arrest and imprisonment. He claims that he was not on the land of the Chesleys when arrested.

Mrs. W. P. Harrington, of San Francisco, who has for several months past been a guest at the hotel Wingate in this city, was a passenger in the steamship Ems (North German Lloyds) for Bremen by way of Southampton, which left New York on Wednesday, the 8th inst.

The war veterans in the legislature, of whom there are about thirty, have organized, with Harry C. Fay of Claremont as chairman, and John Scott of Peterboro as secretary, and will look sharply after the interests of the old soldiers during the present session. A bill to establish a state home for old and needy veterans will be introduced at this term, and no doubt will pass; it should, at least, for the state is well able to care for those who in the dark days of the rebellion gave their services in defence of the nation.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; fur upon the tongue; indigestion, and sick headace consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious, to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

At the Memorial day exercises in Franconia, says the White Mountain Republic, "martial music was furnished by a trio, which had only had sixty years practice together. They were Silas Howland, John Bowles and John Priest, aged eighty-four, seventy-five and eighty-six years in the order mentioned, and played the fife, bass drum and snare drum as named. After getting warmed up to it the old veterans gave a little concert in front of the post office, concluding with an old 'Sugar Hill piece,' as they called it, and then shook hands and separated, saying with deep emotion, 'We shall probably never play together again.' The bass drum used was in the war of 1812."

SADLY MISTAKEN WOMEN.

The Great Cause of Female Unhappiness and Loss of Attractiveness Explained.

(Mother's Magazine.)

The question is often asked, why are the women so too-day so delicate, so feeble? Why do they fade so quickly, lose their color, and become prematurely old? Why do they suffer such pains and endure so much silent agony? There are, doubtless, many reasons, but they are all combined in the single word—Weakness. When we stop to calmly think of the amount of misery that is endured by the women of America at this very moment it is simply appalling. This is no idle assertion—it is the terrible truth. We will cite a case in point:

MRS. NICHOLAS

Mrs. Alexander L. Nicholas, residing at Phenix, R. I., is a lineal descendant of the gallant General Nathaniel Greene. Blessed with a good constitution, she hardly knew what sickness or pain were until a few years ago. Her duties called her up and down stairs (that bane of womankind) very frequently, and she began to notice that her breath was growing shorter. This was followed by pains in the back, tired feeling, a sense of bearing down and frequent faintness. But Mrs. Nicholas had the plucky blood of her ancestor in her veins and would not give up. There came a day, however, when she was forced to do so. We give the rest in her own words. In conversing with the writer she said:

"I cannot describe how sick I was. I had sharp pains shooting through my chest; it was almost impossible to draw a single breath, and my limbs were swollen almost to bursting. I consulted three doctors, two of whom admitted that they could not cure me, while the third pronounced my case dropsy. My limbs continued to swell; the water filled my lungs, and I never for a moment thought of ever recovering. For eight months I was unable to lie down, and could only sleep in my chair. When I was in this hopeless condition, my son, Lafayette G. Nicholas, of Providence, came to see me. Several years before he had been sick, but under the direction of Dr. Geo. D. Wilcox, of Providence, he had recovered. He insisted that I should employ the same means he had used so successfully, and as a last resort I consented to do so. In a short time I began to grow better; the swelling decreased, and finally disappeared; I regained my breath, then my health, then my strength, and I owe my life to-day to that grand medicine Hunt's Remedy, which alone was able to save me. This was the medicine which, administered by Dr. Wilcox, restored my son and rescued me from the grave. I know it is pure, simple and good, and I believe it is the only remedy that will certainly regulate and cure the many troubles of women and restore them to health, beauty and attractiveness.

RESTORED.

"I have thought a great deal about the health of women since I regained my health, and I wish I had the power to induce those who are suffering, as so many are to-day, to use the means I so successfully employed. If women were well and strong it would be a grand thing for the nation, and save untold suffering which is now being endured so patiently. The trouble is, many women do not know what ails them. They take cold and have unpleasant symptoms but think that they will soon pass away, but they do not. These are followed by more serious troubles, annoying, weakening and life-destroying, but still they take no steps to check them. How can women be so blind? They do not know that such things are the beginning of the end unless taken in time?"

FEMALE MISERY

The experience of Mrs. Nicholas, who is now in her eighty-fifth year, should be a warning to all who read her earnest words not to delay, but to use the best of all known means for preserving or restoring health before it is too late.

Consolation.

Dear heart, between us can be no farewell,
We have so long to live, so much to endure.
What ills despair might work us who can tell,
Had we not help in that one trust secure?

Time can not sever nor space keep long apart
Those whom love's sleepless yearning would draw near.
Fate bends unto the indomitable heart
And firm-fixed will. What room have we for fear?

—Charles D. Roberts.

The Man and the Office.

In the early history of this country we are assured that the office sought the man; in fact, it had to if it got him. It doesn't have to do that way now. Not very often. Only on extremely rare occasions. And in such cases the office is so small the man can't see it.

The day when the office had to put a stock-saddle on its horse and go whooping and racing around the streets trying to lariat the man are over. No more does the office have to stand up in the stirrups and howl for the man to hold on, and offer bystanders a reward to stop him, and try to ride up around the other way and take him when he isn't looking, and then, after all, have him disappear around the corner and never see him again. The sight, once so common, of the office going around wearing a three-cornered hat and powdered wig, and carrying an old flint-lock musket, asking people if they had seen anything of the man, will never be witnessed again. Never again will the office chase the man around Valley Forge and up and down Bunker Hill, and wade across the Delaware after him.

The matter is somewhat changed now, and the poor office may crawl away under the barn if it wants to, but the man—several of him—will be there and pull it out by the legs and take possession.—Dakota Bell.

A Cheeky Cadet.

Sometimes, when the offenses of West Point cadets are very flagrant, courts-martial are called to try them. These are composed of army officers, who sit in trial like judge and jury when the offender is in civil instead of in military life. These courts-martial are often very funny. Once there was a youngster who was so perfectly outrageous that he knew he would be dismissed at the approaching examination, so he determined to have a good time before he left. On the grounds was an old disused shed of some kind, and in it the young hopeful piled all the shavings, rags, and everything else combustible he could get, and one fine night he set a match to it and had a bonfire of his own. Of course suspicion pointed to him, and a court of inquiry was organized to investigate the outrage. General Thayer was superintendent and Colonel Fry commandant of the cadets. When the prisoner was called up for examination before the court, composed of officers of high rank, imposing in the majesty of the law, he was asked to state what he knew about the fire.

"I—I don't know anything myself but what is hearsay testimony, and you won't admit that," he replied.

"The court does not desire your views on hearsay testimony," severely remarked the prosecutor. "You are directed to state what may have come to your knowledge regarding the affair."

"Well, but," objected the culprit, "I don't know anything about it, and what I heard I don't believe."

"The court, sir," thundered the officer, "has not inquired into your belief. You will immediately state what you heard."

"But, but—you don't believe me, either."

By that time the court was in a rage. "Go on, sir," roared several officers together.

"Well, they do say," stammered the cadet diffidently, "that General Thayer got the shavings and old Fry set 'em afire."—Philadelphia Times.

A Wet Soldier Who Did His Duty.

An Irishman stationed at Pensacola, in 1861, was placed upon picket one night on the beach, with orders to walk between two points, and to allow no one to pass without whispering the countersign.

About midnight the corporal with the relief discovered, by the moonlight, that the sentinel was up to his waist in water, the tide having set in since he was posted.

"Who goes there?"

"Relief."

"Halt, relief; advance corporal and give the countersign."

Corporal—"I am not going in there to be drowned; come out here and let me relieve you."

Sentinel—"Will I, indade! The liftinant tould me not to lave me post."

Corporal—"Well, then, I'll leave you in the water all night" (turning away at the moment.)

Sentinel—"Halt! I'll put a hole in ye if ye pass widout the countersign. Thim's me orders from the liftinant" (cocking and leveling his gun.)

Corporal—"You stupid, everybody will hear it if I bawl it out to you."

Sentinel—"Yis, me darlint; an' the liftinant said it must be given in a whisper. In wid ye! Me finger's on the trigger and me gun may go off."

The corporal had to yield and wade in to the sentinel, who exclaimed: "Be jabers, it's well ye've come; the bastely tide has almost drowned me."—Youth's Companion.

Their Sorrow is Very Natural.

The most pitiful thing connected with William E. Chandler's successful candidacy last week for the republican nomination for United States senator from New Hampshire, is the resulting agony of the New York Times, which while admitting Mr. Chandler's ability, tireless energy, fearlessness and wonderful fertility of resource, says he isn't at all the man it would have selected to represent New Hampshire in the national senate. As the New York Times is a British organ of the most pronounced character, and for years has been in consequence a bitter opponent of the party which believes in America for Americans, its anguish will be borne with a good deal of equanimity by the republicans of this state and of the country at large.

The regular democratic papers, in the state and out—those which acknowledge themselves to be for the democratic party first, last, and all the time—lament sadly that the little boomlet which they so tenderly nurtured, and which they so fondly hoped would grow big and strong enough to overshadow the Chandler boom, was wizzled and hopelessly dried up by the republican fervor of the legislative caucus at Concord last Thursday evening. Recognizing that the harmonious action of that caucus absolutely assures a complete republican victory in this state at the next election, they very naturally feel aggrieved. But we guess they will have to stand it; that is all they can do.

OUR NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

BRAIDED WOOLS—SUMMER SILKS—TRAVELLING DRESSES—WEDDING OUTFITS—NOTES.

Peculiar distinction attaches to dresses of white wool trimmed with metal braid, gilt, silver or bronze; next in position being white or pale wools set off by velvet, which is sometimes so placed as to imitate the braid trimmings. Combinations of white wool and India silk are also another charming thought, a mention of the latter fabric bringing up lovely diversity of pattern. On delicate surfaces the choicest flowers are portrayed, but even here the irrepressible stripes intrude themselves. Bright red India silks are trimmed by cream lace, and with summer silks of all kinds lace is by far the most fashionable combination, and besides edging draperies, is arranged in double jabots down the front of skirts or in similar side panels, while in the centre, ribbon or velvet bows afford effective finish. The various checked and plaided silks are a strong element in dress. In

TRAVELLING DRESSES

The plain tailor-finished have the first position, but many are being made of thin checked or plaided wool with jersey to match. More dressy wool costumes are solid color trimmed with metal braid, and handsome contrasts between the braid and fabric are brought about, as where heliotrope, blue or green are garnitured by silver, etc. Cool morning dresses are made of linen, which like everything else, has been affected by the mania for checks and plaids. Linen ginghams therefore are specially stylish, sometimes combined with plain gingham. Linen grenadines imitate in ecru, pink, pale blue, heliotrope and maize, the silk goods of that name, and in much novelty show open-work and brocaded patterns, but are hardly so attractive as ethereal lawns, where on plain ground-works delicate grasses, fairy sprays, blossoms or coquettish berries are displayed in chine effect. The linen brings about a desirable stiffness. Almost every day now there are

WEDDINGS

More or less notable, since June finishes our spring drawing of matrimonial lottery tickets; more uncertain than the Louisiana State, which, supervised by Gens. Beauregard and Early, insures perfect fairness. Moire, satin, gros grain or Faille Francaise are the materials mostly used for dresses, and they are made simply, with long train; the corsage high, square or heart-shaped neck, with elbow sleeves. Lace, crystal, silver, or occasionally gilt beads are the trimmings, and are placed on the front breadth or sides in nets or passementeries, both auxiliary to lace, or with silver, gilt or crystal fringe. The corsage of course adorned in keeping. White undressed kid is the first choice in gloves, with satin slippers. Tulle veil and white roses, lilacs or orange blossoms. Originality is the first thought in bridesmaids' dresses, and all sorts of prettiness results, both from this and the variety of coquettish material and combinations in vogue. The costumes are always short, however, with tan gloves.

JUNE NOTES.

Both light and dark canvas dresses, gayly flowered and trimmed with ribbon, are among the season's pretty things.——The hair is now often dressed with the braid or coil, neither very high nor low. Much individuality for the front, but moderation always, while from small children to matrons the bang is most fashionable. Children's hair is frequently short, or even shingled, while schoolgirls wear the perpetual braid.——Stylish summer silks and gauzes are covered with fine dots, or rather specks, and there are varieties of these materials where single small beads do duty.

The investigation by the British vice-consul at New York, and a marine board of enquiry, into the cause of the collision between the steamships Celtic and Britannic, resulted in both captains being severely censured, though the chief blame was thrown on the Britannic.

"NEARLY CRAZED with pain" is the sad cry of many a victim of rheumatism or neuralgia, and frequently other diseases, such as kidney and liver complaints, are directly traceable to rheumatism or neuralgia. These diseases, for some unexplainable reason, are rapidly increasing, and in many instances are the direct cause of much sickness which so hides its real origin as to be mistaken for other diseases. In curing rheumatism, neuralgia, sick headache, and in many cases of kidney and liver troubles, Athlophoros has wrought wonders. Those who have used it are best qualified to speak of its merit.

Great Falls, N. H., March 12, 1886.

With me Athlophoros outsells all rheumatism medicines and herewith I give you one sample of its work in this place. Mr. Cyrus Curtis has been so afflicted with rheumatism that for the past three years he has been unable to walk, except to put one foot out and drag the other up to it and thus get along. Three weeks ago I recommended Athlophoros to him. Two bottles has so (as he states) unloosened him that he can walk natural again. He is now an earnest advocate of Athlophoros.

F. H. WINGATE, Druggist.

Greenfield, Mass., May 19, 1886.

I have been troubled with rheumatism in one of my knees for years, being at times laid up for several days. Athlophoros has entirely cured me. It has also cured two friends of mine who were the worst cases I ever saw, one of them a young man only 16 years old, who was so bad the doctors gave him up. Two bottles of your remedy entirely cured him. I heartily recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatism.

GEO. W. SPURR,
Manager Diamond Soap Co.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Three Peculiarities
Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:
1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.
2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.
3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.
The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

SHALL WE CELEBRATE?

Newmarket proposes to have a 4th of July celebration, to include a procession of antiques and horribles in the morning, fireworks and band concert in the evening, and other features provided the contributions will admit. One hundred dollars have already been raised.

What is Portsmouth going to do in regard to the Glorious Fourth? Will the day be allowed to pass with no other recognition than the ringing of the bells and a band concert, and the firing of crackers and toy pistols by the small boy? The business men of the city could well afford to raise a few hundred dollars by subscription among themselves, to have a series of athletic sports on Market square during the afternoon; the greatly increased influx of people from the neighboring towns in the county and across the river would make it "pay," setting aside any higher and more patriotic motive.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer James Sampson makes her first trip for this season to Pocahontas point to-day.

Lewis Holmes' boats were all out yesterday, the day being very pleasant. Some were occupied at intervals by divers parties. His fleet is safely constructed upon scientific principles, and no accident of any serious nature is yet recorded against any of his build.

The Cunard steamer Bothnia, on which Rev. Alfred Gooding and wife of this city took passage from Boston for Liverpool, arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, on Saturday morning, and proceeded.

The schooner Ella, of Bangor, Me., Phillips master, bound from Boston for Bangor with a general cargo, was in collision off Boon island on Thursday afternoon, the 9th inst., in a thick fog, with an unknown schooner, and had her main boom broken, main rigging carried away and quarter rail smashed on the port side, after house damaged, and three planks cut through below the covering board. The other schooner had her jibboom carried away. The Ella put into Portsmouth lower harbor, and her captain telegraphed to Bangor for a tug to tow her around; the tug Howell left Bangor at 11:30 Friday night, arrived here at eleven o'clock Saturday forenoon, and on Sunday morning at an early hour started for Bangor with the distressed schooner in tow. The schooner was making no water, and her cargo was supposed to be uninjured.

The Seawanhaka yacht club races were sailed on Saturday over the New York yacht club course, there being all the wind the yachts could use, Lieut. Henn's cutter Galatea not being able to show a club topsail during the race. The sloop Atlantic took first prize for sloops, in 4:29:29; Priscilla second, in 4:25:07; Galatea third, in 4:36:07. The Titania, Mr. Burgess' new sloop, did wonderful work in turning to windward in a stiff breeze and heavy sea, and beat the Bedouin, Shamrock and Stranger cutters badly, by both actual and corrected time in her class; and by time allowance would have beaten all the big sloops in the fleet.

The schooner Chilion was towed across the river from this side on Saturday afternoon, to be taken on the marine railway for repairs.

The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell, Browne master, is engaged to take out a party from inland on Tuesday, the 14th inst.

BASE BALL.

The Lowells, one of the clubs of the New England league, played a game with the Dover club at Dover on Friday, and won it by the score of seven to two.

The Dover club played the Biddefords at Dover on the 11th, and defeated them, eleven to four. Riley and Mullen, of the Dovers, made a noticeable double play, Grady made a home run and a two-base hit, and the Dover battery did splendid work.

The Phillips Andover academy nine played the annual game at Exeter on Saturday with the nine of Phillips Exeter academy, and won by the score of twenty-two to seven. The Exeter academy club has beaten the Andovers for several years past until this year.

National League games, June 10th: Boston 7, Philadelphia 4; Detroit 21, Indianapolis 2; New York 9, Washington 2; Chicago 10, Pittsburg 3.

National League games, June 11th: Boston 11, Philadelphia 9; Detroit 7, Indianapolis 6; Chicago 6, Pittsburg 4; New York 26, Washington 2.

PERSONAL.

United States Marshal Barker has appointed Capt. Edward D. Coffin of this city deputy United States marshal for the district of New Hampshire.

Mr. O. H. Cook and family on Saturday went to their summer residence at Wallis' sands, Rye beach, for the season.

Capt. James Salter and wife, of New York, are visiting Capt. Salter's mother, Mrs. Henry P. Salter of State street, this city.

Miss Becker, of Melrose, Mass., sang alto in the choir of the Unitarian church on Sunday, and was very highly appreciated by the congregation.

Rev. Isaac C. White, for twenty-two years past the earnest and beloved minister of the Congregational church in Newmarket, on the 5th inst. tendered his resignation, to take effect July 1st.

C. Dwight Hanscom sold at auction on Saturday the double house on Wall street to Mr. Joselyn for $1650, and the house on Russell alley to Mrs. Frost for $810. These buildings belonged to the Frost estate.

Judge Colt of the United States Circuit court has decided in case of Norton and others against the city of Portsmouth that the question of release may be heard and determined before the trial of the cause upon the other pleadings. This question will be heard and determined by the court at once, if the parties will waive a jury trial. Should the counsel thus agree to waive jury trial, the question will be heard on the 29th inst.; otherwise on the 10th of October.

James D. Janvrin of Hampton Falls was driving a pair of horses hauling a load of gravel down Dodge's hill in that town last Friday forenoon when the horses became frightened, and sheering to one side of the road Mr. Janvrin was thrown from his seat, and the loaded cart passed over him. Help was at hand, and Mr. Janvrin was taken up and carried to his home. He was conscious, and it was hoped his injuries would not prove serious, but about three o'clock in the afternoon his symptoms assumed a very unfavorable character, and he died in a short time. Mr. Janvrin was one of the most prominent citizens of the town, being chairman of the board of selectmen of Hampton Falls, and a very active member of the Baptist church. He was fifty-one years of age, and leaves a wife and three children, two of them being in business in St. Paul, Minn.

Geo. W. Smith, as administrator of the estate of John H. Grant, sold at auction on Saturday the house and land of the late Mr. Grant in Langdon street for $2500. This property is rendering a rental of over $400, and was purchased by Mr. John Dyer. A lot of land with two tenement houses, the land extending at foot of Brewster street to the Concord railroad, brought $477.50. It was purchased by Mr. J. Jones of the Boston & Maine railroad. The land alone was said to be worth the price paid for the estate.

De Witt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templar, attended divine service at Christ church on Sunday afternoon, by invitation of Rev. Henry E. Hovey, the rector. The sermon was on "One aspect of modern unbelief."

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth Machine company will be held at the counting room of the company at three o'clock this afternoon.

The altitude of Newmarket, taken at the Boston & Maine railroad station, is forty feet above the mean sea level; of Newmarket Junction, fifty-two feet; of South Newmarket, thirty-eight; of Exeter, fifty-eight; of Durham, seventy; of Dover, seventy-two. Epping station on the Concord & Portsmouth railroad is 154 feet, and Raymond station 178 feet, above the level of the sea.

The New York Tribune, commenting on Hon. Wm. E. Chandler's nomination (and assured election) as United States senator from New Hampshire, says: "Of all others, he is the right man to expose its [the present 'reform' administration's] conduct in naval matters, its shameless and cruel treatment of John Roach, its bad faith, dishonesty, and unpatriotic sacrifice of public interests to satisfy partisan grudges. Mr. Chandler has done much already to make this 'reform' understood by all men. In the senate he will have abundant opportunity, and his service as secretary of the navy peculiarly qualifies him to treat an issue which will prove one of the most effective in the arraignment of sham reform."

—A New York policeman a few days ago clubbed a young man for playing an accordeon in the street. Now we know why the New York police force is called "the finest in the world."

—An Austin man sent $1 in answer to an advertisement which promised for that amount to tell "Why I became a Mason." and he received the reply, "Because I didn't want to be a shoemaker."

It may not be generally known, says the Milford Advance, that the bell in the tower of the Milford town house has a bit of historic interest attached to it. Dr. Nichols of Boston, who has been examining the bells in that vicinity, is authority for the statement that the one in Milford is one of the oldest bells in the country. The most interesting part of the matter is the fact that it was made by Paul Revere, about the year 1802. Most of the bells made by him have been destroyed by fire, or otherwise, and are not in use.

The Indian outbreak in Arizona is assuming serious proportions.

A forest fire in Derry, before the late rains, burned over between 500 and 1000 acres.

"I have sold and am selling Athlophoros. In several cases I have recommended it for rheumatism and have found it to be a good thing," says C. W. Wells, a druggist of Maynard, Mass. No remedy can be recommended more conscientiously.

Ship Meta, Lenz master, sailed from Philadelphia on the 10th of February last for Liverpool, but has not arrived, and is given up for lost with all hands.

Ministers, lawyers, teachers, and others, whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and biliousness. One is a dose. Try them.

Hon. Hosea B. Perkins of New York city will give a solid gold medal to that student of the Dover high school who is the best orator on graduation day.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of smart weed and belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Peter Frost of Amherst, an old man living by himself and a wheelwright by occupation, committed suicide Thursday night by hanging.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you one half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2 cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates, from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

Henry Decaber, an employe of a menagerie exhibition on Wentworth avenue, Chicago, went to sleep on top of the lion's cage one day last week. One of the beasts got hold of his leg, and tore and mangled it horribly before he was rescued.

To Be Remembered.

Allcock's Porous Plaster is the only one which contains valuable curative properties; it never fails to do all that is claimed for it; it does not blister or irritate the skin; it can be worn for weeks without pain or inconvenience; it is the household medicine chest; it stands on its own merits as it has done for a quarter of a century; its valuable ingredients are found in none of its imitations, and it can be had of all druggists.

The Harvard club formally opened its new club house on Twenty-eighth street, New York, last week. About 600 members and graduates of Harvard college were present.

For a time my life was despaired of. My trouble was with the Kidneys, Liver and Bladder—also Constipation. Finally I used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and in my opinion it saved my life. I make this statement to save those who suffer as I did.—A. J. Gifford, Lowell, Mass. Druggists; $1. Send 2-cent stamp to Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Green, leave their anchorage in New York harbor this (Tuesday) afternoon on their regular eastern summer cruise. The Ossipee, Commander William B. The fleet will first proceed to New Haven, Conn., in order to participate in the ceremonies of the unveiling of the sailors' and soldiers' monument at that city on the 17th inst. During their summer cruise the squadron will land the naval brigades of the ships for the purpose of establishing a camp of instruction, which will be in commission for two weeks. During the cruise the fleet will visit Provincetown, Boston, Portland, Bath, Belfast, Halifax, Bar Harbor and Newport. A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia, and all Germ Diseases.

A powerful Tonic that the most delicate stomach will bear. The most Scientific and Successful Blood Purifier.

The venerable gentleman whose letter we here introduce is the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn. On the occasion of his ninetieth birthday, in March, 1887, nearly a thousand people of that city personally called on Mr. Thompson to offer their congratulations. He has resided in the house now owned and occupied by him on Water street, for about sixty years. His faculties are apparently as strong and clear as ever.

I am now a very old man. If I live 10 years more—which it is quite possible I may—I shall have been exactly one century in this world. In my ninety years I have seen and passed through a great deal. Of course I have outlived nearly or quite all who started life with me. Although I may be supposed to have much of the wisdom that comes of experience, I have found out recently that one is never too old to learn something new. The weight of infirmities that naturally attend so advanced an age as mine would seem to be burden enough, but added to this I have suffered considerably of late from malaria. I first became aware of the complaint by a feeling of unusual fatigue, a sense of nervousness, attacks of headache and pains in the limbs. In fact I may go further and say there was not a spot on my body the size of your thumb nail that did not ache. There was a bad taste in the mouth, I slept badly, and my appetite was uncertain and poor. I would have chills running up my back, and at times would have considerable fever. My stomach, too, seemed to be out of order; there would be some distress after eating, and between the periods I perspired a good deal more than was natural after any unusual exertion.

This state of things made me uneasy and anxious, and I consulted a physician who prescribed quinine. By the way I should mention that I had a good deal of aching in the back, as though I had done a hard day's work, or carried a load too great for my strength. I took quinine in large doses for a long while, and with very disastrous effects. I took twelve grains a day and sometimes increased the dose to thirty grains a day, and it was not long before I began to feel the effect of so large a quantity of this powerful and dangerous drug. It seemed to stupefy me as a certain poisons are said to do. Then came dizziness and a terrible ringing in the ears, with deafness, so that I had great difficulty to understand the speech of those who spoke to me. There was also roaring and other very unpleasant and annoying sounds in the head. I am not sure but it is better to endure malaria than to run the risk of trying to cure it with a medicine like quinine.

When the immediate effects of the quinine passed off there would be a great depression of spirits, a feeling of languor and fatigue and a general disturbance of the nervous trembling of the hands and marked weakness and prostration.

This was the second attack of malaria I had ever had in my life. The first occurred in Ohio seventy years ago, when I was a youth. The last I attribute to the malarial influences here on the shore of Long Island Sound, of which there seems to be more than there was many years ago.

At all events, what with the the malaria and quinine together, I was in a miserable condition when Kaskine, called the new quinine, was first mentioned to me as a remedy for malaria. I tried it merely because I wanted to do something; and, as quinine did more harm than good, I was obliged to take the chance of some strange drug or other. I can now honestly say that Kaskine has helped me wonderfully. It has broken up all my worst symptoms, and it has caused me to gain in strength and increased my weight from 160 to 182 pounds. Nothing that I have taken has done half as much towards re-establishing my health. It has not produced any of the bad effects of quinine, and I am sure it will take the place of quinine everywhere as fast as people become acquainted with its merits. My deafness is now very much better and I hear with but little trouble. In conclusion you may say to to the public that I most cheerfully testify to the healing and curative virtues of Kaskine, which is worthy to be known as the new quinine.

Napoleon's Nervous Sensitiveness.

"My nerves are very sensitive," he said of himself, "and when in this state, were my pulse not always regular, I should risk going crazy." The tension of accumulated impressions is often too great, and it ends in a physical breakdown. Strangely enough in his great a warrior and with such a statesman, "it is not infrequent, when excited, to see him shed tears." He who has looked upon thousands of dying men, and who has had thousands of men slaughtered "sobs after Wagram and after Bautzen, at the couch of a dying companion in arms. "I saw him," says his valet, "weep while eating his breakfast, after coming from Marshal Lanne's bedside; big tears rolled down his cheeks and fell on his plate." It is not alone the physical sensation, the sight of a bleeding, shattered body, which thus moves him acutely and deeply; for a word, a simple idea, stings and penetrates almost as far. Before the emotion of Dandolo, who pleads for Venice, his country, which is sold to Austria, he is agitated and his eyes moisten. Speaking of the capitulation of Baylen, at a full meeting of the council of state, his voice trembles, and "he gives way to his grief, his eyes even filling with tears."—H. Taine in New Princeton Review.

Just What the Boy Needed.

Side by side in the waiting-room of the Third street passenger station yesterday sat a nervous little woman and a tall, melancholy man. The woman had a boy about seven years of age who seemed to be possessed of an evil spirit. He wouldn't sit nor stand still. He didn't want apples nor candy. He couldn't be coaxed or bribed to behave himself, and his kicking and whining seemed to wear the little woman out. The melancholy man stood it for awhile, but finally felt called upon to observe:

"Madam, I know what that child is aching for?"

"Yes, so do I," she promptly answered, "but I've a boil on my right arm?"

"I'll take the job off your hands if you say so. It's sumthin' I've been in the habit of doing almost every day of my life, for I've had three wives and three sets of children."

The boy sat up an extra howl and began kicking her shins just then, and she looked around in a helpless way and said:

"Well you may try. Not too vigorous, but just vigorous enough."

He reached over and picked the child up and laid him across his knee, and the spanking machine started off at about forty revolutions a minute and worked to a charm.

"There—you sot there!" said the old man as he straightened the boy up and sat him down.

"That's better than all the candy and peanuts in the country, and you'll behave yourself for the next three days."

The boy blubbered softly and sat still, and when the mother bowed her gratitude the old man replied:

"Oh, don't mention it. It's the best medicine in the world. Besides, I was a bit lonesome to-day, and it has sort o' cheered me up."—Detroit Free Press.

May Baskets.

Have you never had or hung a May basket? O, what rare fun it was in childhood's days to weave a basket of parti-colored papers, place within a "bunch" of May-flowers, steal noiselessly in the twilight to the home of some little playmate, give the bell a prodigious pull, or the brass knocker a terrific clang, and then scamper off to some safe retreat and watch until the basket was taken in. Or, to wait at home with beating heart until our bell gave a wild peal, then rush to the door as fast as feet could carry us and find a basket with our name on it, to lift out the fragrant flowers, and once (O memorable occasion!) to find a little frosted cake; then to place the flowers in water, and then scan the writing closely in order to find out the donor, was enough to make May day a red-letter day in our calendar and help perpetuate the innocent festival.

After a while more elaborate baskets, sometimes of silver, ivory, wood, in dainty devices and cunning workmanship, and bearing choicest hot-house flowers, with some rare gift of jewels concealed, were sent by the wealthy people to their friends; but in whatever form it appeared the May basket was a survival of the old Roman Floriala. But in our northern climate it will be urged that it would be unwise to devote a day to out-of-doors pastimes. That is very true, and so in some communities a May party is given in a hall, a pole erected and decorated, various games played, and a general rejoicing that "The time of the singing of birds has come."

The alumni of the University of Paris numbered nearly 11,000 last year. Of these no fewer than 3,786 were studying for the legal profession, while 3,696 were attending the courses in the school of medicine. Pharmacy engaged the attention of 1,767 students, letters of 928, and science of 467. The faculty of theology is very far from being as flourishing as it was in the days of Abelard, only 35 young men having attended the lectures in this department in 1886. The female students numbered 167, of whom 108 were qualified for a medical career, while 51 were engaged in literary studies. There were 7 lady scientists and only 1 lady lawyer.

Almost the Last One.

Hon. James N. Buffum of Lynn died at his home on the night of the 11th inst. Mr. Buffum was an ardent worker in and friend of the anti-slavery movement, and with two exceptions was the last of the band of reformers led by Garrison fifty years ago. He was a builder by trade, and very materially aided the business enterprise of Lynn, being the first to use the steam engine for his power, and the first to introduce the planing machine in that city. Mr. Buffum was a presidential elector from Massachusetts at the first election of General Grant to the presidency, but in later years joined the greenback party. He served two terms as mayor of Lynn, and represented that city in the legislature of 1874. He was born and educated as a Quaker, but earnestly supported the war for the preservation of the nation.

The President and the Grand Army.

The next national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is to be held in St. Louis, Mo., and somebody connected with the citizens' committee of arrangements, thinking it an excellent chance to commit the Grand Army to Mr. Cleveland's support, sent him an "official" invitation to be present at the encampment. This has caused a great deal of feeling among the ex-warriors, and many G. A. R. posts which had notified the national committee of their intention to take part in the encampment, have announced that they will not have anything to do with it if it is to be run as a tail to Cleveland's political kite. At Des Moines, Iowa, June 11th, the local post adopted resolutions declaring that the G. A. R. never did and never would invite the president to attend the national encampment. The following was also adopted:

Resolved, That a proper regard for common decency and the dignity of the official position he now fills should have caused Grover Cleveland to see that he cannot expect to be kindly greeted by Union soldiers after his attacks upon them, their wives and their children in his malicious vetoes of 119 pensions bills, in which with satanic glee he so grossly insulted every Union soldier, and it would seem to us that he should have sufficient self-respect not to attempt to crowd himself before the gaze of those who utterly and unalterably despise him.

Resolved, That if Grover Cleveland and his friends insist upon using the prestige of the Grand Army of the Republic to obtain an audience, that he substitute if possible that person who represented him in the army during the war. While we respect the office he fills, we must still be allowed to say that we have no kind feeling for its present soldier-hating occupant.

Alleged Newspaper Change.

The Boston correspondent of the Manchester Union under date of June 12th writes that paper as follows: "I was told to-day by reliable authority that the Herald had purchased the controlling interest in the Globe. This startling piece of information is not at all improbable, for it is well known by certain persons that Jordan, Marsh & Co., who own eighty per cent of the Globe stock, have decided to dispose of their interest. They erected the new building and paid for the presses. It is represented that the Herald made the negotiations through a third party. No consolidation of the two papers is contemplated."

THE DECLINE OF CHURCH POWER.

The text of the sermon given in the Pleasant street church last Sunday was I Timothy, 3d chapter, 1st clause of 1st verse: "Which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." The question considered was, "Are the church and clergy losing their authority?"

To many it seems that the influence and strength of the church are losing their grip. The old splendor of the middle ages, the full attendance of the puritanical age, are missed. The civil authority once wielded, even to declaring and carrying on war; the dogmatic authority once imposed, even to the extent of turning a man out of "a church of Christ" for his intellectual convictions, truly have passed away. The power of the emotional church is passing away. Thinking is carried into religion, and this is its present power.

Money, fashion, beauty, art, poetry, are laid under contribution to religion, and they find that in their best work they are not outside of the limits set by Christ. There is no call to be alarmed for the church, for what she says in truth the world must abide by. And to turn that idea over, what the world can follow and succeed in, is churchly and Christ-like. The power of the church is that she is identified with God's great order of things, and therefor men cannot live without her.

Nature, in which we include the soul, is moral and honest, and if we follow a perverse course she will punish. The church declares the truths of nature. If men cultivate but one side of their nature they will be narrow. If men give no attention to advanced questions like that of the church and religion of to-day, they will be narrow. Take the great question of Sunday observance; how many people know the real attitude of the church on that question? It is this: Sunday should be a day when every rational person should use his free will; he should not be obliged to do anything. Then let him look well to his needs,—his needs of a long life,—and save himself from narrowness. Men who spert all day Sunday, or who work all day Sundays, do grow narrow. We meet them, and it takes some time to get them where they are intelligent on the attitude and claim of the church to-day. Some say that they are liberals; but we find them, in their minds, rebelling against thought that has long vanished from the pulpit. This is the illiberalism of liberality. The power of the church is the position she holds in regard to man's reason and judgment. It is in love and philanthropy. It is in the fact that, if true, she will always lead man to his highest ideals.

The church is not for argument, nor censure, but she is the pillar and the ground of truth.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., June 13th.

Mrs. Carrie Frisbee has sold her residence here, and will soon go to Florida, where she and her brother, Frank Chauncey, have purchased a farm. They will engage in the strawberry growing business, one acre of their farm being already stocked with strawberry plants. On Thursday last there was a farewell gathering at her old home. The choir from Milton Mills was present, with other invited guists from various places. Music and social conversation occupied the time. Refreshments were served during the interlude. Mrs. Frisbee has the best wishes of all for her future prosperity.

One of our young townsmen, Charles Grace, had a narrow escape from severe injuries last week. While riding on a load of hay, on one of the back roads, at a bad place in the road the load was overturned. Mr. Grace escaped with a sprained wrist, while the horse fortunately was uninjured.

"NEARLY CRAZED

with pain" is the sad cry of many a victim of rheumatism or neuralgia, and frequently other diseases, such as kidney and liver complaints, are directly traceable to rheumatism or neuralgia. These diseases, for some unexplainable reason, are rapidly increasing, and in many instances are the direct cause of much sickness which so hides its real origin as to be mistaken for other diseases. In curing rheumatism, neuralgia, sick headache, and in many cases of kidney and liver troubles, Athlophoros has wrought wonders. Those who have used it are best qualified to speak of its merit.

Great Falls, N. H., March 12, 1886.

With me Athlophoros outsells all rheumatism medicines and herewith I give you one sample of its work in this place. Mr. Cyrus Curtis has been so afflicted with rheumatism that for the past three years he has been unable to walk, except to put one foot out and drag the other up to it and thus get along. Three weeks ago I recommended Athlophoros to him. Two bottles has so (as he states) unloosened him that he can walk natural again. He is now an earnest advocate of Athlophoros.

F. H. WINGATE, Druggist.

Greenfield, Mass., May 19, 1886.

I have been troubled with rheumatism in one of my knees for years, being at times laid up for several days. Athlophoros has entirely cured me. It has also cured two friends of mine who were the worst cases I ever saw, one of them a young man only 16 years old, who was so bad the doctors gave him up. Two bottles of your remedy entirely cured him. I heartily recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatism.

GEO. W. SPURR,
Manager Diamond Soap Co.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

THE MIKADO.

Unceasing care, constant watchfulness, the cultivation of voice and the preparation of costumes are but few of the countless details prerequisite to a successful rendering of the opera even by artists of professional experience in operatic circles. It must be therefore, that the excellent manner in which the Mikado will be presented this evening will be the compensating results of the toils and efforts of the past weeks of preparation.

On Monday evening a dress rehearsal of the opera was given in Music hall, at which the representatives of the press were in attendance at the invitation of the musical director, Mr. Alfred N. La Brie. We will not anticipate the attractions of this musical feast, by delineating its especial excellencies in detail. Indeed, upon this subject we will be "dumb, dumb, dumb." But we will indulge in one expression of surprise at the proficiency of the ladies and gentlemen who in their endeavors have accomplished so much in a combined effort to afford their fellow townspeople a rich and enjoyable entertainment, together with a generous contribution to a most worthy and deserving object.

It is said that nothing succeeds as much as success. The company who are to appear to-night will be abundantly able to gratify their auditors. It remains for our residents to welcome their efforts by a large attendance, and the bestowal of those evidences of appreciation which we predict it will be well deserved. This token of approbation is an encouragement which every artist knows how to appreciate. Let it not be withheld when our own friends and neighbors sing on the other side of the footlights.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, June 13th.

In the absence of Judge Batchelder, George E. Hodgdon, Esq., occupied the bench.

Charles McLaughlin, Frank Kelly, Thomas Mooney and John Shea, for drunkenness, were fined $3, costs $6.90, each; county farm in default of payment.

John C. Coleman, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; paid.

Louisa Raymond and Jane Leary, charged with drunkenness, were dismissed with a reprimand, some excellent advice and a caution.

PORTSMOUTH MACHINE COMPANY.

The annual meeting of this corporation was held at the company's counting room on Monday. Hon. Frank Jones, president of the corporation, occupied the chair. The report of the treasurer, Mr. J. A. Farrington, showed an increase of receipts for work done and goods sold, and a material diminution of amount paid for labor and salaries, over the previous year. The report of the treasurer, after replies to questions put by Messrs. Jeremiah Sanborn and William H. Rollins, was accepted. A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Thomas H. Rider, Wm. H. Rollins and E. S. Fay, were appointed to nominate a list of gentlemen to be chosen directors. The committee through Mr. Rider reported the names of Frank Jones, E. H. Winchester, Marcellus Eldredge, Chas. H. Mendum, Benjamin F. Webster, Edward S. Fay, William Ward, C. M. Gignoux and J. A. Farrington. The report was accepted, and after a ballot the gentlemen abovenamed were declared duly elected directors for the year ensuing. The meeting then dissolved.

The directors subsequently re-elected Hon. Frank Jones president, and Edward S. Fay, Esq., vice president.

A FRUITLESS SEARCH.

A contractor from Providence, R. I., was in this city on Monday, in hope of getting the contract to lay the tracks of the Portsmouth horse railroad, but after spending the day in research he left late in the afternoon in disgust, having been unable to find any one who could give him any information, even the member of the legislature who introduced the horse railroad bill seeming to know nothing about the matter.

FRANK A. ROBBINS' CIRCUS, MUSEUM AND MENAGERIE.

We presume there are very few people in town who are not aware that this "big show" is coming to Portsmouth on Friday, June 19th. The little folks are in high glee over the anticipated delights in store for them, and all amusement seekers are the qui vive for the occasion.

The establishment is a large one. The circus company is composed of some of the best riders, acrobats and gymnasts in the profession. The menagerie is composed of a large collection of rare and beautiful animals, many of which will be novelties here. The herd of trained elephants, which perform on all kinds of musical instruments, and which it is said cost Mr. Robbins the immense sum of $12,000, will form one of the many features which can only be seen in the Robbins show.

Ira Paine, the champion shot of the world, has been expressly engaged for this season, and will appear at every performance and give an exhibition of his marvellous skill with pistol, rifle and shot gun.

On the morning of the exhibition there will be a street pageant, starting from the circus ground at ten o'clock. Our country friends should avail themselves of the opportunity of being in town in time to see the magnificent display. Read the advertisement in another column for full particulars of all the wonders to be seen.

DEATH OF GIDEON BECK.

Mr. Gideon Beck, a native of this city, but for the last forty-five years or more in business as an auctioneer in Boston, died at his home in Milton, Mass., June 12th. He was born in 1818, learned the trade of harness maker and carriage trimmer, and conducted that business here before removing to Boston. He was a man of strict integrity, generous, very pleasant in manner, and highly respected. He leaves a wife and one son.

The democrats of ward two will hold a caucus in the common council room tomorrow evening.

Next Sunday will be observed as Children's day at the Unitarian church, with special services and floral decorations.

Mr. W. W. Deane of Kittery, who joined the U. S. S. Galena as paymaster's yeoman at the time that vessel left here after repairing at this navy yard, has returned home.

The steamer Mystic resumed her regular trips between this city and the Kittery side on Monday.

Col. J. Horace Kent is making extensive repairs in the interior of the Stearns house on Islington street, recently purchased by him for a residence.

Rev. John Canning, pastor of the Catholic churches in Exeter and South Newmarket, was in town on Monday.

The underground railroad bridge—or overhead highway bridge, whichever you choose to call it—at Remick's place, near Rice's hollow, Kittery, is advancing rapidly. In two weeks more it is thought it will be completed.

There will be an auction sale of Texan broncho horses at Mr. James R. Yeaton's farm on Richards avenue on Tuesday, June 21st, when forty-eight of these animals, some partly broken to saddle or harness, will be sold without reserve. They are from the Texas stock farm of McCafferty Brothers.

Ninety degrees above zero in the shade, Monday forenoon.

The typographical fraternity of Portsmouth, who last year had a very enjoyable excursion to the Shoals and seaward in the yacht Wm. H. Russell, Capt. Drowne, are considering another trip at an early date, and with a largely increased company of those conected with the press.

The Rockingham county delegation in the legislature will visit the county farm at Brentwood on Friday, June 17th. We acknowledge the courtesy of an invitation from County Commissioner Johnston, to be present.

A Concord correspondent of the New York Tribune, in discussing the railroad contest likely to come before the present legislature, remarks that "Frank Jones, the democratic boss and the Portsmouth brewer, who is said to be worth $5,000,000, is here looking after the interest of the Boston & Maine scheme. Ex-Senator Rollins is at the head of the opposition forces." Why the correspondent should so remorselessly scale down Mr. Jones' estimated wealth to the paltry sum of five millions can only be accounted for from the fact that the correspondent states that the president's friends do not wish to see Mr. Chandler elected as senator, and are ready to place money where it will do the most good in this direction.

Mr. William M. Thayer and wife celebrated the twelfth anniversary of their marriage in a very pleasant social manner last Saturday night at their residence on Carlisle street, Roxbury, Mass.

The "Woman's Bank" Distanced.

The fearful and wonderful financial management of the exploded Pacific National bank of Boston has been again brought to public notice, and its astonishing methods ventilated, through the case of the receiver against the directors of the institution, seeking to hold them individually liable for its wrecking by reason of alleged neglect of duty, which last week came before Judge Colt of the United States circuit court. T. W. Clarke, for the receiver, said that a remedy was due. The institution was in existence four years, and it received funds which the accounts called for, amounting to $2,250,000. The receiver when he took charge found not a dollar in cash. After a year and a half he was able to collect only $125,000, and the amount possible to collect further was only $225,000. The bank was in existence four years, and $1,900,000 disappeared. The directors delegated the entire management of the institution to President Abner I. Benyon and Cashier Chick, until the latter became a defaulter and was succeeded by Cashier Pettingill. No proper accounts were kept. Ten single items in the bank's dealings account for the failure. T. C. Weeks caused a loss to the bank of $1,000,000 between Jan. 1st, and Nov. 1st, 1881. Messrs. Williams, Wadman, Stuart, Crane and Horne received $700,000 more of the bank's funds, for which no equivalent was put in. The transactions regarding Weeks are shown only by certificates of deposit which remain. The transactions of this description with Weeks between the dates named amounted to the almost incredible sum of $171,000,000, and no mention of these transactions is made on the books of the bank.

And yet there will be people who will point at the credulity of the depositors in the famous Woman's Bank, as a proof that women are hopelessly inferior to men in financial shrewdness, although it took Mrs. Howe two years to steal about $50,000 from simple women, whereas Benyon and his pals in less than a year got away with $1,000,000 belonging to the most experienced, and supposed to be most keen, male financiers.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without a discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. To Be Remembered.

Allcock's Porous Plaster is the only one which contains valuable curative properties; it never fails to do all that is claimed for it; it does not blister or irritate the skin; it can be worn for weeks without pain or inconvenience; it is the household medicine chest; it stands on its own merits as it has done for a quarter of a century; its valuable ingredients are found in none of its imitations, and it can be had of all druggists.

The screw steamer City of Portsmouth is now in Simpson's dry docks, East Boston, undergoing extensive alterations and improvements. She will be used this summer as an excursion steamer and will make daily excursions from Battery wharf (probably) to the North and South shores and other places of interest and in the harbor and bay. The steamer is comparatively new, having been built in 1880 and previously used as an excursion boat between Portsmouth, N. H., and the Isles of Shoals. She has accommodations for 400 passengers and will be in command of Captain Ray of the Duxbury steamer Acushnet, which service gives him a strong knowledge of the neighboring waters. The City of Portsmouth has been chartered by the Dorchester Yacht Club for the races Friday and will doubtless attend the regattas of the Eastern and other yacht clubs.—Boston Post.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; for upon the tongue; indigestion, and sick headace consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious, to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

A Wonderful Machine But It Will Wear Out.

There is no doubt that man is a fine mechanism, but like every other machine he wears out by friction. It is said that he is born again every two or three years. His body is virtually remade from food. To retard this making over is radically wrong, as a man loses so much vitality in the delayed process that it takes a long time to recuperate. The process of making anew is so accelerated by purging with Brandreth's Pills that a new man, as it were, may be made in two or three months, and the change in the mechanism is such that the wornout part is replaced by the new without the usual running down of the entire machine. You don't have to stop for repairs. Purge away with Brandreth's Pills the old, diseased and wornout body.

A recent writer says that President Cleveland will go out of the White House with about $100,000. He will have to look after his pennies pretty closely during the remainder of his term if he wants to do it.

How a Yankee Sold His Woodenware.

I was told a story of a "down easter's" mode of creating a demand for a supply which, amid all the ingenuities of modern commerce, may fairly claim originality. One of the class called a "hickory dealer," or seller of woodenware, came down to the south in the summer time with a well-laden wagon, but was destined to encounter a sweeping opposition in the yellow fever, which had commenced business about a week previous in such a way that the only woodenware in requisition was a coffin. The ravages of the plague were at this time so dreadful that it will be supposed there was a general tendency to try the most desperate and absurd expedients to avert it, though many such proved but pioneers to its progress. This the peddler was aware of, so resolved, as regarded his own fortune, to extract good from evil. Dressing himself as respectably as possibly, he mounted his horse and rode up to a printing office in Williamsburg, where, under an assumed name, he had one hundred bills struck off to this effect:

WANTED—Immediately, woodenware in any quantity, for the fever hospital in Philadelphia, such being found not to convey the infection. By order of the board of health. SETH ADAMS, N. B.—All persons cautioned how they use crockery, which is the cause of the plague to thousands.

Fifty of these placards he sent his boy to stick round the streets of a village lying in his road where the fever had begun to show itself. A discovery so important, so simple, and apparently in such close connection with a remedy, created an instant sensation. The doom of crockery was pronounced. Jugs, bowls, basins, teapots and other utensils most esteemed or necessary were hurled out of the windows in showers. No grandmother's gift, no ancestor's relic, survived this fall of china; the streets soon looked like a pottery after an earthquake. About noon, when the work of destruction was at its height, a wagon made its way into the village with a man vociferating with all the power of his lungs: "Woodenware!" His arrival was hailed as a godsend; a crowd collected around him as to a magician who brought a talisman, and in less than two hours his plague-averting platters were all sold at exorbitant prices.—Boston Herald.

"There is a man who has done well," remarked Robinson. "He got onto a 'pull' some years ago, and has made lots of money out of it." "Politician?" inquired Dumley. "No, dentist," replied Robinson, who is something of a bore to his friends.

"Yes," remarked Dumley, confidentially, to Featherly, "I'm having a hard (hic) fight with liquor, but I expect to (hic) win." "I think you will, Dumley," was Featherly's encouraging response, "if you keep on taking the offensive."—New York Sun.

First broker—"It's pretty bad for me—that last break in Ontario. I'm blue as a jay." Second broker—"Cheer up, old fellow. Here, try one of my cigars." First broker—"O, it isn't as bad as that. I wasn't contemplating suicide."—The Judge.

"And what do you expect to be when you grow up, Bobby," asked the minister; "a lawyer, like your father?" No, Bobby replied. "Ma says I'm too much like pa to make a successful lawyer. I did think I'd be a drum-major, but I guess I'll be a lion tamer."

"We don't see you very often at the club, Charley." "No; the fact is I'm engaged, and can't call an evening my own." "Going to leave the club, then?" "O, no; I shall be married in April, and then you may look for me at least three times a week."—Philadelphia Call.

Mother (to wayward son)—I saw you kissing the servant-girl on the stairs. Wayward son—That's just about the size of it. Mother—Well, ain't you ashamed of your conduct? Son—No; that's the servant-girl's privilege, and I don't propose to rob her of it.—Texas Siftings.

"And don't you know why, Bobby?" said the minister, who was dining with the family, "your mamma doesn't want you to eat a second piece of pie?" "Yes, sir," replied Bobby. "She said that if you didn't take any there would be enough left over for to-morrow."—New York Sun.

"I notice," said a clergyman's wife to her husband, "that it is no longer fashionable for the minister to kiss the bride at the wedding ceremony." "Yes," sadly responded the good man, "many of the pleasant features connected with the wedding ceremony have been discarded, and—" "What's that? demanded his wife ominously. "I mean—I mean," he stammered, "that the senseless custom of kissing the bride should have been abolished long ago."—All the Year Round.

Prominent lawyers have also been secured to instruct the men in regard to their duties, showing them just how far they can go under the law. All the men will be compelled to attend the lectures.

VITIATED BLOOD

Scrofulous, Inherited and Contagious Humors Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on oath says: "In 1870 Scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. The Soap takes the "cake" here as a medicinal soap.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrah. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.

New Hampshire Legislature.

The senate voted for United States senator at eleven o'clock A. M. on the 14th, every member being present. Harry Bingham, democrat, had nine votes; William E. Chandler, republican, fifteen.

The house voted for United States senator at 12:05 o'clock, the ballot resulting as follows: Simon G. Griffin of Keene had one vote, Joseph Wentworth of Concord one, Gilman Marston four, Harry Bingham 136, William E. Chandler 165.

Both houses having given majorities for Mr. Chandler, he is elected, the meeting of the two bodies in convention on the 15th to declare the vote being merely formal. The four votes cast for Gen. Marston were all thrown by democrats, his own vote being given for Mr. Chandler, as was the vote of every republican member.

Don't Approve Him.

A Washington despatch of the 13th to the New York Tribune said:

Great anxiety is shown by democratic officials in Washington in regard to the senatorial election in New Hampshire. In the navy department are several officers who fervently pray for the defeat of William E. Chandler. All of them are ready and willing to admit that Mr. Chandler possesses a thorough knowledge of that department and its needs, and therefore their anxiety for his defeat must be inspired by a fear that as a member of the United States senate he would be able to bring out some disagreeable facts in regard to the present administration of naval affairs. One matter about which there is understood to be great solicitude is the accounts relating to the construction of the Dolphin and the Roach cruisers since the department took possession of them. It is asserted that these accounts, especially those for the Atlanta, are in great confusion, and that nobody seems to know where the credits and liabilities of the assignees end and those of the government begin. Of course, the navy department would prefer to settle these and other difficulties without any interference from Mr. Chandler in the capacity of United States senator. In other departments the hope that he will not be elected is freely expressed. The subject seems to be uppermost in their minds, for it provokes as much talk as any political incident since the last presidential election.

Undoubtedly the fears of Secretary Whitney's friends will prove to have been well founded. Mr. Chandler will be a very "active, persistent and pugnacious personality" as United States senator, and if he does not pay off the man who succeeded him as secretary of the navy for his contemptible conduct in regard to John Roach, we shall be very much surprised.

It is announced that President Cleveland has ordered all the flags taken in battle by union troops from confederate forces during the war of the rebellion to be returned to the governors of the several southern states, as he "wishes to withdraw from the public gaze all mementos of internecine strife." This is probably the reason he vetoed the bill to pension dependent union soldiers, after signing the bill to pension all Mexican war veterans (a large proportion of whom served in the confederate army during the rebellion) whether they are in need or not. "The gray's on deck again," sure enough.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., June 13th.

Another birth-day for me. How often they come now, as compared with thirty years ago when we saw we had four years to wait before we were twenty-one. Twenty-one! how large it sounded then. O! the changes since then! Food (and rather poor fodder) for reflection,—these many years!

The bridges across York river have been undergoing repairs, and are now passable and safe.

The funeral of J. Willard Titcomb occurred Tuesday, the 7th. A large congregation were present rendering the last tribute. He was a young man of high esteem, and will be sadly missed by many, and more especially by the estimable wife who so faithfully stood by him through all his terrible sufferings. May God help her to bear her sad affliction and may she feel that Willard is safe in the celestial world, where troubles and trials are unknown. We feel confident that she has no reflections or regrets, having done all within the power of mortal hands to do, to alleviate his sufferings and to minister to his every desire. God bless her in her trial, and may she remember that it is the power of Him who doeth all things well, and to whom she can confidently look in this her hour of sad affliction.

Mr. Benjamin F. Shaw, one of York's most noble sons, lies dangerously ill of pneumonia; very little hopes of his recovery are entertained. P.

IN MEMORIAM.

YORK, ME., June 13th.

Died in Kittery, June 5th, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Maria Varrell, Capt. Joseph Donnell, formerly of York.

Capt. Donnell had nearly attained his three-score years and ten; was born in York, and always lived there until about seven years ago; married Miss Nancy Preble, also of York, with whom he lived happily forty-three years, and who now mourns the loss of a kind and loving husband. Two daughters, whose loving hands ministered unto him through many weeks of protracted suffering, also survive, and feel deeply the removal by death of an affectionate father. Capt. Donnell was a superior navigator, and for many years filled the position of master mariner acceptably to all. Having knowledge of all the rocks and reefs on the coast he was one of the best of pilots, and when "Capt. Joe," as he was familiarly called, had charge, all on board felt perfectly safe. For ten years he has been laid aside from active service, by reason of injuries received in casualties by which in more than one instance he narrowly escaped death.

The funeral service was conducted at the Congregational church in this town on Wednesday, June 8th, by Rev. Messrs. Sewall and Holmes. The large concourse of people present, at this busy season, attested the estimation in which he was held in the community where he was born and so long resided.

We shall miss the cordial greeting we ever received on our many pleasant visits to his home. An honest man, a worthy citizen, a reliable friend and a pleasant neighbor, has fallen. S.

Mr. Aaron Frost, formerly of Kittery, Me., died at his residence in Malden, Mass., May 19th. He suffered a paralytic shock when apparently in robust health, but seemed to be recovering from its effects up to a few hours of his death, when he commenced to fail rapidly, and passed quietly away at the last. Mr. Frost was fifty-nine years old last December, and while living in eastern Maine was one of the noted ship builders of the day, and constructed some of the finest ships that ever sailed from Maine ports. He belonged to Crescent lodge of Freemasons, of Pembroke, Me. The funeral services at his late home in Malden were conducted by Rev. Mr. Priest, and were very impressive; there were many beautiful floral tributes, including a pillow from his daughters, a sickle from Mr. Doughty and wife, and a square and compass from the Masons. The body was interred in Forestdale cemetery, where exercises were held at the grave by the Masonic brethren, and consisted of the beautiful rendering of a responsive service, prayer, and the singing of three hymns, namely, "Safe in the arms of Jesus," "Shall we meet beyond the river?" and the "Sweet bye-and-bye," which were favorites with Mr. Frost. "NEARLY CRAZED with pain" is the sad cry of many a victim of rheumatism or neuralgia, and frequently other diseases, such as kidney and liver complaints, are directly traceable to rheumatism or neuralgia. These diseases, for some unexplainable reason, are rapidly increasing, and in many instances are the direct cause of much sickness which so hides its real origin as to be mistaken for other diseases. In curing rheumatism, neuralgia, sick headache, and in many cases of kidney and liver troubles, Athlophoros has wrought wonders. Those who have used it are best qualified to speak of its merit.

Great Falls, N. H., March 12, 1886.

With me Athlophoros outsells all rheumatism medicines and herewith I give you one sample of its work in this place. Mr. Cyrus Curtis has been so afflicted with rheumatism that for the past three years he has been unable to walk, except to put one foot out and drag the other up to it and thus get along. Three weeks ago I recommended Athlophoros to him. Two bottles has so (as he states) unloosened him that he can walk natural again. He is now an earnest advocate of Athlophoros.

F. H. WINGATE, Druggist.

Greenfield, Mass., May 19, 1886.

I have been troubled with rheumatism in one of my knees for years, being at times laid up for several days. Athlophoros has entirely cured me. It has also cured two friends of mine who were the worst cases I ever saw, one of them a young man only 16 years old, who was so bad the doctors gave him up. Two bottles of your remedy entirely cured him. I heartily recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatism.
